Arsonist Seen As Fire Strikes In Green Bay

Fourth Downtown Blaze in Month; Damage $15,000

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY—For the fourth time in slightly less than a month, fire has caused heavy damage to a downtown Green Bay building.

The latest blaze caused an estimated $15,000 damage to the Findeisen-Greiser Furniture Co. at 222 Main St. The fire was reported at 1:05 a.m. by persons who saw flames shoot from a pair of windows at the rear of the store.

Fire officials investigating the blaze say they now are convinced an arsonist is at work in Green Bay. Adding to the fact that this morning's fire was the fourth in as many weeks was the statement of a parking lot attendant who claimed he saw a man on a fire escape outside the building some 10 minutes before the fire was discovered.

Firemen who battled the blaze in chilly 16-degree temperatures were credited with doing "an exceptional job" in holding the fire to a second-floor corner area.

"Another two or three minutes and the whole building would have gone," said Fire Chief David Zuidmulder.

Heard Glass

An attendant in a parking lot at the rear of the store, Fred Hagerty, 24, of 1634 Harold St., told fire officials he heard glass breaking about 1 a.m. and went to the rear of the parking lot to check.

He said he saw a man's figure crouched on the fire escape "as if he had slipped." He was unable to describe the man,

Gemini Guided into New Path By Pilot During Orbits of Earth

Astronauts Land Safely In Atlantic

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Molly Brown spacecraft bringing astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young back from their space flight made a parachute landing Tuesday in the Atlantic.

The spacecraft landed some 25 to 30 miles north and west of the main recovery ship, the aircraft carrier Intrepid. Grissom had reported earlier he expected to come down 25 miles short of his target.

The mission control center said an airplane had the capsule in view and "Happily, it is floating."

Ranger Pictures May be Viewed

NEW YORK (AP) — Television viewers will — if all goes well — get an on-the-spot view of the moon Wednesday morning as Ranger 9 approaches for a landing.

All three networks said today they would present still pictures on a live basis as they are received from the space vehicle by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena, Calif.

Transmission is to begin at 8:58 a.m., EST, under the present schedule, and continue until the point of impact, set for 9:08 a.m. Pictures will be sent every 2½ seconds.

The networks — National Broadcasting Co., Columbia Broadcasting System and American Broadcasting Co. said they will begin their moon programs at 8:45 a.m.

Rain Falls on Civil Righters In Pilgrimage

King Has Left Lineup to Confer On Cleveland Trip

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Rain dampened 300 marchers as they started the third day of their 50-mile civil rights pilgrimage today through swampy, rural Lowndes County minus Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

King left the pasture campsite Monday night and returned to Selma for a staff conference before departing for Cleveland, Ohio, and a program honoring him. He planned to return Wednesday or Thursday.

A light rain fell as the marchers broke camp at 8 a.m. Ahead was about 25 miles of highway in the right-to-vote march begun Sunday at Selma.

The plan calls for thousands to join the final leg into Montgomery Thursday.

Woman Faints

As the column wound from the pasture where tents were pitched Monday night, a Negro, Betty Jean Sullivan, 17, of Marion, Ala., fainted. She was taken away in an ambulance.

The Rev. Andrew Young, an aide to King, told the marchers: "This is the time to drop out if you have blisters and feel you can't make it."

Taking King's place at the head of the line were John Lewis, cochairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee; Albert Turner, a Negro leader from Marion; attorney Charles Bangle of New York; George Fowler of the New York Commission on Human Rights; and Norman Houston, of the Los Angeles National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

In the column was a white woman, Nell Washburn, 65, of Atlanta, Ga. She said she might march all the way.

Flight Marks Beginning Of Manned Phase of U. S. Training for Moon Jaunt

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young guided their spaceship Molly Brown into a new orbital path today and scored a big first in the space race. The mission control center at Cape Kennedy called the successful maneuver, executed high over Texas during the first of three orbits, an 'historic' accomplishment.

Grissom, 38, an Air Force major and the first man to rocket twice into space, operated the jets tthat put the capsule into a nearly circular orbit ranging from 97 to 105 miles high.

A Titan 2 rocket had originally launched the craft, officially called Gemini 3, into an orbit with a high point of 140 miles and a low of 100 miles.

Ability to maneuver a spacecraft is essential before space rendezvous — and flight onward to the moon — can be accomplished.

Like test pilots taking a high-powered aircraft through a trial run, Grissom and Young gave their craft a thorough shakedown in a rehearsal for longer flights and eventual rendezvous missions. A series of 10 Gemini flights will be followed by the Apollo moon program.

The Molly Brown was named by the astronauts after the musical, "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," — an allusion to Grissom's first spaceship, which sank in the Atlantic after return from a suborbital flight.

While President Johnson and millions more watched on television, the Titan thundered into the skies at 9:24 a.m.

Before the first orbit was completed, the mission control center gave the green light for a second go-round and the astronauts accepted the message with pleasure. Midway through the second orbit, they were given the okay for a third.

This would bring them down as planned to a parachute landing in the Atlantic 70 miles northeast of Grand Turk Island, where recovery ships and planes awaited them.

The drop in orbital altitude was not a sudden thing. As the thruster jets fired for 77 seconds, the spacecraft moved gradually into its new path as it sailed over Georgia at about 17,400 miles an hour.

Midway through the second orbit Grissom conducted another space craft maneuver which will be important to future rendezvous flights. He twisted the capsule around 90 degrees so it was flying sideways and pointing south.

Then he fired his forward jets for 15 seconds to shoot the craft onto an orbital path about one and a half miles south of the original course. Then he quickly turned the space craft around 180 degrees and executed a number of rapid jet firings to simulate action which might have to be taken as a spacecraft approaches a target satellite on a rendezvous mission.

Cosmonauts In Moscow For Welcome

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet spacemen Pavel Belyayev and Alexei Leonov arrived in Moscow today for the traditional welcome given to successful cosmonauts.

Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev was the first to hug the pair who orbited the earth last week. Then Belyayev and Leonov were hugged by other top Soviet leaders, including Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, President Anastas I. Mikoyan, and party leaders Nikolai Podgorny and Mikhail Suslov.

Belyayev, commander of the spaceship Voskhod 2, and Leonov, the first man to walk in outer space, were flown by special airliner from the space center at Baikonur in Soviet central Asia, where they took off last Thursday on their historic flight.

Proposals Being Revised

Speedup Attempted for Indian Relief Program

MADISON (AP) — A spokesman says an attempt has been under way for two weeks to speed up the implementation of a number of programs for Menominee County under the anti-poverty program.

Robert Smith, community action coordinator for the State department has been working to "pull together" a number of projects for the county.

Smith said the effort to speed the programs was started after a March 5 meeting of about 60 representatives of state and local level agencies to consider ways of helping the tribe. Some of the programs were included in or are revisions of proposals contained in a $2 million Menominee project advanced by former Gov. John W. Reynolds.

In Washington, a spokesman for the Office of Economic Opportunity, which supervises anti-poverty projects, said the office hopes to begin studies of the proposals within two or three weeks.

Richard Hausler, director of the office's "rural area task force," said the community action section has already received these proposals:

An appropriation of $18,250 to support a six month study of the county and its activities with the Domestic Peace Corps helping in the project.

Youth Corps

A request for establishment of a neighborhood youth corps to help individuals, especially school dropouts in the 16 to 21 age bracket.

An application for $104,800 to enable School District No. 8 to hire a number of new people, including a nurse and social worker for a program aimed entirely at Menominee County.

Hausler also said the Small Business Administration has sent in men for conferences aimed at promoting new business for the county. Loans up to $25,000 are available for new business ventures.

Hausler also said that Small Business Administration representatives and those of the United States Forest Service had checked the county with a view of organizing new industry related to the county's vast forest holdings.

Roll-Turn Achieved

Rocket Ignites, Prods Ranger Toward Target

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A small steering rocket ignited briefly aboard Ranger 9 this morning, prodding the camera-carrying spacecraft to a course that hopefully will send it hurtling to its death into a moon crater.

A spokesman for Jet Propulsion Laboratory said the spacecraft acknowledged the signal and "apparently executed the command." But scientists said they would not know for certain if the maneuver was successful for at least 10 hours.

The rocket, carried in the case of the 800-pound craft, was ignited for 30 seconds after the spacecraft was ordered to begin a roll-turn at 4:03 a.m. when Ranger 9 was some 175,416 miles from earth and 78,000 miles from the moon moving at 2,934 miles an hour.

Last Mission

Ranger 9, last of the planned moon photographic missions, was directed to change its course by some 400 miles, aiming it directly down the funnel of the crater Alphonsus.

Because of unprecedented accuracy in the launching from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Sunday, only a 400-mile course correction was needed.

Plans called for scientists to start sending a series of commands to the spacecraft 70 minutes before firing of the steering rocket.

These commands, stored in an electronic memory unit until time for execution, ordered the winged vehicle to twist slightly and aim its nose closer to the target.

If all goes well, Ranger 9 will hit the moon early Wednesday, taking thousands of pictures of a possible landing site for future astronauts.

The 60-mile-diameter crater Alphonsus, named after a 13th century Spanish king, lies in a rugged area between the broad plains photographed by Rangers 7 and 8.

Scientists hope its 10,000-foothigh walls may have created a shelter in their lee against the rain of meteorites which have pocked the moon's plains like a shell-scarred battlefield. Some believe smoother landing sites may be found at the base of the crater's walls.

The crater also could be a danger zone. Astronomers have observed red flashes in the area which would be hot gases escaping from volcanic cracks in the lunar crust.

Craft's Impact

A spokesman for Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which built and is guiding Ranger 9, said he knew of no effort by observatories to pinpoint the spacecraft's impact. Previous attempts have been futile.

"Even if Ranger 9 were to hit an active volcanic area," he said, "there would be little likelihood of it causing any reaction visible from earth."

Best chance of finding volcanic activity will lie in study of photographs taken by the spacecraft's six cameras.

Alphonsus lies about 250 miles south of the lunar equator and 150 miles left of the moon's north-south center line.

Johnson Serious Watching Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, looking serious and rarely changing expression, sat before a television set in his office today and watched the lift-off of the two-man Gemini spaceship.

Johnson, whose viewing of the critical initial minutes of the flight also was recorded by a television camera, did not say a word to the newsmen and photographers who joined him for the occasion.

At one point, just as the capsule rose from the launching pad, Johnson showed a trace of a smile. Otherwise he frowned intently at the screen most of the time.

Ride into the Eye of History

Gemini May be a Prototype Of Space Flying Machine

BY CHARLES STAFFORD

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla (AP) — The Gemini spacecraft which astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young rode into the eye of history today was the first true flying machine to enter the space race.

In the developing history of space flight, Gemini will probably prove the counterpart of the generation of planes that came after the Wright brothers' model. Complicated in design, it functions simply.

As Gemini 3 circled the globe more than 100 miles high, Grissom kept his hand on the throttle. His flight plan called for him to maneuver the craft — to fly backward, forward, upside down and sideways, stand the craft on its tail, pitch the nose down and move laterally and up and down, to actually change his flight path. He could, if he wished, switch to an automatic pilot.

"Built for A Pilot"

The 38-year-old Air Force major, who flew the second Mercury capsule, has called Gemini a much better craft because "it was built for a pilot."

The spacecraft resembles a giant dinner bell, almost 19-feet tall with a 10-foot diameter at the base and weighing more than 7,000 pounds. It's 20 per cent larger than the Mercury capsule, shaped much like it.

In Mercury, all equipment was located in the pressurized capsule, stacked layer on layer. If a malfunction occurred prior to launch, it was a complicated piece of business to dig it out and repair it.

In Gemini, only the equipment required by the crew is located in the pressurized crew compartment. The rest is carried in bays outside the compartment. A defective piece of equipment can be pulled out quickly and replaced.

Pilot, Co-Pilot

The craft contains a life support system that supplies the crew with oxygen, insulation, a heat shield to preserve them during the searing re-entry into the earth's atmosphere, and radio systems for communication with the Gemini network.

Grissom and Young rode side by side, pilot Grissom in the left seat and copilot Young in the right. Each had a small window to look through. They faced a control panel resembling that of a light plane. Belts kept them strapped to their seats during their weightless flight.

Between their legs were triggers to eject their seats from the craft if trouble developed during liftoff or landing — much like the ejection seats in military aircraft.

The Gemini quarters are cramped, but the craft — which was developed and built by McDonnell Aircraft Corp. — is designed for a two-week mission.

The thrusters are powered by a mixture of aerozine 50 and nitrogen tetroxide, a couple of chemicals that are hypergolic, which is to say they burn when they come together. This eliminates the need for an ignition system.

By operating the engines, Grissom planned to change his craft's orbit from an elliptical path ranging from 100.05 to 149.5 miles to a more circular path ranging from 100.05 to 106.90 miles. At another point, he planned to execute a left turn and a right turn, the effect being to move his landing point 30 miles from what it would be without the maneuver.

'Gemini' Latin Name for Twins

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Gemini is the Latin word for twins and the name given to a constellation of stars whose pattern resembles two men sitting together.

The two brightest stars in the Gemini constellation — Castor and Pollux — are named after the twin sons of Zeus, the supreme god in Greek mythology.

Delirious, Dedicated Watchers Fill Beach

Ranks Witnessing Lift-Off in Florida Include Humphrey, Vacationers and Conventioneers

BY HUGH A. MULLIGAN

CAPE KENNEDY Fla. (AP) — The Russian cosmonaut who danced the kazotski in outer space may have trampled a bit on the luster of today's two-man Gemini shot, but he hardly dented the enthusiasm of Florida's delirious and dedicated bird watchers.

thousands of them, as always, jammed the roads, lined the rooftops, got their cars stuck in the sand and camped out all night on the chilly beaches to take part in America's fastest growing audience participation sport: coaxing a manned missile into orbit with prayers and cheers and gasps and sighs.

Their ranks included most of the population of Cocoa Beach, part-time home of the astronauts, vacationers and conventioneers from all the nearby resorts, college drop-outs from the beer can stacking olympics at Fort Lauderdale and Daytona Beach, retired couples with nothing better to do and just about everyone else within a 100-mile radius not directly accredited to the American space effort.

Humphrey A Witness

An added starter this time in the front row cheering section was Huberto Horatio Humphrey, a tourist down from Washington. Plans called for the vice president to witness the final countdown maneuver from mission control headquarters, then duck outside in time to see the 109-foot Titan hurl astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young out over the ocean in their cozy Molly Brown capsule.

The faithfulness of Florida's space fans transcends mere rooting for the home team and trying to overlook the Soviet Union's spectacular grandstand play of last week.

This time they really couldn't expect to see much, especially from the beach.

From a spectator viewpoint, the Gemini-Titan shot was bound to lack the incendiary excitement of previous missile launches, like last Sunday's Atlas-propelled Ranger shot, which clogged the roads with amateur birdwatchers.

No Spouting Flames

Titan, a poised and powerful performer with a shy outer nature, doesn't frost over and spout flames like the Atlas, nor does it leave a fiery tail for the eye to follow before it disappears in the clouds. Lacking any carbon in its fuel the Titan doesn't smoke at all, gives off only a rust-colored exhaust and, as it rises majestically aloft, leaves a wake of gases, all of them invisible.

From the beaches and the rooftops, the best the spectators could hope for was the sudden apparition of a silver telegraph pole being hurled into the heavens.

Still, they're always there: in deck chairs, on tops of cars, out on the fishing piers, on the motel balconies, peering into telescopes and binoculars, crowding around automobile radios and transistor sets, drawn by the emotion and excitement of another manned missile shot and the knowledge that two of ours are up there.

A New Rival

This time Cocoa Beach, traditional Florida home of the birdwatchers, has a rival. Titusville, on the north side of the cape has grown to prominence on the ever-burgeoning strength of the moon program and draws more than its share of tourists and space age migrant workers.

But by far the best observation post for the Grissom-Young flight belongs to the Air Force pilots who will chase after the missile in F4C Phantom jets to take high altitude air-to-air motion pictures of the Gemini-Titan in flight. They hope to get within two miles of the soaring silver bird for one last look before it disappears into space.

Trial Run For Series of Ten Flights

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young took their Gemini 3 spacecraft up for a trial run today to inaugurate a planned series of 10 Gemini flights, each more ambitious and dramatic than its predecessor.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration says the flights are to further develop an operational capability in space and to investigate the problems of working and living in that environment.

The agency lists these Gemini objectives:

1. Subject two men and their supporting equipment to long-duration flights of up to two weeks.

2. Achieve rendezvous and docking with another orbiting vehicle and develop efficient and reliable rendezvous techniques.

3. Maneuver the spacecraft after docking, using the target satellite propulsion system.

4. Perform extra-vehicular activities requiring the astronauts to climb out of the spacecraft for short periods of time while in orbit.

5. Provide a controlled re-entry whereby the spacecraft is brought to a specific landing area.

6. Provide training for astronauts who will fly in the Apollo man-to-the-moon program.

7. Conduct appropriate engineering and scientific experiments in support of the national space program.

No Flame From Gemini Rocket

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla (AP) — The Mercury astronauts rode into space atop a surging torrent of red-orange flame from the engines of their Atlas booster rockets.

There was no such flame today from a Titan 2 rocket.

The Titan 2 uses aerozine 50 as fuel and nitrogen tetroxide as an oxidizer. There is no flame-producing carbon and the rocket appears to rise on a column of clear, hot gases.

'Walking Blood Bank' Made Up Of 10 Sailors

Donors Available If Accident Makes Surgery Necessary

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Ten sailors picked from the crew of the USS Intrepid, prime recovery vessel for the first manned Gemini flight, are a "walking blood bank."

Dr. Howard A. Minners, astronaut flight physician and chief doctor on the Intrepid, said in advance the 10 men would give blood to the two astronauts if surgery were needed.

The volunteer donors were selected shortly after the aircraft carrier sailed from Norfolk, Va.

Dr. Minners, who examined most of the astronauts before and after the Mercury flights, would not say what blood type astronauts Air Force Maj. Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom and Navy Lt. Cmdr. John W. Young possessed.

Personal Record

"It is part of a man's personal record," said the youthful doctor who has attended three Ivy League schools.

There also were an Army and an Air Force doctor and an Air Force medical technician aboard the Intrepid.

Dr. Minners, astronaut flight physician stationed at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said getting ready for every medical emergency that could arise runs into quite a logistics problem.

For instance, 13 chests about the size of a foot locker had to be placed aboard each of 14 ship — including the aircraft carrier.

Ten of these chests contain all types of instruments and equipment needed for almost any type of operation. These probably would never be opened. Dr. accident occurred.

The other three chests were to be opened on whatever ship the astronauts were taken aboard. The first contains equipment needed for blood typing the 10 members of the walking blood bank.

Chest No. 2

The second chest to be opened in any normal recovery contains primarily the personal gear to be used by the astronauts — flight suits, sneakers, shaving soap, razor, a watch, toothbrush and toothpaste. It has some minor medical equipment, such as needed to take blood pressure.

The other chest carried the containers for blood samples and other specimens to be taken.

Dr. Minners, a native of Rockville Centre, N.Y., was graduated from Princeton University, took his medical training at Yale University and got a master's degree in public health from Harvard.

Gemini Cameras Take Motion, Still Pictures

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Two cameras were carried aboard the Gemini 3 spacecraft today — to take 16mm motion pictures and 70mm stills.

The 16mm camera is primarily to photograph the exhaust plume created by the thrust jets used to control the spacecraft.

As the spacecraft approached the west coast of the United States near the end of orbit No. 2, astronaut Virgil I. Grissom was to maneuver the capsule and select a coastal target and photograph it for later comparison with the astronauts' tape-recorded observations.

Total Gemini Program Will Cost Taxpayer $1.3 Billion

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Gemini program has cost U. S. taxpayers $1,070,900.00 to date. Before Congress is a request for an additional $242.1 million for 1966 spending, making a grand total of $1.313 billion.

This for a follow-on program to Mercury that originally was estimated at $500 million.

Mercury Mark 2

Wesley Hjornevik, Manned Spacecraft Center assistant director in charge of administration, said, "It was a bigger program than we first realized."

Robert Gilruth, Manned Spacecraft Center director, on Dec. 7, 1961, announced the new Gemini program. At that time it was called Mercury Mark 2. Gilruth said it would cost $500 million and put two men in space in the same capsule.

Just a month later, the figure was boosted to $540 million. Brainard Holmes, National Aeronautics and Space Administration official in 1963, announced "Gemini costs have been re-evaluated to $1 billion."

James E. Webb, NASA administrator, put an absolute ceiling of $1.3 billion on the soaring-cost program at the start of this year.

If Congress approves the $242.1 million amount, it puts Gemini $13 million over the ceiling set by Webb.

Hjornevik explained this. "We are just rounding off the figure to $1.3 billion," he said. He did this by not counting the $13 million, although the space agency will still get it to spend.

Unless more money is requested by the space agency for the two-man program, Gemini will have been completely funded with the appropriation it receives from Congress this year.

Fiscal years end on June 30. For example, fiscal year 1965 ends this June 30. Fiscal year 1966, when the Gemini money is scheduled to run out, will end June 30, 1966.

Space Flight Pay Comes To $37.25

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — How much would they have to pay you before you'd sit atop a mighty rocket and be blasted around the earth three times?

For some of the adventurous souls, the answer is probably — nothing, you'd do it free. For the Milquetoasts among us, the answer is also nothing — because we wouldn't get in the capsule anyway.

But for astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young, who did orbit the earth today, the answer is $1,191.33 and $1,084.43 each month respectively.

The difference in pay comes from seniority. Grissom has been a major in the Air Force two years longer than Young has been a lieutenant commander in the Navy.

The figures are military pay. Each receives $16,250 a year from a science service and magazine for "personal story rights."

Figuring that each work a 40-hour week for their pay, and their flight is five hours long, Grissom will make about $37.25 and Young $32.75 for their three-orbits around the earth.

Four Layer, Inflatable Garment

Gemini Spacesuits Are $28,000 Balloons With Men on the Inside

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A $28,000 balloon with a man in it — an over-simplification, but that's about what the space suits worn by Gemini astronauts could be called.

Need for a suit to protect the body against the hostile environment of space was first recognized by Wiley Post in 1934. With his arms stretched out straight ahead like a robot, Post in his stiff rubberized, inflatible garment broke existing altitude records.

Concept Retained

The suit worn by astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and Lt. Cmdr. John W. Young today was a scientific marvel compared to Post's crude garment. But Manned Spacecraft Center engineers feel the Gemini suit some day will be regarded as primitive as Post's is today.

Post's original concept of an inflatible garment was retained in the new Gemini suit. The latter has four layers which include thermal underwear worn next to the skin.

The second layer is rubberized nylon, then nylon to keep the shape, and an outer layer of nylon which is snag proof.

The finished product weighs 25 pounds, the helmet 4½ pounds, and costs $28,000 for each suit.

Grissom and Young have three suits each.

Each is tailor-made to the individual astronaut. To date, the Gemini space suit program has cost $3 million.

The Gemini suit differs greatly from the Mercury suit worn by Col. John H. Glenn Jr. in his flight around the earth Feb. 20, 1962.

That suit was designed more as a backup for the spacecraft's environment than for mobility or comfort.

Helmet Removable

The Gemini suit has lost that shiny, silvery look. It also is adaptable for space and the earth's atmosphere because of the ejection seat escape system.

During space flight, when the cabin is under pressurization, the helmet and gloves can be removed. Mercury's suit would not allow this freedom. The astronaut can replace these items in a minimum of time, but how he does it is classified.

Another closely guarded secret is the method used to provide mobility of the joints in the suit.

Pure oxygen, which is used for breathing and also for ventilation to keep the astronaut cool, enters at a tube at the waist. Used air exits at the waist.

The gas is distributed directly to the facial area, arms and legs and then exits. The astronaut must perspire in order to keep cool.

This compares with Mercury, where the oxygen exited through the helmet. The Gemini system eliminates any possibility of the astronaut inhaling toxic gases or body odors.

13 Tracking Stations Follow the Flight of Grissom and Young

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Thirteen tracking stations, including two ships, follow the flight of the astronauts.

The Gemini 3 spacecraft passed over them in this order: Cape Kennedy; Bermuda; Grand Canary Island; Kano, Nigeris; Tananarive, Malagasy; coastal sentry Quebec, a ship in the Indian Ocean; Caranarvon, Australia; Canton Island; Hawaii; Rose Knot Victor, a ship in the eastern Pacific; Plont Arguello, Calif.; Guaymas, Mexico, and Corpus Christi, Tex.

A giant computer center at the Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md., served as the instant data analysis and relay point for communication. More than 1,300 persons man positions at Goddard and the stations.

Escaping From Gemini Capsule Would Be Comparable to Shot Out of Cannon

Pulling 'D Ring' Until Astronaut Lands on Ground Lasts 16 Seconds

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Escaping from the Gemini spacecraft would be comparable to being shot out of a cannon.

A total of 15 seconds would elapse from the time the astronaut pulled the "D" ring until his feet touched ground about 650 feet away. And most of this time, eight seconds, would be used floating under a 28-foot parachute.

Fast-Action Getaway

This is the escape method from the spaceship while it is still standing on the pad and if a catastrophe occurs. There are two other escape plans for higher altitudes.

If the astronauts needed to escape from the capsule by ejecting, this is the sequence of the fast-action getaway.

Between each of the astronaut's legs is a metal ring, about the size of a toy wagon handle. It is called a "D" ring.

The first thing that happens is the capsule's doors fly open. A catapult worked by compressed gas starts the seat on its way. By the time the seat has cleared about three feet of rails, the astronaut is traveling 60 feet per second.

As soon as the seat clears the rails, a 7,000-pound-thrust rocket fires, propelling the seat to 130 feet per second. The astronaut, firmly strapped in so he has no mobility whatever, is hurled outwards and upwards to about 250 feet high.

By now, 1.1 seconds have elapsed. After 3.8 seconds an explosive charge has blown away the seat's back support and the parachute starts opening.

Equipment Separates

A full blossom of parachute nylon pops out at 6.5 seconds. At 8.8 seconds after pulling the "D" ring, the equipment separates from the seat, survival equipment deploys and hangs below the falling spaceman.

The chute opens at about 150 feet above the ground, which is about 50 feet higher than the spacecraft sat originally. At a descent rate of 20 feet per second, the astronaut touches ground after 15 seconds.

"It's a thrilling ride," says Kenneth F. Hecht, Manned Spacecraft Center enginner in charge of the Gemini ejection seat program, "although nobody has ever taken it."

All tests have used dummies.

It is one system that nobody wants to use, but one that has been thoroughly tested. It also has given engineers a hard time developing.

System Not Ready

Because of so many small explosive charges, manufacturers were not able to maintain high quality during production.

Hecht says frankly that if the manned flight hadn't been postponed in December for other reasons, a delay would have had to been called because the ejection seat system wouldn't have been ready.

If necessary, the ejection method was to be used up to 15,000 feet altitude for this flight, although the system has been qualified to 70,000 feet.

If an escape became necessary after 15,000 feet and between orbital insertion at 100 miles, the astronaut would fire the braking rockets, which would set the spacecraft in a landing procedure, and return it to earth using the capsule's parachute system.

Individually Tailored

To escape an orbiting spacecraft, the normal landing procedure would be used for re-entry.

The seats were individually tailored for the astronauts. Weber Aircraft Corp., system developer and designer, made precise plaster casts of each man, using X-rays to determine prominent spine position. A professional sculptor does the finished work.

The ejection seat weighs 247 pounds and contains a survival kit consisting of food, water, life raft, fishing gear, a radio transmitter, and a machete.

MODERN BLACKTOP ROADS

Gone are the days of methods whereby we dumped ungraded gravel or crushed stone on the road, squirted some road oil on it, mixed it with graders and laid it out and rolled it. This method of mixing with its guesswork of proportioning the road oil with the gravel or crushed stone resulted in too much or too little road oil in the mix, resulting in fat spots where the surface shoved and pushed or lean spots where the surface raveled.

Whether it be travel plant on the road cold or central plant hot mix, Badger Highways Co. can give you a uniformly proportioned asphalt mix so essential to the success of your village, township, county or city street or road.

Perhaps our many years of experience in the blacktop field can be helpful to you in setting up a program of blacktop roads or streets.

Call us for information and costs on your blacktop work whether it be dust oil, seal coat or a permanent asphalt surface. A representative will call at no cost to you.

To Your Good Health

Emotional Problem Can Have Physical Effects

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER M.D.

You can't be physically ill or ailing without some emotional reverberations. And you can't be emotionaly out of order without the strong risk of physical complications.

The two are mixed in all sorts of varying proportions. Sometimes an ailment may be 99 per cent physical; other times 99 per cent mental — or emotional. Let's cling to that word "emotional."

Here's a striking — and typical — example from a reader:

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 27, and five feet seven, with four children and weigh 207. I have been to three different doctors and been on diets, taken pills, had metabolism tests, and nothing works.

This is the second of a series of six articles dealing with new hope for increasing mental health, and the significant changes that are taking place in the treatment of emotional illness.

Always Eating

I eat when I'm not even hungry. My present doctor said my problem is emotional and seeing a psychiatrist would help. There are incidents in my childhood that could be factors in my emotional upset, but I am grown up now and understand the things that happened.

My husband is disgusted with my being so fat and our intimate relationship is at a cold standstill. (We got along beautifully before I started gaining this last 20 pounds.)

I still keep myself neat and try to be pleasant but it is ruining my life. My husband is ashamed to take me places.

We don't have the money for a psychiatrist and they are too far from where we live, and my husband refuses to let me see one even if I sacrifice for it. He doesn't believe in them and says that's not what's wrong anyway.

I earnestly want to lose, but when I get nervous and blue I find myself not even caring and I start to eat again. I'm just like an alcoholic on food. Is there any answer for me? — Mrs. A. R.

That young wife is no dumbbunny. Her perceptive letter vividly describes a "compulsive eater," and many a doctor has had to struggle hopelessly trying to explain that this sort of thing does happen, and that until the emotional urge to eat is relieved, the patient is — as Mrs. A. R. says — "just like an alcoholic on food."

At this distance I don't want to try to read too much into the letter; all the same I have a suspicion that if her husband would really encourage her, she might even be able to whip this problem herself.

If her doctor told the husband, himself, would he then arrange for a little psychiatric help? I would hope so. Even a very few interviews might be enough to make some progress, after which Mrs. A. R.'s regular doctor could follow things up.

Why does Mrs. A. R. get so "nervous and blue" that she goes on an eating binge? That's the heart of the problem.

And that's the sort of thing psychiatry is for — to find out why people get such moods and, in the grip of them, drink too much, or eat too much, or seek forgetfulness in drugs, or even kill themselves. Different people find different ways out.

When I say that a very few psychiatric interviews might be the turning poing in a case like this, and then the regular physician might take over, I'm not just mouthing comforting words. I mean them.

Teamwork between psychiatrists and other doctors has shown a tremendous increase.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can surgery make it possible to have a baby if years ago a person was sterilized? — Mrs. N. T.

Sometimes, depending in part on just how the sterilization was accomplished. An even then there is no assurance of success. All you can do is try it and see

Note To B. B.: No, one or two eggs are not bad for elderly people.

Grandmother's Pantry Never looked like this; neither did mother's. But the 'old fashioned' pantry of grandmother's era has taken on a 'new look' in modern homes. The room is planned close to the kitchen and contains storage space for little used items, as well as a desk, sewing center and snack area. The floor is an adaptation of an old quilt design.

Modern Pantry Provides Needed Storage Space

The old-fashioned pantry is making a noticeable comeback in the American home, and its new look is a far cry from the popular pantry of grandmother's day.

Designed to fill the need for space to store holiday decorations, punch bowl, roasting pan, turkey platter, canned goods and hundreds of items required in a household, but used infrequently, the modern pantry is a well-designed room featuring the latst effects in home furnishings.

Since very few homeowners can justify the cost of remodeling work merely to provide additional storage space, the combination of attractive interior design with functional features of adequate storage has made the concept of a pantry room very appealing.

Storage Space

Many housewives and mothers have collected ideas on how to create ample storage space in an all-purpose room, adjacent to the kitchen, that would also serve as a general headquarters. The room provides an area for mother to do her menu and party planning, sewing and ironing; and includes an eating counter for easy-to-serve lunches, breakfast and snacks; and doubles as a relaxing area for TV and cards.

The selection of a location was relatively simple. Many of the homes built in recent years have a garage or carport located adjacent to the kitchen. Converting the garage into an all-purpose room for mother has several cost-saving advantages since the basic construction and the concrete subfloor are already in place.

Two Areas Planned

In planning the room, a deliberate effort was made to create the effect of two separate areas. Storage area dominates the foreground of the room while the other half is primarily a work center close to the kitchen.

These two distinct areas of the room have been separated with feature strips in the custom designed floor. To complement the Early American theme, a quilt effect has been created in each area using a pebble design.

The traditional effect of exposed ceiling beams complements the rustic furnishings of the room and carries out the colonial theme. The beams in this ceiling are different, however, as they are part of a suspended ceiling system. This new box beam suspended ceiling consists of acoustical ceiling panels supported by a metal framework which is hung from the existing ceiling structure by wires. The beams are part of this supporting framework and are lithographed with a realistic wood graining.

Low Cost Ceiling

In addition to the decorative appeal of wood beams, the box beam ceiling retains the same practical advantages of all suspended ceilings: low cost, easy installation, immediate accessibility to pipes, ducts or wires in the space above, and adaptability to recessed lighting through the use of luminous panels.

The foreground of the room is primarily for storage of holiday decorations, over-sized platters and roasting pans and other kitchen utensils, plus canned goods, preserves, flower pots and vases. An entire wall includes storage space for all of these necessary, but infrequently used, household items.

Built-in Aids

A built-in desk for meal planning and letter writing is located in this section of the room with ample cabinets provided so cookbooks, favorite recipes and address books are near at hand. Recessed into the desk is a handy telephone with an extra long extension cord.

The rear half of the room is more of a work center, located near the kitchen, where the housewife can accomplish her daily chores with an absolute minimum of steps. This section features a counter area where breakfasts and informal meals can be readily served from the kitchen.

A sewing table and a complete set of built-in drawers for needles and threads have been located near the window to take advantage of the natural light. Nearby is an easy chair and a television set reserved for mother in case she gets a moment for some well-deserved relaxation.

Rustic Patterns

The tile floor, the acoustical ceiling and nearly all of the furnishings in this Early American pantry have been selected to reflect the current consumer interest in natural, rustic effects. In contrast to the pantries that were popular in grandmother's day, this room reflects attractive design but becomes an essential room jammed with functional conveniences designed to make the housewife's chores easier.

ANNOUNCEMENT LIST

Dear Louise: Our eldest daughter had a very large wedding and reception. The second daughter prefers a small one with only the immediate families present and an equally small breakfast. Do we send announcements and if so, to whom? Or do we send them to all of those who were invited to the former wedding?

Louise Davis Answers:

Announcements are meant to inform friends and relatives of the marriage. Your list for the wedding of your older daughter can be a good guide, but you would naturally eliminate those friends of your son-in-law's family who may not know you or your second daughter. You would then add the names submitted by your second daughter's future parents-in-law. You may wish to add new friends made since the previous wedding. With marriage announcements, there are no gift obligations, so your list may be as large as you wish, assuming that those receiving them will be interested in the news.

Astronauts' Families Follow Flight From Space Center

BY ROBERT HEARD

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Two wives faced hours of silent agony today while the world — watching just outside their window sills — helps them sweat out America's first two-man space flight.

The clutching fear any woman would feel in such circumstances must go unvoiced by Betty Grissom and Barbara Young because their children have a day off from school.

Photographers, reporters and radio and television crews converged on the neighborhood of Timber Cove, a residential area studded with oak and pine trees near the Manned Spacecraft Center.

Behind the orange door of a white brick home live the wife and children of Air Force Maj. Virgil I Grissom.

First At Center

A MSC spokesman predicted that they would be the first astronauts' families to come out of seclusion and follow a flight from a scientific center.

It is only a three-mile drive to the new $110-million Mission Control Center.

Mrs. Young's children, Sandra, 7, and John Jr., 6, are too young to fully comprehend the Gemini project which has kept their father away from home for all but 10 days in the last 10 months.

Mrs. Grissom's children, Scott, 14, and Mark, 11, think a lot of dad, but their hero is said to be race car driver A. J. Foyt of Houston.

Apparently they feel Foyt's profession is a more dangerous one.

Mrs. Grissom saved hundreds of trading stamps for pasting into books today.

Mrs. Young had not disclosed what she would do to make the time pass.

Stayed With Friends

Mrs. Grissom went to the home of her next door neighbor, Jo Schirra, wife of Navy Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra, by way of a hole in the back yard fence Oct. 3, 1962, when Schirra was on his nine-hour Mercury flight.

The visit went undetected by newsmen massed in front of the Schirra home. Mrs. Schirra may have planned to return the favor today.

Mrs. Grissom is a brown-haired, soft-spoken daughter of Claude Moore of Mitchell, Ind. She had her first date with Grissom when she was 14.

Mrs. Young is slightly freckled and has an enthusiastic smile. She is the former Barbara White of Savannah, Ga. Her husband has described her as "a good Navy wife."

She is a biking fan, as are the other members of the family. They have four bicycles.

Parents Face Real Challenge

Parenthood is a career. It's main purpose is the raising of intelligent, ethically grounded citizens for tomorrow. Like the dictionary of career, it is really a profession demanding special preparation and undertaken as a life work. But it's often underrated.

Just as it has in every imaginable area of life today, scoence has contributed to the understanding of family relationships. Yet, thils wealth of helpful information is often not recognized or used by those who need it most. Parents need to understand that it's no longer enough to rely on their own growing-up experiences to raise children. Now there's so very much more that parents can give to their roles.

Dad's Role

Father's place in the family is clearer to youngsters if he is a real teacher, decision-maker and leader. And he can make togetherness more than a trite idea by setting aside a special family time each week.

Mothers may work outside the home if they wish. But it's best if they give careful thought to family obligations first. Children must always know that they come first with their mothers. And preschoolers especially need her presence. The working mother needs to give children real attention and interest during the limited time she has with them.

The very best efforts are required of all who enjoy the privilege of parenthood. The home that mothers and fathers make is the atmosphere in which important human personalities develop.

Parents can understand their own families better if they do try to learn some of what science has to say about child development and family relationships. An objective look at the family may be difficult, but the benefits would be immeasurable. Parents might particularly look for the presence or lack of mutual respect. If it's not there, perhaps it's not being earned.

Pop-Op Beauty Latest Fad in Artful Wiles

BY JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — When Audrey closed her left eye a swirl of lines drawn on the lid converged into a weird, hypnotic second eyeball. Her right eyelid was plaid and her cherry red lips were outlined in black.

Not at all a clown, the comely model was wearing pop-op party makeup.

When she shifted her shapely legs two painted eyes, one on each knee, ogled back at the leg-watchers. Seated at her feet, William Loew, makeup director for Charles of the Ritz, tediously labeled one eye "Stop" and the other "Go," then sealed this literal leg art with a cloud of powder.

It's absolutely the latest in pop-op beauty. Well, maybe.

Being on top of what is "absolutely the latest" is not easy because the beauty and fashion industries are rushing their adaptations of the current art vogue to market at lightning lightning speed. They have to move fast, lest the fad fade into pure folly as quickly as it exploded onto the fashion scene.

Pop, say some art critics, is an artful spoof. Op is visual trickery. When it is hard to draw the line between what is op and what is pop, they call it "pop-op."

Pop was first to pop into fashion, but op was only a quivery line away. Setting a climate for a silly style season. American fashion designers uninhibitedly borrowed for their summer collections the output of pop advocates like Andy Warhol and Roy Lichtenstein.

Instead of needles, they used paint brushes to put collars, ties, belts, buttons and vests onto dresses; they even drew on watch fobs and corsages.

Pointed Jewelry

Kenneth Lane and other avant-garde costume jewelry makers did their spoofing with beads the size of doorknobs and rings as big as pin-pong balls. Dr Seuss-type animals curled around arms as bracelets. Opaque sun glasses turned the wearers into blank-eyed orphan Annies.

Loew, looked upon by many as the founder of op leg art, calls the whole movement in fashion "a tool of the modern woman's total originality, a part of her new status as a cerebral woman.

"Her audacious wit expresses her new confidence, her new security," he says. She no longer needs to rely on the false competitiveness of sex appeal, pretending she doesn't have an ounce of brains in her head."

Almost everyone in the field agrees that op, pop, or pop-ops are frankly impractical; strictly for fun, and destined to disappear by fall — at least from the fashion field.

If it does, another art form may fill the void, for the fashion industry has trained its eye on the art world.

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

No, say their defenders. Hospitals often must restrict their patients. Those who have suicidal tendencies may have to be strictly watched and confined. Those who tear at their sores may have to have their hands tied. Some patients violate important hospital rules in ways that could be harmful to themselves and others. A hospital staff may be overworked, but it usually does what it can to carry out doctors' orders in the best interests of all the patients.

Should a boy "pre-test" his marital virility?

Yes—— No——

No. Before marriage, many a young fellow is afraid of being inadequate and fears that he may not measure up as a man. So, he tries to prove his powers in ways that only increase his questions about himself. He takes an "easy make" and feels let down, or he finds himself unable to awaken an inexperienced girl with his clumsiness. Either way he is left feeling more inadequate than ever. Learning how to love a partner deeply and fully before becoming intimate protects both the fellow and the girl from many feelings of self-doubt.

The subject of love is explored morre fully in the plain-talk booklet, "What Teen-agers Should Know about Life and Love." It's yours for 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to this column, care of the Post-Crescent.

Monotonous Meals Cause for Divorce

BY HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Any wife who serves her husband the same breakfast seven days in a row should be sued for divorce. When the meals get monotonous, so does the marriage — and vice versa.

Everybody ought to listen to a good opera once a year — whether he really needs to or not.

When you get right down to it, the big difference between teenagers and middle-agers is — 30 pounds and 30 years.

Male gamblers at a racetrack rarely bet on gray horses. Then they get very angry if a woman companion with them bets on one and wins.

Muggers are getting more sleep lately. Manhattan streets are so bare after midnight that it's hardly worth a fellow's time to stay up late looking for someone to rob.

The surest way to keep from getting promoted in an office is to get a reputation for missing work on Fridays or Mondays.

The worst decision ever made at City Hall here is the one banning hurdy gurdies from the streets. Their merry music still is missed in the daily turmoil of the metropolis.

Pick In Purse

The odds are better than even that the next woman over 50 you meet will have a toothpick in her purse.

A woman who has had triplets sation lacks a subject of conversation the rest of her life.

Girls with frizzy or tight-curled hair always let you kiss them good night on the first date. Try this and see for yourself.

What this country needs more than a good five-cent cigar is fewer two-bit intellectual frauds. In his day, H. L. Mencken used to nail their scalps to the barn door, but since his passing no one has arisen quite so adept as he at exposing avant-garde quacks in art, literature and music.

The guy who always has time to stop and give you advice never seems able to spare a moment to lend you a helping hand.

The shoptalk of Gypsies is more interesting than that of bankers. But it's about the same thing — money.

Men are really better spellers than women. Doubt it? Then the next time your wife sends you to the supermarket, look at the list she hands you. If it has more than six items, one of them probably will be spelled wrong.

Women, more than men, judge the value of things by their price tags. If salted peanuts sold for $1 apiece, girls would prefer them to caviar.

American Men Add Color to Clothing

NEW YORK — The drab-dressing American male is finally starting to jazz up his wardrobe with bright colors.

Only trouble is, he's still half-conservative to a point where bright colors are mostly on the inside.

One of the nation's leading producers of knitted deep pile reports a definite trend towards greater use of colorful pile linings for men's rainwear and sportswear in 1965. Manufacturers began turning out men's garments lined with bright reds, yellows, blues and the like last year.

But the new color interest is going to be more than a one season trend. Color allows men to express themselves forcefully. They like to wear strong colors, and bright linings are a step forward. Men are beginning to learn that they can safely venture into the business world or the world of leisure in clothes that are bright and cheerful.

Ladies Like Color

The American woman has been a big help in getting men to break the color barrier. When women accompany men into clothing stores, it is reported, they are the ones who usually suggest a color more exciting than the usual brown, black or navy.

Women writers, among them syndicated financial columnist Sylvia Porter, have boarded the color bandwagon, and "are fascinated by the picture of a more colorful male."

And he certainly will be more colorful. Now he has taken that all important half-step and is wearing vivid colors in the inside, it's only a matter of time before his outerwear reflects this new color acceptance. It's already being seen in deep-pile skiwear which is extremely popular in very bright shades.

Basic Coat

But bright colors are not the only reasons for the attention pile liners have been receiving. The raincoat with a zip-out pile lining has now become a "must" for many college men, and a should have for the remainder.

A College Wardrobe Guide for 1965-1966, based on a nationwide survey of college outfitters and college students, points out that a raincoat with a zip-in warmer is an essential part of the basic wardrobe of students in the Northeast, Southeast, South, Midwest, Southwest, and on the West coast.

The college trend is, of course, understandable. In most parts of the country, weighty overcoats usually are of little use between April and October. However, a raincoat is necessary twelve months of the year. And if it has a zip-out pile lining, the raincoat has extra-duty values: not only is it a protection against the rain, but it is warm enough for the coldest days and, with the lining removed, ideal for the mild spring weather.

Outer Fur

Pile linings in the new bright colors and in the traditionally conservative blacks and olives are featured in other popular fashions. Ski parkas, storm coats, duffle coats, golf jackets, stadium coats, car coats, and other casual outerwear are now all made with removable pile linings.

Furthermore, pile fabrics will be seen on the outside as well as on the inside. The country's top men's wear designers have introduced another new trend for fall, '65, the fur look. For the first time, they are using pile on the shell of garments, ans soon men will be wearing coats that look like otter, broadtail, lamb, and other furry animals.

From a fashion standpoint, there really hasn't been anything as exciting as the "fur" look in men's clothes for years.

Opening lead — ♡ Q

West opens the queen of hearts and continues with the jack, forcing South to ruff. This defense is fine for South, since West would defeat the contract by opening the ace of trumps followed by a low trump. South would be able to ruff only one diamond in the dummy and would therefore lose one trick in each suit.

South leads out the ace and king of diamonds, ruffs a diamond with dummy's deuce of spades, gets back with the ace of clubs to ruff his last diamond in dummy and then leads the jack of spades. West refuses this trick.

South carefully leads a club from dummy and ruffs the heart return. Now he leads the king of spades to force out the ace. South can ruff any return and draw the last trump, making his contract.

East missed his chance to give South an earful. When South leads the ace of diamonds, East should drop the ten. South continues with the king of diamonds and East follows with the four.

Convinced that East started with only two diamonds, South ruffs a diamond in dummy with the ten. He gets back with the ace of clubs to ruff his last diamond with dummy's jack of spades. But now West is sure to get two trump tricks, and the contract is defeated.

Whenever you are defending, remember that declarer is watching your signals. If you have nothing to say to your partner don't miss the chance to say something juicy to your opponent.

Daily Question

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold S—3, H—A 10 9 8 3, D—10 7 4, C—Q 10 4 3. What do you say?

Answer: Bid four hearts. This shows strong trump support (usually of five or more cards), a singleton or void suit, and no more than 9 points in high cards.

The Ailing House

Moisture Creates Deep Stain

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: We had a problem with condensation on our window and the varnished window sash and sills are badly stained. We installed fans in the kitchen and bathrooms, and this has solved the problem. Now, how can we remove the black stains on the woodwork and refinish?

A: If there is a lot of stained woodwork, best to remove all the present varnish down to the bare wood. If discolored areas are limited, just remove the varnish in the affected places. Use a prepared varnish remover, following label instructions carefully.

Then apply a prepared wood bleach to the black stains, also according to label directions. If the treated spots become lighter than the surrounding wood, touch up with matching wood stain. Apply top quality water-clear varnish to dry, smooth wood surface.

Q: I have some beautiful prints which were folded. Now that I want to frame them, is there any way I could remove the creases?

A: I certainly don't guarantee results, but the following method is well worth trying. You don't say what type of prints. If they are water colors, or pastels, this won't work at all. Moisten with a damp sponge or cloth. Then press on the wrong side with a warm iron, over a protective clean white cloth.

'Pop Art' Area Rug Sets Living Room Theme

Newlyweds who can't afford the best of everything—but who are determined to have the best of something—may satisfy both their common sense and their demanding young senses by saving a certain sum into a sumptuous carpet, topping it with a glorious art-on-the-floor area rug, and letting their ingenuity stretch what may be left of their budget. A designer demonstrates the feasibility of such a decorating plan in a floor-furnished room that is eloquent with color and individuality. The sumptuous carpet (which will of course be sat on by the floor-sitting young) is deep soft all-wool.

The area rug is a wildly wonderful bouquet of terribly simple flowers in terribly sophisticated clashing colors. A pair of chairs and a generous low table are made of birch hollow-core pylwood doors, sanded and waxed, within the realm of a handy husband's furniture-making skills. Foam-rubber-filled loose cushions of brilliant orange for the chairs are a minor challenge to the bride's abilities as a seamstress. Another pair of cushions, one orange, one chrome yellow, add more young seating. The same vivid chrome yellow sings out as it covers one wall in a smashing plane of color, and a window wall is hung for quiet contrast with sheerly-textured white.

Costumes Big in Fashion

Costumes continue to make a big impression on fashion. The ensemble idea, a suit-and-blouse or coat-and-dress, has endeared itself for many reasons. Doubtless the main attraction is the put-together look that it instantly offers.

Another winning feature about costumes is their versatility. The secondary part — the dress or blouse — now has style and finish, so that it can be worn independently. Thus one costume sub-divides into several changes.

Just coming onto the scene, the costume with a long coat, matching skirt and harmonizing blouse, is sure to gain popularity. For it could be the pivotal point of a capsule wardrobe.

Compatible Dress

The combination stands in for a suit and a coat to begin with. Add a compatible dress, and you have two complete ensembles as well as a variety of parts to wear separately.

There's a trick, however, to making an addition: Be sure to key its color to that of the lining in the costume's jacket or coat. It need not match, but it must be related. For example, a coat lined in navy would relate to a navy and red print dress. A print lining calls for mating with a solid color, one that picks up some shade in the print.

Colors, otherwise combined, destroy the costume look. And that would be a pity. For women-on-the-go a costume obviously solves the riddle of being well-dressed without the care and cost that attend a large wardrobe. Its value is one to bank on!

Your Problems

Writer's Intentions Reiterated In Clearer Language for Ann

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing to say I believe you did me an injustice. I signed my letter Austin Heartache thinking surely you would be discreet and not use that signature. Well, my telephone has not stopped ringing since that letter appeared.

I am the mother of the adopted daughter who is being left out of her Aunt's will. My son, however, and another niece are going to inherit the bulk of a large estate. I wrote to ask if I should speak to my sister about this. You said "An inheritance is a gift and your sister does not owe your daughter anything." Then you added, "You sound a little money-hungry to me, Lady."

Believe me, I do not give a hang about the money. I am just concerned that my daughter will be awfully hurt. Adopted children are often sensitive about being adopted, especially if there is a flesh and blood brother or sister in the family. All I want is to spare my daughter the pain of being discriminated against. Mrs. Austin Again

Dear Mrs. Austin: I apologize for using the signature which revealed your identity. I had the strong feeling that you wanted me to print it. When readers ask me to withhold the name of the city or state I always do so.

You may be pleased to know that several hundred people wrote in to take your side. They said you did not sound money-hungry at all—that it seemed clear your major concern was protection of the feelings of the adopted girl.

Since your second letter finally makes your motives clear to me I have a different word of advice to offer. Tell your sister that you would like her to treat your children equally, and that if she does not wish to leave your daughter an inheritance she should not leave your son anything.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 19-year-old girl who is madly in love with a handsome fellow. He is also 19.

We have been going steady for six months and I was sure he loved me as much as I love him. Last week, for no reason, he suggested that we knock off the steady arrangement.

I asked why. He replied, "You should go with other fellows to see if you are as madly in love with me as you think."

I don't want to go with anyone else, Ann. He is the one I love and there are no doubts in my mind. I am heartsick and cannot figure him out. Please help me.—Not So Peachy in Georgia

Dear Not Peachy: Someone should produce a dictionary and define the real meaning of certain phrases. For example: When a fellow says, "I think you should go out with other fellows to see if you are as madly in love with me as you think," he means: "I would like to go with other girls because I'm not sure About my feelings for you."

Don't fight it. If your romance can't stand the test, be thankful you learned the truth before it was too late.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My problem is minor compared to the heart-breakers that others write to you about, but it is a continuing source of irritation.

I live in an apartment house. During the winter my next door neighbor drapes her children's damp coats, jackets, mittens, socks—and even her husband's work jacket and trousers—over the railing in the hall.

When guests come to our place, I am terribly self-conscious. It gives our corridor the appearance of a tenement house. Besides, my guests have no way of knowing that the clothing doesn't belong to us.

I always hang wet garments in the bathroom until they are dry and can be hung in the closet. How can I get neighbors to do this too, without causing friction?—Syracuse

Dear Syracuse: The corridors of an apartment building belong to all the tenants. One family should not be permitted to spoil the appearance of the corridor for the others. Try your complaint out on the manager of the building. It's his responsibility.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help your with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Board Authorizes Hiring 20 More Appleton Teachers

Spears Says Extra Staff Needed To Keep Proper Classroom Ration

Although the 1965-'66 operating budget provides for only eight additional teachers, the Appleton Joint District School Board Monday night authorized the hiring of at least 20 teachers and possible 23 to meet actual needs.

William Spears, superintendent of schools, told the board additional enrollments make the additions necessary to hold the teacher-pupil ratio at a workable level.

While pointing to the impact of the additional staff on the next budget, Roy Whitney, board member, commented, "There is no alternative."

The divergence between estimates and actual needs was placed partly because so many more people are moving into Appleton, and because St. Thomas More Parochial School will not be able to handle all of the pupils transferring from St. Therese School. More than 100 enrollments have been received for the Huntley School.

Nine more teachers will be needed to staff the new Einstein School and the other three junior highs. Elementary enrollments are expected to be up from 275 to 300 pupils, necessitating 10 additional teachers.

High School Needs

High school enrollments are expected to increase by 50. At least one more teacher will be needed in the English department while the art, physical education and vocal music departments have indicated the need for one additional traveling teacher each.

It appears that the operating budget will have sufficient funds to pay the additional salaries from September through December. Resignations in higher salary brackets have been replaced by starting teachers, effecting a saving. It may be necessary to delay work on the Roosevelt gymnasium floor and transfer the budgeted $5,000 to the operating budget, Spears said.

Four resignations were accepted by the board, effective at the end of the school year. They include Mrs. Patricia Seybold, physical education teacher at Madison Junior High, and three elementary teachers, Mrs. Elizabeth Gill at Huntley, Miss Sandra Holzinger at Edison and Miss Maralyn Niendorf at Foster.

12 New Contracts

Contracts for 12 teachers were approved, mostly at step one of the salary scale. At the elementary level they include Miss Barbara Bukar, a Neenah native; Miss Bonnie Curtis, Miss Betty Haack, Miss Susan Hendricks, Mrs. Patricia Rasmussen from New London, Miss Susan Shaw and Gary L. Woodward. Mrs. Loretta Pfefferle was named a half-time teacher.

George L. Loudenslager was named to teach science and mathematics at Wilson Junior High while Miss Susan M. Fenske will teach mathematics and Larry L. Ballwahn social studies, both at Einstein Junior High. Miss Sandra Schultz, an Appleton native who will graduate from the University of Wisconsin, was appointed a speech therapist.

Gene Britton, who has served as guidance counselor at Wilson Junior High School for a number of years, was named assistant principal at Einstein Junior High.

An additional year leave of

School Board Praises AHS 'Five,' Students

Commendation o fthe Appleton High School basketball team, which competed in the state tournament in Madison after winning conference and sectional titles, its coaches and student body, was voted by the Appleton Board of Education Monday night.

Roy Whitney indicated the commendation wasn't so much the won and lost record, but the sportsmanship, deportment and general demeanor displayed not only by the team and the coaches, but by the student body which attended the tourney as well.

"I told (Coach) Dick Emanuel he could have quite a few losing seasons as far as I was concerned," Mrs. George C. Munro, board president, said. She explained her comment was not in reference to the basketball record, but to his record as a mathematics instructor.

Supt. William Spears commended the cast of "South Pacific," after watching the dress rehearsal. "They are doing a professional job with some really outstanding voices."

Seven Candidates Seek Four Offices At Little Chute

LITTLE CHUTE—A fifth candidate for village trustee took out and filed nomination papers before deadline Friday thus assuring considerable interest in the April 6 election, according to Gerald Locy, village clerk.

Major race will be for the office of village president and county supervisor where incumbent Paul Kostka is being opposed by Edward Spierings, a present trustee.

The five candidates for trustee include Lloyd Vanden Heuvel and Clyde Van Dynhoven, newcomers, and incumbents, Jack Lamers, Patrick Blohm and Robert Vanden Boogart.

Locy reminds persons planning to vote, they must be registered in the clerk's office and those not yet registered have until 5 p.m. Wednesday to sign for voting. Absentee ballots are to be available next week.

Residents of School District No. 2 will vote for village officers at the village hall and then will be provided with printed ballots on which to vote for school board members.

Board Tells Financing Plan

Little Chute Unit Reports Special Corporation Can Help District Build School

LITTLE CHUTE — The board of education Monday night explained to a group of citizens the makeup of a school corporation that could be formed as an effort to increase the school district's borrowing power.

The school board must find financing for the construction of a high school by September, 1966, and feels the village's borrowing limit is inadequate to meet construction costs.

Approval of the school corporation plan would have to be given at a special public meeting of the school board or by a referendum.

State statutes limit borrowing power of a school district, without a high school, to 5 per cent of the equalized value. The Little Chute district equalized value is roughly $16,000,000 so $800,000 would be the limit. Existing debt of about $175,000 would reduce the limit to $625,000.

This amount, with an additional $240,000 in reserve, would give the district about $865,000 for constructing and equipping a high school for 500 students, according to treasurer Michael Kons. Architects say this would be inadequate.

State Loan

A bonding firm suggested formation of a school corporation, Kons said, which would enable the village to secure a $500,000 state loan with interest of 3.25 per cent and then borrow the remaining capital needed from a bonding company at an interest rate of 4.25 to 4.50 per cent.

This would enable the district to exceed the 5 per cent limit and borrow funds to construct a school. After the school was built, the village could borrow up to 10 per cent, and with this bonded debt limit could float a loan to repay the bonding company.

No Referendum

Another advantage of a corporation would be to eliminate the need for a referendum on borrowing money. At present, a referendum would be needed prior to issuing bonds. A school corporation, set up at a public meeting of the district, could borrow money without a referendum.

A representative of the architectural firm designing the high school explained preliminary sketches. The school, designed for 500 students, would be rectangular, of compact design and constructed into a hill.

Democrats Back Rights Legislation

Outagamie Party Plans to Get Out Vote for Heffernan

Proposed federal voting rights legislation won unanimous endorsement Monday night at the first meeting of the Outagamie County Democratic Party's executive committee.

Meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert Taylor, 1018 N. Leminwah St., the committee also complimented President Lyndon Johnson "for his historic address" urging federal voting rights legislation and planned a get-out-the-vote campaign for the election of Supreme Court Justice Nathan Heffernan in the April statewide judicial election.

The committee made plans for another meeting on April 21 when James Durand Madison, field director for the Wisconsin Democratic Party, will meet with them to discuss the May "Jefferson-Jackson Day" dinner, programming, financing, membership, district and state conventions, plus local and headquarters matters.

Members of the executive committee are chairman Lester Bailliet, Appleton; First District vice chairman James Dana, Appleton; Second District vice chairman Joseph Promer, Kaukauna; Third District vice chairman Dr. Marvin Kagen, Appleton; finance chairman William Cherkasky, Appleton, and Mrs. Taylor, membership chairman.

Grand Chute Residents May Get Refuse, Garbage Pickups

Voters to Decide on Proposal At April's Annual Town Meeting

Town of Grand Chute residents may be relieved of garbage and refuse disposal problems in the near future.

As a result of numerous demands from town residents that the town provide municipal refuse pickup, Town Chairman, Arthur Lecker, had an Appleton firm prepare a proposed collection service plan.

Lecker will present the plan prepared by Refuse Service, Inc., 2309 S. Carlton Ave. at the annual town meeting April 6.

Five-Year Contract

Under the plan, the company would provide refuse collection service for all town residents at a cost of $14,096 per year. The annual cost would be based on the number of commercial and family units in the town. The base cost would be 85 cents per month per unit or family, or $1,174.70 per month for the town, based on present census figures. The service will be paid for from town revenues.

The company recommends a five-year contract.

At present, approximately 500 residents pay $2 per month to a private collector to have their trash removed, while the remaining residents haul trash to the own dump.

The town dump is open Thursdays until noon and Saturdays fro m8 a.m. to 5 p.m. A town employe is responsible for maintaining the dump and burning the refuse.

Lecker said the town could save approximately $1,000 per year if it adopts the collection service plan. He added that $250 to $300 per year could be saved on fire calls alone, pointing out that grass fires each summer are caused by sparks from trash being burned in backyards.

Lecker said the present system results in polluted air throughout the town, angry housewives whose laundry is soiled by neighbors burning trash, and inefficient disposal of refuse.

The company estimates it would take two men, hired from the local labor market, approximately 3½ days per week to collect all the town's refuse.

The company would provide the necessary equipment, personnel, pay all the insurance, and maintain the equipment.

Lecker said there may be some opposition from several town farmers, but he was not sure.

He noted that as the town grows, residents "demand better municipal services, and rightly so. He also said the town is studying ways to provide better police protection.

Lecker is being opposed in this year's election by Thomas Thorson, 2915 N. Morrison St.

Legal Advice On Bargaining Agent Sought

Board Won't Act on AEA Request After Formation of AFT

Faced with the announcement of formal organization of a local of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) among members of the Appleton public school faculty, the Appleton Joint School District Board of Education Monday night decided to seek legal advice before taking action on a request that the Appleton Education Association (AEA) be recognized as the legal bargaining agent for all of the teachers in the school system.

At the March 8 board meeting the AEA asked to be recognized as the exclusive negotiating representative on questions of wages, hours and conditions of employment for all non-supervisory certificated teaching personnel in accordance with provisions of the state statutes.

Formal notification of the formation of the AFT local was contained in three letters to the board, all of which anticipated cordial relations in working on mutual problems. One came

Officers Listed For Federation Of Teachers

Officers of the newly chartered Appleton local of the American Federation of Teachers are Robert Kohls, social studies teacher at Appleton Senior High, president; Gordon Braun, social studies teacher at James Madison Junior High, vice president; Barry Bauschek, Appleton Senior High social studies teacher, secretary; and James Bastian, also an Appleton Senior High social studies teacher, treasurer.

Kohls said that membership, welfare-salary and other committees are being formed. Monthly meetings of the membership will be held but no official date has been set.

Officers were elected at a March 10 meeting.

Some dissatisfaction with the salary schedule adopted by the school board in February has been voiced by both members of the AFT and of the Appleton Education Association which on March 8 asked the board for official designation as bargaining representative for all Appleton teachers.

Woman Suffers Burns When Putty Knife Hits Electrical Outlet

An Appleton woman was burned in a freak accident at her home which occurred when she accidentally jammed a putty knife into an electrical outlet, causing an electrical spark, which in turn set fire to paint remover and varnish fumes.

Mrs. Leon Hoover, 508 N. Drew St., received burns to an arm, her face and hair, but was not hospitalized.

She told firemen she was removing old paint when the putty knife she was using jammed into the electrical outlet. Firemen were called to the home about 10 a.m. and used hand extinguishers to put out the flames.

Fire authorities said Mrs. Hoover's home address was traced by an alert telephone operator after Mrs. Hoover hung up the telephone before giving the location.

Officials Question Intentions Of Airline After Port Closing

Chamber, Outagamie Officials Want Answers on Service Plans

Outagamie County and Appleton Chamber of Commerce authorities are trying to determine if North Central Airlines officials intend to suspend service to Outagamie County when the old airport is closed in April.

Letters, requesting an answer, have been written to North Central President Hal N. Carr by County Corporation Counsel A. W. Ponath, Chamber Air Service Committee Chairman Karl P. Baldwin and Chamber Acting Executive Secretary Louis Micheln.

County authorities have notified the airline that they plan to open the new Outagamie airport in the Town of Greenville on Saturday, April 24 and to close the old airport on the same date, or on the date the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) approves the shift of operations from the old airport to the new, whichever date comes later.

"Status Quo"

The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) has ruled the "status quo" must stay in effect until after the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago rules on appeals to CAB recommendations on area airport consolidation.

Under its "status quo" ruling, the CAB supported a North Central request that service to the Fox Cities be continued at the old Outagamie airport until after the court decision, not expected until late this year.

North Central has announced that if Outagamie County closes its old airport before the federal court disposes of the appeal on the order to combine Fox Cities service with Oshkosh service at the Winnebago County Airport, it would suspend air service to Fox Cities.

In their letters to Carr, Baldwin and Micheln asked:

"1. Will North Central Airlines move its operations from the old to the new Outagamie County Airport on April 24, 1965, the date of its official opening, or within a reasonable time before or after that date, and continue to serve this area from the new airport at least during the duration of the so-called status quo stay order?

"2. Assuming that Outagamie County should either withdraw or lose its appeal to the federal courts, is there any reasonable opportunity that North Central Airlines might change its policy and seek CAB approval to continuing air service at the new Outagamie County Airport?"

The letter said, "We believe that this Chamber of Commerce is entitled to this information, as many of its members are vitally interested in the continuation of air service to this community and depending upon the above answers, we stand willing and able to support either the new urban carrier, 'Air Wisconsin,' or North Central."

Baldwin is president of Air Wisconsin, the new urban airline which announced its formation on Friday, March 12, the same day county officials announced they would close the old airport.

The new urban (or third level) airline has plans to

'South Pacific' Creates An Enchanted Evening

Appleton High Players Can be Proud of Production of Rogers, Hammerstein Classic

BY H. L. ZILLMER

"Some enchanted evening" is a refrain which might be applied to the Appleton Senior High School production of "South Pacific." This play, which reveals the talents of Rodgers and Hammerstein at their best, has all the verve, glow and melody which make great musical comedy entertainment. The Appleton Senior High players can be proud of the level of their production of this classic.

The music of the orchestra provided the proper atmosphere and mood. The costumes and makeup fitted well into the colorful scenery so necessary for this show. Although this fast paced play requires 12 sets and twice that number of set changes, the design of the sets provided the proper environment and also changed easily into new scenes. The use of painted drops was especially effective.

Into this technical environment, which would have done justice to any production of this play, the actors attempted to build believable characters with only partial success. The ensemble scenes, particularly with the Seabees on the beach, were quite successful.

Bloody Mary

The choreography of the ensemble efforts was intelligently planned. Bloody Mary was at her rollicking best, carrying both her singing assignments and her acting presentations to a high degree of perfection. The two lead roles were valiantly done.

Because these two roles are so well known, both as to the songs and as to the personalities of the Broadway actors who carried these roles so magnificently, it is doubtful if anyone could match the images one carries about in his memory concerning Ensign Nellie Forbush and Emile de Becque.

The presentations of Lynda Reynolds and Garry Bruch were certainly worthy of applause for, on the whole, they performed very well when one considers their ages and experienc. In general, however, the group scenes were better carried than the solo scenes.

Because of the immature voices of most of the singers it

Sign of the Times?

Appleton Reaction to Gemini Flight Lacks Thrill of Shepard's Jaunt

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Star Staff Writer

A sign of the times?

Two Americans were in outer space this morning but meanwhile back in the Fox Cities

—Some housewives were bored by the whole bit after the spacecraft took off.

—The pre-school kids were wailing because they had to miss morning cartoons.

—Department store television sets were turned on but no one was watching the recording of another chapter in space history.

—In restaurants and other public places there was little conversation about the 18th and 19th men who rocketed into space.

Cartoon Time!

—Sandwiched in between film and commentary on the progress of the two-man Gemini flight, one television network switched its programming to a 15-minute segment of "Twinkles," a popular kiddies cartoon.

All was in marked contrast to the electric-like excitement that captured the full attention and emotions of Appleton residents when U.S. Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. became the first American to blast off into space on May 5, 1961.

Could it be that four years later the thrusting of two Americans into space had become blase to the local populace?

At random telephone interviews produced varied reaction to today's "space Spectacular". For example, one housewife said she would be glad when the flight was over. "It does get pretty boreing listening to the same thing," she added.

Another admitted to viewing the blast-off on TV earlier in the morning but she turned it off "because the kids got tired of watching it".

'Very Interesting'

A Combined Locks housewife said she hadn't been glued to the television, as in years past when the astronauts showed their stuff, but she found today's exploit "very interesting".

"I think this flight is more exciting than the rest because this is a manual flight," was the exception, rather than the rule, observation of a Neenah woman.

An Appleton man said he was viewing TV most of the morning but found it to be "not too interesting". He volunteered the comment that he liked to watch all the space flights.

"The flight doesn't seem to be as exciting as the others in the past" added another housewife." This time I turned the TV off to make dinner."

And, so it appeared that men in space is getting to be "old hat" in the soaring sixties.

But everyone shared one thing in common. They expressed no doubt about the outcome of the flight — it would be successful.

Two guys looking down on them from 140 miles above the earth hoped so, too.

Parakeet, Dog Rescued Too

Two Youths, 11 and 10, Lead Their Two Brothers, Two Sisters from Burning Appleton Residence

Two Appleton youths, students at Lincoln School, quickly dressed their four brothers and sisters, gathered up a parakeet and cage and put a leash on their dog this morning before abandoning their burning home and seeking shelter with a neighbor.

The youths, William, 11, and Robert, 10, sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Row, 1734 N. Mason St., are credited with saving the lives of their brothers and sisters with whom they had been entrusted when their father went to work and while they waited for their mother to come home from her all-night job.

Appleton firemen were called to the Row home shortly after 7 a.m. when flames broke out in the upstairs bedroom and spread quickly into two other bedrooms. Flames severely damaged the upstairs and smoke and water damage was reported in the downstairs.

The boys' father, who had left for work after eating breakfast with his oldest sons, said William noticed the smoke and haze when he went upstairs shortly after the father left for work.

Dress Smaller Children

William then went downstairs, and asked his brother Robert, to help dress sisters Cindy, 7, and Deborah, 3, and their brothers David, 6, and Tommy, an infant.

Quickly the two boys then dismantled a parakeet cage and put a leash on "Baby," a large boxer dog.

The six young children then went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Timmerman, 1231 Parkway Blvd., immediate neighbors, and asked politely if they could come in the house "because our house is on fire." Mrs. Row arrived at her home about 10 minutes after the fire broke out and was told her children were safe.

Mrs. Timmerman called the Appleton Fire Department

St. Mary Sisters to Mark Diamond Jubilee

Home-School Members Set June 2 Dinner; Seek Memorabilia to Assist in Celebration

The 75th teaching anniversary of the Sisters of St. Dominic of Sinsinawa at St. Mary Catholic Church will be observed at a diamond jubilee dinner June 2 sponsored by the St. Mary's Home-School Association.

Sisters Faelon and Maura are researching the Dominican Order archives for data to be used in preparing a commemorative brochure. However, they are interested in hearing from the older parishioners, or former members of the parish who might have any memorabilia of the past, including pictures, mementos and personal recollections. The sisters can be contacted at St. Mary's convent.

St. Mary's is the oldest Catholic parish in Appleton. The first mass was said in 1848 while the first pastor was assigned in 1860 when the parish was officially created.

The first school was constructed in 1864 but was discontinued shortly thereafter. It was reopened in 1870. A new school was built in 1888 and opened in 1889, according to early records. The Dominican Sisters began their uninterrupted teaching assignment at the school in 1930. The 1888 school was razed in 1952 when the present structure was built.

Appleton Okays Expanded Summer School Program

Starting Date One Week Later to Avoid Conflict With Bible Classes

An expanded summer school program with a later starting date was approved Monday night by the Appleton Joint School District Board of Education after plans for the program were presented by James Retson, elementary curriculum coordinator, and Orlyn A. Zieman, secondary curriculum coordinator.

The summer school program will run from Monday, June 28, through Friday, Aug. 6, allowing two weeks between closing of the regular term and opening of the summer session. The change was made to avoid conflict with summer Bible schools at the request of the Appleton Ministerial Association.

Supt. William Spears said enrollment in the school is anticipated between 1,800 and 2,000 students with a budget of $31,860 and a staff of 75 instructors, an increase of eight over last year. The summer school program has grown from about 500 students four years ago to the point where it now is the largest in the state outside of Milwaukee. The Madison program might be larger, but it is operated by the University of Wisconsin and Madison vocational board, rather than the city school board.

Prospective Enrollments

At the elementary level, there will be a staff of 21 with an enrollment of 500 to 550 students, outside of the music program. At the secondary level about 200 students are expected and at senior high school level about 500, again outside the music program.

New in the elementary curriculum is a science course for selected intermediate pupils. It will feature new materials and new approaches, Retson explained.

A program of communicative arts will be conducted as a workshop in the areas of reading, listening, writing and speaking. It will have a different approach, although including remedial reading. Art will include two two-week sessions, designed as an enrichment program.

Two sections of speech therapy will be offered, one for those with more profound speech problems and another for pupils in the educable and orthopedic units. A special education enrichment course also will be offered as well as a review arithmetic class for those who have had difficulties with basic mathematical concepts.

Junior High

Four new classes are included in the junior high program announced by Siebers. Speech will be an application of the basic principles of effective speaking to the various forms of personal communication.

There will be an advanced modern math program for those with high aptitudes in mathematics. It is intended for those who did not take algebra, but who want to take geometry at the ninth grade level next fall. A workshop in modern math is designed for those who need to strengthen some basic arithmetical concepts. It replaces the former arithmetic review.

A project science course will be offered for students with the interest and aptitude to work on projects on a semi-independent basis. It is described as a "doing" course, rather than a "listening" course.

Other junior high courses repeated from previous years include grammar and usage, creative writing and composition, developmental reading, algebra and art. It is expected that art enrollment will be down since it is now required in the junior high program. The art and English courses will carry a half credit each while the advanced modern math and algebra will carry a one-credit value.

High School Credit

At the high school level most of the courses carry a full credit toward graduation. The exceptions are developmental reading, which carries no credit, and notehand, a form of speed writing useful for note taking, and typing, each of which has one-half credit.

New courses offered are a clothing course in home economics, taking the place of a foods class last year and intended for beginning pupils, and a science course for the average pupil. It will be a laboratory course, but not as mathematical or intensive as the college preparatory chemistry and physics courses.

Other senior high courses include basic introduction to art, advanced art problems in painting, carpentry, mechanical drawing, expository writing, the novel, basic English, creative writing, fundamentals of speech, theater arts, geometry, American history and world geography.

While most courses are limited as to enrollments, music at the elementary, junior high and senior high levels has no limits and carries no credit.

Question Fees

The fee will be $2 per course for book rental and consumable items. In the art program an additional fee of $4 will be charged while those doing oil painting will be required to provide those materials. At the senior high schools pupils will purchase their own texts.

Board Member Kenneth Sager questioned the adequacy of the fees. Spears said it was impossible to charge more and still qualify for state aids. The additional enrollment amounts to $7,000 or $8,000 in aids and "we never could collect that much by raised fees," he explained.

Sager also questioned offering American history, a required course, in summer and was seconded by Mrs. George C. Munro, board president, who said she hated to see such a course put in capsule form. Spears said the history course is the most popular and taking it in summer permits students to get in electives which they otherwise could not take in the regular term.

Residents to Hear Plan for Water System

Informal Meeting Set for Residents of Town of Menasha

MENASHA — An informational meeting to explain a proposed water system in the Town of Menasha has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Fox Co-operative Inc., 835 Valley Road.

The meeting will be conducted by the town board with Art Scholl, McMahon Engineering Co., water system consultant for the project.

The proposed system will be in sanitary District 4, on town land east of Little Lake Butte des Morts except that portion of sanitary District 2, bounded on the south and east by State 47. The remainder of the eastern boundary is the major part of the Lynch Plat. Northern boundary is the Menasha city limits and the western boundary is Gardners Row.

The project will be financed by revenue bonds in the amount of $300,000 and general obligation bonds totaling $100,000. A special assessment of $2.75 per lineal foot will be levied against the property owners to offset the remainder of the indebtedness.

Water will be supplied by a 700 foot deep well in the Southwood plat, capable of supplying 550 gallons of water per minute.

Propose Bonding To Finance New Airport Projects

North Central Asks Winnebago For 2,000 Feet More in Terminal

OSHKOSH — Bonding to finance future airport projects, such as the terminal building expansion and the north-south runway project, was suggested at Monday night's meeting of the aviation committee.

The committee indicated it may ask permission from the county board to hire an architect to plan the expansion of the terminal building.

North Central Airlines, in a letter to the committee, asked that it be granted 2,000 square feet of floor area if the terminal were expanded.

The airline now has 956 square feet of floor space.

Ask for Consideration

McMahon Engineering Co. of Menasha and Thern Associates Inc. of Oshkosh wrote letters asking that they be considered when the committee picks an architect to plan the terminal expansion.

Suggested expansion plans from Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, which made the engineering study of the airport, were viewed by the committee. A suggested layout of the first and second floors was among the plans.

Airport manager Steve Wittman indicated the west end of the terminal could not have a second floor because of interference with air space requirements for the north-south runway. The terminal could be expanded on the east end and a second floor erected over that portion.

Committee members indicated moving the snack bar and dining room to the east end of the building would mean a relocation of the plumbing and electrical systems now at the west end for the restaurant. They hoped that these systems still could be used.

$202,700 Cost

They agreed, however, that it would be more practical to have North Central Airlines operations at the west end of the terminal with a special freight handling facility. Wittman said freight handling would be more conveniently handled from the west end of the terminal rather than the present method whereby the trucks encroach upon the airplane ramp to load and unload their freight at the southeast end of the terminal.

Rule Youth Can Stand Trial for Slaying Coed

LANCASTER (AP) — John Reglown, 19, of Benton has been ruled sane and capable of standing trial on first degree murder charges in the slaying of a former Platteville State University coed who was shot to death in the Student Union last Dec. 8.

The ruling was made Monday by Circuit Court Judge Richard Orton after hearing the testimony of two court-appointed psychiatrists on the first day of the trial. Treglown has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. He has waived a jury trial.

Drs. Leigh Roberts and Albert Lorenz agreed Treglown was sane, could understand the nature of his acts and was of normal intelligence. The doctors, who were asked to return for further testimony, said they also agreed that Treglown was legally sane after an examination on Dec. 28. They examined him again Monday in his Grant County jail cell before going to court.

Treglown is accused in the death of Kathy Moan, 20, of Belvidere, Ill., a campus favorite who had rejected Treglown's attentions.

Appleton Has Three New Sets of Twins

There was a reason for seeing double at Appleton hospitals in February.

Three sets of twins—all girls—were born to residents of the city, according to the monthly health department report.

The births were among the 154 (90 resident and 64 nonresident) at Appleton Memorial and St. Elizabeth Hospitals.

Dr. James Laird, city health commissioner, said there were also 34 deaths and 26 marriages reported to the department during the past month.

The three leading killers of Appleton residents were heart disease, 16; cancer, 4; and pneumonia, 3.

A spurt in the number of communicable diseases was noted with chicken pox leading with 65 cases, followed by 25 mumps. There was also a smattering of regular measles, German measles and scarlet fever.

New London Man Faces Six Charges After Shot-Punctuated Chase

WAUPACA — A rural New London man, arrested after a gunshot punctuated chase through northern Waupaca County, faced six charges Monday when arraigned in Municipal Justice Court.

Ronald G. Snyder, 24, route 3, New London, formerly of Waupaca, was bound over to Waupaca County Court for trial and released on $2,000 bond. He was charged with resisting arrest, petty theft, hit and run, speeding, failure to stop for a stop sign and failure to stop for an emergency vehicle.

Events leading to Snyder's arrest started at 8:30 p.m. Sunday when Waupaca police received a complaint from the Circus Inn that Snyder was suspected of having taken a woman's purse.

Soon after, a second complaint was received that an auto answering the description of Snyder's car, struck a parked car on Mill Street and had left the scene. Damage to the auto owned by Robert L. Carper Jr., was estimated at $150.

Snyder was stopped north of the city on State 49 by City Patrolman Wayne Schroeder. Schroeder was pushed aside and Snyder jumped back into his car and sped north, police said.

Schroeder sent out an alert to all county patrolmen and started to pursue Snyder. A roadblock was manned by Undersheriff William Mork and Deputy Sheriff Joe Hogan at Scandinavia.

Through Roadblock

Snyder failed to heed the signals to stop and sped through the roadblock. Mork fired a shotgun blast into the air and then fired at the rear tire of the speeding auto.

Snyder continued north on State 49 with Schroeder still in pursuit. Mork and Hogan took up the chase.

Nearing Iola, Mork got in front of Snyder who was forced to stop at the intersection of State 49 and 161 and was taken into custody. He was held in the county jail until his Monday court appearance.

3 Plead Innocent To Kicking, Beating Madison Policeman

MADISON (AP)—Pleas of innocent to charges of attempted aggravated assault and resisting arrest were entered Monday by three men arrested in the kicking and beating of a police officer who had attempted to break up a street fight.

Police spokesmen said that Patrolman Richard Osterloth was attacked last Friday night as he attempted to arrest two men after intervening in the disturbance on State Street near the University of Wisconsin.

The officer remained in "satisfactory" condition in a hospital where he is being treated for head and internal injuries.

Pleading innocent were Charles Hargrove, 27; Donald Morton, 25, and his brother, James, 30, all of Madison. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for March 31.

Two others were charged with disorderly conduct in connection with the fight. Lorenzo Miller, 22, pleaded guilty and was fined $100. Donald Harris Jr., 22, failed to appear in court and forfeited bond of $28.

Light Falls on Motorist's Car

Frederick E. Jahnke, 39, 507 W. Franklin St., has some misgivings about the city's electrical light system.

Monday morning while parked at a street intersection on N. Richmond Street, the red light keeled over and landed on top of Jahnke's car.

Police went to the scene and questioned witnesses among them City Electrical Department Inspector Hubert Rebman, who collaborated Jahnke's story.

Police said the light pole assembly may have been loosened by snow plowing equipment which may have struck the base of the pole.

Legislature to Face Another County Revamping Proposal

Measure Would Clear Way for Other Types of Local Government

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Almost obscured by the issue of county board reapportionment legislation, the legislature will soon come to grips with another major proposal for the reorganization of county government.

With the backing of the so-called "Committee of 25", created by the legislature two years ago to examine potential improvements of Wisconsin governmental administration, the legislature has received a proposal to eliminate the county uniformity clause of the state constitution.

Instead of being limited to a single kind of county government, such as the identical county boards which now exist in Wisconsin counties, the legislature under the proposed constitutional amendment could prescribe up to four different systems of county government, at the option of the counties.

Would Permit Change

The suggested amendment does not describe the alternative forms, which would mean that the legislature could have a free choice — if the amendment is enacted — and could change the approved systems from time to time according to need and circumstances.

Among them, most likely would be the county commission and the county manager form of government, as well as the traditional elected, part-time board of supervisors.

The pending county board redistricting bill would legislate a slight modification of the uniformity system, to the extent that it proposes to classify counties according to their populations and to establish boards of maximum size for each classification. Although earlier some doubts were shown about the validty of such classifications under the uniformity rule of the present constitution, legal consultants advised a legislative interim committee that such classification for purposes of equality of representation would be sustained by the courts.

Valley Ministers Hear Talk About Devotional Life

The Fox Valley Ministerial Fellowship held its spring meeting Monday at St. Paul Lutheran Church, Neenah. Dr. Clarence McCall, president of the United Church of Christ, Wisconsin Conference, spoke on the "Devotional Life of Ministers".

Officers for the 1965-66 season are Rev. Carl Towley, pastor of St. Timothy Lutheran Church, Menasha, president, Rev. Harold Humbert, First Baptist Church, Appleton vice president, and Rev. K. Aart Van Dam, Whiting Memorial Baptist Church, Neenah, secretary-treasurer.

Thief's Choice May Mean Winter's Over connect the Fox Cities with Chicago, with intermediate stops in Fond du Lac, Milwaukee and possibly Sheboygan, when North Central service to the Fox Cities end.

Ponath's letter, dated March 15, was official notification to the airline of Outagamie County's plans concerning the two airports.

He advised North Central officials that the county has received notice from the FAA that transfer of operations from the old to the new airport is expected shortly.

"As requested on several prior occastions," Ponath stated in the letter, "we hereby again request your company to transfer its flight operations from the old airport in the Town of Grand Chute to the new airport in the Town of Greenville at or before the time for closing the old airport, at which time the new airport will automatically become and be known as the Outagamie County Airport . . ."

The new airport, with a 5,200-foot runway, was completed in January. It is equipped with the latest safety and navagational aid, plus hangars and a terminal building.

The county is expected to build a second (cross-wind) runway this year, which may be 6,400-feet long.

was difficult to hear them at times over the orchestra. Bloody Mary being the natable exception. The key song, as far as the message of the play is concerned, "You've Got to be Carefully Taught," was completely lost behind the orchestra.

In the final analysis the production staff of "South Pacific" can be proud of their efforts in staging this great musical comedy which was quite thoroughly enjoyed by its audience on opening night.

One final comment needs to be made concerning this and similar productions. I had the feeling, at times, as I watched the play, that I was viewing a glorified Christmas program wherein the various participants recited their pieces and the proud parents enthusiastically applauded.

This provides an interesting student recital and, in this instance, a rather high level recital, but it is scarcely an art form, and this is, after all, what drama is all about.

It is doubtful if any high school cast could sustain, dramatically, a play of the magnitude of "South Pacific" in spite of the technical perfection. When the production staff chooses the play for next year the goals and aims of that production might well be considered.

State Reports Tax Refunds of $4.7 Million

MADISON (AP) — The State Department of Taxation has made 183,000 income tax refunds totaling $4.7 million, department director James R. Morgan said Monday.

Morgan also said he expects the refunds on taxes collected by the state in 1964 to total $20.6 million this year, or about $5.5 million more than last year. He said the larger figure results from the collection of taxes through all of 1964 while collections in 1963 covered only part of the year.

The report also said that 1,971 refunds totaling $126,700 had been made so far to persons over 65 eligible for property tax or rent payment relief.

Two Brothers Credited With Saving Four Others in Family which fought the fire over an hour before putting out the flames. Authorities said the cause of the fire, which apparently started in the boys' bedroom, is under investigation.

Mrs. Timmerman said she helped feed the four younger Row children before arrangements were made this morning for them to be taken to relatives in Seymour.

Collect Clothes

Neighbors in a several block area near the Row home began collecting clothing for the smaller children soon after the fire was put under control. Mrs. Timmerman said the children were sent to Seymour with several sets of donated clothing. She said other neighbors are still contacting her about childrens' sizes and things that are needed.

Row, who came to the fire from the service station where he is employed, said his two boys "have always shown good responsibility." He said both boys have been used to caring for their younger brothers and sisters since their mother had been working.

absence was granted Miss Grace School, speech therapist now doing graduate work at the University of Wisconsin. She will spend the year working for the state bureau setting up speech clinics and screening programs throughout the state. Part-time therapists will continue to be used to fill her job.

Purchases

The board purchased Medart bleachers and backstops for the Einstein Junior High from Valley School Suppliers on their second low bid of $7,265.50, $183.50 more than the low bid of Berlin Seating, Inc. William R. Knuth, director of business affairs, recommended the Valley bid after inspecting installations. He said there would be savings in maintenance and cleaning. An electric scoreboard and time clock was purchased from Wisconsin School Service on the low bid of $540.50.

The contract to supply vending machines and services for the Einstein Junior High lunchroom was awarded to Karras Vending Co., Inc.

Supt. Spears reported that heat is being supplied in the school and painting is underway. Moving of equipment is scheduled to start soon. The school will open next fall.

The superintendent also said that final plans for Appleton Senior High East have been delivered by the architect. Those plans are being inspected now by various departments for final revision and probably will be presented to the board within a month. "With the investment we are asking the community to make, we better be sure the plans are right," Spears added. "We'll have to live with it the next 75 or 100 years."

Receive Protests

Kenneth Sager reported receiving protests over allowing use of the Madison Junior High parking lot for vocational school driving training class this summer. It was mentioned that children cross the parking lot to the summer recreation playground. "You get that problem whatever area you use," John A. Schneider commented. William Pickett, director of physical education, health and safety, will be asked to investigate the problem.

Stimulating faculty members to take part in scholarships and fellowships was broached by Sager, who mentioned a mental health institute at Oshkosh, some Lawrence University programs and a Milwaukee seminar on the ungraded elementary program.

The question of whether release of teachers in snow emergencies should be a matter of board policy or administrative jurisdiction was raised by Sager. He mentioned that pupils were released in the recent storm but some teachers remained in the building after the pupils were gone. His motion to make the matter board policy failed to get a second.

Huntley School parents realize that adjustments must be made to meet the over-crowding problem and that the best overall plan may not be convenient to some, Roy Whitney reported. He attended the last Huntley School Parent Teacher Association meeting at which the problem was discussed.

A formal motion was adopted returning Red Star School to the city. The school will be closed at the end of this term and pupils transported.

Ad Club to Hear Talk By Wax Firm Exhibitor

Edward A. Bronson, special projects manager of the S. C. Johnson & Son Co. for the New York World's Fair, will be the featured speaker at the March meeting of the Fox Valley Ad Club.

The meeting for members and wives will be held at 6 p.m. Wednesday at Club 101 in Fond du Lac.

Competing against multi-million dollar extravaganzas, Johnson's Wax brought a product story to the Fair which was successful beyond all expectations.

Bronson will outline the steps taken by Johnson's Wax for the fair. He will also be prepared to answer any questions members might have concerning transportation, accommodations and things to see at this year's World's Fair.

Legal Advice On Bargaining Agent Sought

from Robert Kohls, a social studies teacher at Appleton Senior High School and first president of the AFT local. He requested the same rights and privileges for the AFT which are extended to the AEA.

Another came from Robert Porter, national secretary of the AFT, which said that local 1573 had been chartered with a "sizeable number as charter members."

The letter from James Fitzpatrick, executive director of the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers, referred to a "substantial number" of members. His letter also warned the board against approving the AEA request to be the exclusive bargaining agent for Appleton teachers, declaring such action would be a "prohibited labor practice under Wisconsin statutes."

Kohls and Barry Bauschek, local AFT secretary and also a social studies teacher at the high school, attended the board meeting as AFT representatives but made no comments. When asked, after the meeting, how many members the AFT had, they said, "We'll withhold that for a while."

The AEA claimed the membership of all but perhaps 25 of the approximately 460 teachers eligible for membership at the March 8 board meeting.

Recognition of the AEA request could be made by the board and become effective in 60 days except if protests are filed. In case of protest, the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board (WERB) would order an election to determine the bargaining agent. Either the AEA or AFT local could petition for such election also if the board takes no action.

The board Monday night unanimously agreed to seek legal advice from the city attorney before replying to the AEA request.

Roy Whitney, board member, urged that the board take no action without advice of counsel thoroughly familiar with labor laws of Wisconsin. "I think we should seek advice before taking a stand. We are getting into an area where we must be sure our actions are right."

Mrs. Walter Heil concurred that the request needed more study. Kenneth Sager pointed out that the AEA request was approved by the AEA executive council. "Is that a majority of the teachers?" He also asked, "Which questions are negotiable? There is no established court pattern."

Little Chute School Board Explains Borrowing Plan

Plans call for initial construction of 12 classrooms and gym and library area with an auditorium, music room and other specialized areas to be constructed at a later date.

He advised the board to award construction bids by August and start construction in September.

Student Survey

Results of a survey taken among seventh and eighth graders showed that of those who would be sophomores in 1966, 79 planned to attend St. John High School, 36 would attend a public school in the village if available. Three were undecided and four did not answer.

Of the 107 seventh grade questionnaires returned, 67 planned to attend St. John's, 31 the public school and nine were undecided. These would be freshmen students in 1966.

Further contacts are planned with parents of all seventh and eighth grade students to get a more accurate picture of future enrollment.

Board members authorized George Barber, superintendent of schools, and Kenneth Hermsen, board member, to continue to investigate the possibility of a summer remedial reading program. It is felt such a program would attract about 70 students.

Approval was given Outagamie County for the use of a classroom for handicapped instruction for the 1965-66 school year.

Committee Recommendation

Menasha School Board to Advertise For Bids on Casualty Insurance

MENASHA — The Menasha board of education will advertise for bids to obtain its casualty insurance in a package, and only insurance firms within the Menasha School District will be permitted to bid, effective July 1, 1965.

Bids will not be accepted on fire, extended coverage, vandalism and malicious mischief, according to the motions made adopting the bidding procedure. Fire, extended coverage, vandalism and malicious mischief will be placed with State Farm Insurance and will become effective the same date the casualty insurance goes into effect. Bids will be prepared by the Strauss Zahn Insurance Counseling Agency and concurrence in the plan is to be requested from the Menasha Vocational and Adult Board by April 1, 1965.

Advertise for Bids

This action came as the recommendation of the finance committee which met with S. H. Manson of Strauss Zahn Agency on March 11. It was pointed out at this meeting that the state plan, which provides principally fire coverage, could save as much as 50 per cent in premiums. By advertising for bids, it is predicted that an additional saving of 15 to 20 per cent can be realized on the casualty coverage.

The matter of proper charges for the use of Calder Stadium was sent back to the properties committee for further study. St. Mary's High School shares the use of Calder Stadium as provided for in the terms of the Banta Foundation's deed to the property. Proper charge per game for services and upkeep by the board of education are now under study.

The board accepted the resignation of Miss Ann Trinrud, first grade teacher at Banta School.

Football Schedule

The following dates were approved for St. Mary's High School football games in Calder Stadium this fall: Sept. 11, 18, Oct. 1, 9 and 23.

Further study will be given to preparation of the track facilities at Calder Stadium. The properties committee will confer with McMahon Engineering, architect for the stadium; the track coaches from St. Mary's and Menasha High Schools to coordinate the work which needs to be done before track practice and meets can begin on the field. St. Mary's High School has notified the board it is donating a complete set of track equipment for the stadium, consisting of 15 items.

City Attorney Richard J. Steffens ruled the use of the Menasha High School Auditorium for an ecumenical hymn sing by St. Timothy Lutheran Church was within the law. He cited the fact that since the sing is a onetime affair, there will be no charge and persons of all faiths were being invited to the sing. He could find nothing in the statutes to prohibit it.

There will be 32 juniors and seniors going to New York City and Washington D.C., the week of April 12, Supt. M. J. Gegan reported to the board. Permission was also granted by the board for Norbert Brunner to attend the National Educational Association's elementary principals meeting in Miami Beach, Fla., April 24-28. Menasha elementary principals taking their turns attending this NEA meeting and expenses are a budgeted item.

New Programming System

Consideration of adopting the Data Processing Service and Systems, Manitowoc, procedure for programming at Butte des Morts Junior High School was referred to the finance committee. Cost is estimated to be $1.75 per student, it has not been budgeted for the years 1965-66 but Supt. Gegan informed the board that costs could be met out of the general supplies and textbook budget if the board chose to authorize it. Work would have to start as soon as possible to help with programming for the 1965-66 school year.

The properties committee will prepare a recommendation to release one additional classroom for first grade when school opens in the fall. The hiring of an additional elementary teacher was approved.

Campaign Buttons, Badges Can be Displayed on Velvet

BY CAPPY DICK

If you are one of the alert boys and girls who have started collections of campaign and convention badges and buttons, and similar tokens and mementoes, today's fun-project will interest you because it is a means of displaying the collection for all your friends to see.

You will need a picture frame and a piece of black velvet or velveteen of a size that will fit the frame to make a display like that in Figure 1.

Cut the velvet so it is shaped somewhat like the cloth of a badge, then attach it to the frame along its top edge. The velvet should be long enough to hang down beyond the bottom of the frame.

Simply pin the buttons and badges to the velvet to make an interesting and colorful display.

Use a picture frame.

The cloth that extends below the frame can be used for more badges when the area within the frame has been filled.

Hang the display on the wall of your room as the boy in Figure 2 has done.

Premiere Performance Will Highlight Concert By Lawrence Pianists

Work by Clyde Duncan to be Presented by Composer, and Colleague Theodore Rehl

The premiere performance of a two-piano arrangement by Lawrence Conservatory faculty composer-pianist Clyde Duncan will highlight Duncan's recital with his duo-piano colleague, Theodore Rehl, at 8:15 p.m. Monday in Lawrence University Memorial Chapel.

Duncan, professor of music, and Rehl, assistant professor of music, will be playing their first program here since February, 1964.

Their performance includes Duncan's setting of a modern Spanish classic, "Triana," by Albeniz. Other works are "Andantino Varie, Op. 84, No. 1," by Schubert; "Variations on a Theme of Beethoven, Op. 35," by Saint-Saens; "Sonata for Piano, Four Hands" (1946), by Bernhard Heiden; "Incantations," by Merrill Ellis; and "Sonata for Two Pianos" (1944), by Robert Palmer.

The two-piano team got its start with a faculty series recital early in 1962. Since then it has played seven performances at Lawrence, including a Poulenc "Concerto" engagement with the Lawrence Symphony Orchestra.

Other area orchestral appearances have been with the Oshkosh Civic Symphony, the Green Bay Orchestra and the Milwaukee Civic Orchestra. A half-hour televised concert was presented by the duo on Channel 5, Green Bay, in November, 1963. Last July the team played a concert at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

Concert Dates

Duncan and Rehl were signed to a professional concert contract a year ago by a New York management. They fulfill engagements during Lawrence recess periods.

Their most recent program was given at Cape May, N.J., in mid-March, and another will follow at the Music Teachers National Association convention, Dallas, in April.

Duncan joined the faculty in 1947. His Mus.B. and Mus.M. degrees were earned at the American Conservatory, Chicago. He also studied at Trinity College of Music, London, and was a Ford Fellow at the Academy of Music, Vienna.

Composer of Note

A composition student of Alec Rowley and Leo Sowerby, he has published a "Toccata for Piano" (1946) and a "Sonatina for Clarinet and Piano" (1954). A "Sonata for Two Pianos," heard here on several occasions, remains unpublished.

Duncan is a member of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia and Pi Kappa Lambda, national professional and honorary music groups, and a certification board member of the Wisconsin Music Teachers Association. He is accompanist for concert mezzo-soprano Betty Allen at her midwest performances.

Rehl was named to the faculty in 1958. He earned Mus.B. and Mus.M. degrees at Oberlin Conservatory of Ohio, and has studied at the University of Southern California and Indiana University. He held a teaching fellowship for masters study at Oberlin, and received the school's Hurlbutt Award for Talent and Performance in 1952.

Outstanding Teachers

Among his teachers have been Beveridge Webster, Muriel Kerr, Bela Boszormanyi-Nagy and Gyorgy Sebok.

In 1953 he was a finalist in the National Federation of Music Clubs Young Artist Competition. Among his orchestral appearances have been two with the Little Orchestra Society of New York and the Lawrence Symphony.

Rehl is a member of the Wisconsin Music Teachers Association, the Music Teachers National Association and Pi Kappa Lambda. He served the honorary group as Lawrence chapter president from 1960-62.

He has been chairman of the Lawrence piano department since 1961.

Monday's concert is ninth in the current faculty series.

Long Road Down South Stars on TV

BY TV SCOUT

9-10 (Channel 4-5) — The cry of producer Lou Hazam's Inter-American Highway: Bridge of the Americas is "Come on down." In his excellent travelogue he presents graphic scenes taken along the 3,200 mile, twisting inter-American Highway, which begins in Laredo, Tex., and ends seven countries later in the scarcely inhabited, lush Darien Jungles of Panama. (COLOR)

6:30-7:30 (Channel 11)—"A Cry in the Ruins" on Combat is another victory for the series. The heroes are writers Edward J. Lakso and A. Martin Zweiback who have captured an arresting portrait of a desperate woman searching for her lost child in World War II.

6:30-7:30 (Channel 4-5) — Mr. Novak's concern in "Honor and All That" concerns students who have too much school spirit. At a basketball game, Jefferson High bursts into a riot when it meets its arch rival, McClain High.

7:30-8 (Channel 11) — Again Ensign Parker (Tim Conway) is the whole show on McHale's Navy. It's Easter time and he dresses up as a bunny rabbit to entertain the native children.

7:30-8:30 (Channel 4-5)— Dean Jones, who is better known as an actor, turns up as a zestful singing host of Hullabaloo. The young man scores well with his tunes. He also joins the fetching Leslie Uggams in a jazzy version of "On Moonlight Bay" and heads the other guests in a rousing medley of the top pop ditties. (COLOR)

7:30-8:30 (Channel 2) — George C. Scott, another actor known for his dramatic roles, shows another side of himself on The Red Skelton Hour. In a wild sketch with this host, he plays a scientist named Dr. Hardship who is looking for volunteers for a South Pole expedition.

8:30-9 (Channel 11) — Everybody, at long last, is trying to tell the truth on Peyton Place. Betty and Julie greet George on his first day home from the hospital and shake him up with some grim details; Elliot corners Harrington about "The Diary," and Allison confesses to Constance and Swain about her ski trip with Rod.

9-10 (Channel 11) — The Fugitive plays it safe with a routine outing, "Masquerade." Again Kimble is mistaken for someone else (someone whom the law is after) and has a tough go of it.

9-10 (Channel 2) — There's considerable suspense on The Doctors and the Nurses, as Alden General's head nurse Liz Thorpe (Shirl Conway) is harassed by ringing telephones and thinks she will be the victim of a madman. (Repeat)

Actor Richard Boone, in costume for his part in the 11th century epic called "The War Lord," holds a 30-pound Harpy eagle on his arm for one of the scenes in the movie. The silver gray bird was imported from Brazil by animal trainer Mike Ortega. (AP Wirephoto)

Warfare Gases Are Described By Army

Officials Say Compound Used In Viet Nam Is Similar to Types Of Tear Gas Employed in Riots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The non-lethal gas used in South Viet Nam is a compound of chemical agents of a type the Army has employed for about 40 years, defense officials said today.

In one form or another, the tear gas has been sniffed by millions of American soldiers in the course of gas mask drills, officials said.

It is unrelated to the dreaded and highly secret nerve gases and incapacitating agents which this country has developed and stockpiled.

Officials said similar tear gases, which bring on nausea and vomiting and disable temporarily, have been used by police departments and are available commercially.

Similar Compounds

It was reported that compounds similar to those used in South Viet Nam against the Communists have been brought into play in connection with racial disturbances in the United States.

The State Department said Monday that South Vietnamese forces have used tear gas where Communist guerrillas had mingled with Vietnamese villagers. The Pentagon had said the gas was supplied by the United States.

"In such a situation, rather than use artillery, air or other fire power methods, Vietnamese forces have used these types of tar gases,' said State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey.

McCloskey called this a humane use of gas and said it is "not contrary to international law and practice."

McCloskey and defense officials contended that similar types of tear gas had been used in controlling riots all over the world. Defense sources said the French had left sizable stocks in Viet Nam when they pulled out.

The nonkilling compound used in South Viet Nam — only twice, officials said — is called CN-DM.

Both are described in the non-secret Army Manual on Chemical-Biological-Radiological Warfare.

CN stands for chloroacetophenone, DM for Adamssite.

Quick Acting

The Army manual says that CN "is a quick-acting solid that, when disseminated as an aerosol, causes an intense flow of tears and irritates the eyes, skin, and upper respiratory passages."

It says that DM "is a solid that, when disseminated as an aerosol, causes violent sneezing, nausea, and vomiting."

The manual says that DM "may be mixed with a quick-acting irritant such as CN in munitions to obtain combined effects."

Knowles Vows To Fight for 32nd's Status

Would Preserve Name of Famed Wisconsin Division

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Warren P. Knowles said Monday he plans to continue the fight "to preserve the identity" of Wisconsin's 32nd National Guard Division by giving it independent brigade status.

Knowles said after a round of conferences with Wisconsin Democratic Sens. William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson and many of the state's congressmen that he refuses to accept the Army's troop allocation for Wisconsin.

The governor has insisted that the 32nd should get separate brigade status instead of becoming consolidated with Minnesota's 47th National Guard Division as desired by Pentagon officials.

Chances Slim

Rep. Alvin O'Konski of Mercer, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, told Knowles that the chances of the 32nd becoming a separate brigade were slim.

Rep. Glenn Davis, R-New Berlin, said, "There isn't a chance of getting a separate brigade."

A separate brigade is about 10 per cent larger than an attached unit. Rep. Melvin Laird, R-Marshfield, said last week that the Defense Department had rejected the separate brigade proposals.

Laird Urges U. S. Make 2 Policies More Compatible

MADISON (AP)—Rep. Melvin Laird, R-Wis., urged Monday bipartisanship in two widely scattered fields—in U.S. policy in South Viet Nam and in administrering the Rural Electrification Administration.

Laird told some 600 members of the Wisconsin Electric Cooperative that Republicans support President Johnson's stronger policy in South Viet Nam because questioning it could lead to a third world war.

He said that loss of bipartisanship in administering the REA would be harmful to the program. He said the REA was used for partisan purposes, endorsing individual candidates for Congress.

Laird cautioned the WEC against "turning down the road toward public power."

He said that "to follow the advice of the 'courageous battlers of straw men' to turn down the road to public power would be a great mistake."

"Privately managed, locally owned and locally directed electric systems have moved forward in achieving rural coverage of electric service," the congressman added. "The REA program in Wisconsin has been successful and has made progress through joint cooperation with other private owned and operated utilities."

World Raps Use of Gases

LONDON (AP) — Non-Communists in Europe joined the Communists today in attacking the use of nonlethal gas by U.S. and Vietnamese forces in South Viet Nam.

Nearly 50 Laborite members of the British Parliament and three Liberals petitioned Prime Minister Harold Wilson to express disapproval of the use of gas and napalm fire bombs against the Communist guerrillas.

The petitioners included Philip Noel Baker, winner of the 1959 Nobel Peace Prize, and Arthur Blenkinsop, vice chairman of the Labor party's members of the House of Commons.

Propaganda Boon

Some British newspapers considered the U.S. tactic a propaganda boon to the Communists. Others expressed uneasiness about it.

"Whatever the arguments of legality and humanity, politically this new development looks foolish to the point of dementia," said the liberal Guardian.

Said the conservative Daily Mail: "This form of warfare is regarded with such horror that, whatever the intention, its employment will tarnish the American image."

"A generally bad press can be expected from yesterday's announcement. Whether this outweighs the immediate advantage of using gas in the field is for the Americans to decide," said the independent Times.

In Paris

In Paris, the influential evening newspaper Le Monde took issue with an unidentified U.S. officer who said one problem is to accustom the public to the idea of employing nonlethal gas.

Moscow radio accused the United States of "using increasingly barbarous methods — in particular waging chemical warfare."

The Japanese pro-Peking Communist newspaper Red Flag said the United States has "finally used poison gas in a naked show of brutality."

Madison Area Crash Kills 2

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The deaths of a mother and daughter in a two-car Dane County crash have raised the 1965 Wisconsin traffic toll to 177, compared with 201 on this date a year ago.

Mrs. Julius Ruter, 73 of Madison and her daughter, Mrs. Hazel Prenot, about 50, of Chicago were killed Monday in a two-car crash on Highway 18-151 about five miles west of Verona in Dane County. They were passengers in a car driven by Ruter, one of five injured in the crash. Four of the injured, including Ruter, were in serious condition.

Black-Market Babies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed a bill designed to crack down on what Sen. Thomas J. Dodd calls a thriving black market in babies.

The connecticut Democrat's legislation was passed by the Senate last year, too, but the House took no action.

The measure provides up to five years in jail and fines of up to $10,000 for interstate sale of babies for a profit.

Cite Agreement On Military Matters On Disputed Isle

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Greek Defense Minister Petros Garoufalias said today he and Greek Cypriot President Makarios are in full agreement on military matters.

Greek Cypriot newspapers continued to speculate, however, that there is a "serious rift" between Greece and Cyprus over the future handling of the Cyprus dispute.

Informed sources said Monday night that Makarios had turned down a request by Garoufalias not to proceed with installation of Soviet antiaircraft missiles on the island.

The Greek minister returned to Athens today after a 36-hour visit. He and Makarios talked almost continuously during the visit and continued their discussion for an hour when when Garoufalias' plane was delayed by mechanical trouble.

"Military matters which I came to discuss in Nicosia have been settled in full harmony with the political and military leaders of the island," Garoufalias told newsmen.

Asked about the reported missile installation, he replied:

"Every nation which is being threatened with invasion reacts just as any person would by taking all the necessary defensive steps dictated by the instinct of self-preservation."

Radio Hanoi said U.S. and South Vietnamese forces were using "poisonous chemicals" against the Viet Cong.

Eight Fighter-Bombers

Convoys, Radar Hit In North Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Eight Vietnamese fighter-bombers knocked out a radar station and hit military road convoys in North Viet Nam today, a Vietnamese military spokesman announced.

An unannounced number of U.S. Air Force planes accompanied the strike to knock out Communist antiaircraft.

The major target was the Ban Binh radar station 10 miles north of the border with South Viet Nam. The Vietnamese spokesman said the Communist groundfire was heavy, but the radar station was "knocked down and set aflame."

The aircraft also attacked "many enemy military convoys moving along the national route 1," the announcement said.

One of the Vietnamese bombers was hit by groundfire but managed to return safely to the Da Nang air base.

Major Center

The radar station is a major reconnaissance center used by the North Vietnamese Communists to control the border airspace. It was protected by the 65th Antiaircraft Battalion.

The Vienamese planes also attacked trucks equipped with heavy machineguns on Route 1.

No details were disclosed immediately on the American planes that accompanied the Vietnamese raiders. U. S. officials declined to say how many there were, saying only that they were land based.

An American Air Force captain was said to have flown with the Vietnamese planes as an observer. He was identified as Capt. John R. Walters of Phoenix, Ariz.

A radar warning station was knocked out and three armed Communist junks were sunk in another raid Monday by eight U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs. The radar station was at Vinh Son, on the coast 60 miles north of the 17th Parallel.

Station Smashed

U.S forces claimed a third of North Viet Nam's warning stations were smashed in a raid on Tiger Island March 14.

Communist antiaircraft fire downed one of the F105s Monday, but an amphibious plane of the U.S. 7th Fleet rescued the pilot from the South China Sea, Hanoi radio claimed five American and South Vietnamese planes were shot down Monday and Sunday and many others were damaged.

U.S. jets and Vietnamese planes also pounded a Viet Cong area in South Viet Nam, near the Da Nang air base. Once again the Communists escaped.

Serve as Search Command

Aircraft Carrier in Position for Recovery, Rescue of Gemini Team

ABOARD CARRIER INTREPID (AP) — This flagship of the Project Gemini primary recovery task group steamed into position today with a dual mission — fish the astronauts from the sea if the flight follows plans, serve as search command post if things go awry.

The set-up for the latter assignment was completed Monday when Col. Walter E. (Tom) Thorne director of operations for the Air Force Air Rescue Service, came aboard.

His responsibility was to direct worldwide search activity in the event the two-man space crew of Air Force Maj. Virgil I. Grissom and Navy Lt. Cmdr. John W. Young came down in an unexpected remote area.

Out of Work

One of the first things Thorne did on the Intrepid was state the hope of everybody aboard — that he wouldn't really have a job.

What he and the Intrepid's whole complement hope for is that the big submarine hunting carrier which pulled astronaut Scott M. Carpenter out of the sea in May 1962 after his Mercury flight, will add two more names to its recovery roster.

Thorne put it this way:

"But we have 43 aircraft and 495 personnel ready around the world, from Turkey back to Turkey, from Thule to Panama, in case we have to call on them."

Pararescue Team

Each of the rescue service C54 aircraft will carry a three-man pararescue team to parachute to aid the astronauts at sea or on land.

Thorne said the service could call upon aircraft of the Royal Australian Air Force and Royal Air Force units in the Indian Ocean area.

Thorne said the service, a part of the Military Air Transport Service, conducted a rehearsal Saturday which simulated the landing of a spacecraft off the east coast of Africa.

Monday as the Intrepid sped toward its station 89 miles east of Grand Turk Island, landing target for Grissom and Young on a full three-orbit mission, a full-scale dress rehearsal for the recovery operation went like clockwork.

The Intrepid made a flawless approach and took the practice capsule aboard by means of the starboard aircraft elevator.

The Intrepid gave the rehearsal the full treatment — even to unrolling a 25-foot red carpet for the astronauts' walk from the spaceship to the hangar deck.

Appleton Man Aboard Carrier

ABOARD THE CARRIER INTREPID (AP)—When and if astronaut John W. Young comes aboard this ship after his Gemini orbital mission with Maj. Gus Grissom he'll find at least three old Navy teammates aboard.

They are Commander C.D. "Red" Neidhold, Appleton, Wis., combat intelligence officer; Lt. Cdr. John A. Dunaway Jr., assistant air operations officer, from Atlanta, and Lt. Bruce Fleming, a helicopter pilot, Holyoke, Mass. (Comdr. Neidhold is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Carl D. Neidhold, 904 S. Pierce Ave.)

All were stationed together at Patuxent River, Md., Naval Air Test Center in the 1960-1962 period just before selection of the group of astronauts that included Young.

They were, in fact, among the group under study for possible astronaut duty.

"I was just a little too old," remarked Neidhold.

"This goes to show that the world is a small place," Neidhold said of the forthcoming reunion with the astronaut.

Tuesday, March 23, 1965 Page B6

Gary Kroll, Gordon Richardson Lead 6-0 Win Over Pirates; Phillies Edge White Sox, 2-1

BY MURRAY CHASS

When Gary Kroll left Philadelphia last August, the Phillies were in first place in the National League. Four months later, when Gordon Richardson departed St. Louis, the Cardinals were world champions.

Today, their destinies joined not at the top but at the bottom, Kroll and Richardson possess the first no-hit game ever pitched for the New York Mets.

Kroll, a 23-year-old right-hander, pitched the first six innings, and the 25-year-old Richardson, a lefty, performed the final three as the Mets blanked Pittsburgh 60 Monday.

The no-hitter, the first of the baseball exhibition season, marked the first time the Mets had a hitless game pitched for them, in exhibition or regular season play, instead of against them.

Walked Them

While not allowing a hit, Kroll walked three Pirates, all in the first inning, and struck out five. He retired the final 16 batters he faced. Richardson put down four more before Del Crandall reached first on shortstop Roy McMillan's error in the eighth inning.

No-hitters are nothing new to Kroll, who stands 6-foot-6½ and weighs 220. He pitched one in 1959, his first year in organized baseball, while with Johnson City in the Appalachian League, then came back the next season with another for Bakersfield of the California League.

Until now Kroll has been awkward in his major league appearances. Last year he led the league with four balks, compiled in only 25 innings, this spring he apparently is benefitting from Mets' pitching coach Warren Spahn and a loss of 16 pounds.

Loss of Weight

"Spahn has shown me how to use my body," Kroll said. I'm not just throwing with my arm now. And I think the loss of weight did me good. It may have been that the weight was binding me, and that now I'm looser when I throw."

A pitcher who wasn't so fortunate Monday was Sandy Koufax in Milwaukee's 6-1 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Braves rocked Koufax for three runs on a walk and five singles in the fifth inning after he had limited them to two hits in the first four innings.

Washington received its best spring pitching when Frank Kreutzer and Buster Narum combined for a 5-hit, 3-1 victory over Detroit.

Los Angeles' Costen Shockley banged out four hits and drove in four runs, but Boston still defeated the Angels 9-7.

Twins Win, 4-3

In one-run games, Dick Reese's run-scoring single in the ninth gave Minnesota a 4-3 victory over St. Louis. Philadelphia edged the Chicago White Sox 2-1 on a double by Johnny Briggs and Ken Berry's error and Cincinnati nipped Baltimore 2-1 behind Charley James' two-run homer.

Houston, aided by three New York errors and Ron Brand's two-run homer stopped the Yankees 7-4 while Cleveland and San Francisco battled to a 3-3 tie in a 13-inning game halted by agreement.

Kansas City defeated another Dodger squad 4-1 as Moe Drabowsky and Lew Krausse combined for a two-hitter.

Valley Baseball Loop Will Operate With 7 Teams This Season

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

FREEDOM — The Fox Valley Baseball League will operate as a 7-team circuit during the 1965 season, league officials decided at a meeting here Monday night.

The seven teams are all holdover clubs from last season. Only Oshkosh did not return.

After the first organizational meeting two weeks ago six teams had indicated they were ready for the campaign and Monday night Manitowoc reported ready.

In addition to Manitowoc, other holdover teams include Kaukauna, Little Chute-Kimberly, Freedom, Menasha, Two Rivers and Fond du Lac.

Opening Day

Since pairings for opening day games May 16 were selected at the last meeting, Manitowoc was awarded a bye for the first set of games.

Secretary Frank Warner reported that a number of other area teams had been contacted about joining the circuit but were not interested at this time. Clubs contacted included Clintonville, Waupaca and DePere. Howards Grove was reported interested in joining the loop but did not have a representative at the meeting.

In other action, officials voted to allow additions to be made to player rosters early in the season for those clubs which do not have a full roster of 32 players. New players can play in a league game before they are put on the official roster when the opposing manager gives his consent in the presence of the home plate umpire. The rule change passed by a 4-3 vote with Little Chute-Kimberly, Freedom and Menasha opposed.

"Kelly" Weller was again selected as league commissioner. The next meeting is set for Sunday, May 2, in Menasha. Managers will submit player rosters and the schedule will be approved at that session.

Braves Down Dodgers; Carty Back in Outfield

Fischer, Umbach Combine for 6-1 Win Over Koufax

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Rico Carty, the Milwaukee Braves' slugging rookie sensation last year, is back in left field, hoping Manager Bobby Bragan will let him forget he ever donned a first baseman's mitt.

Carty returned to left after a dismal test as a first baseman and helped the Braves to a 6-1 victory over southpaw fireballer Sandy Koufax and the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday before a wee turnout of 957 fans who braved chilly and occasionally rainy weather.

Unhappy in the first base trial, Carty was woefully inept. And he didn't try to conceal his displeasure. Bragan, however, didn't indicate whether Carty's days as a first baseman are ended. The manager and his coaches planned an "executive session" to make a final decision.

Carty celebrated his return to the outfield by collecting one hit, scoring a run, driving in a tally and stealing a base. The theft was surprising as the big musceman from the Dominican Republic reportedly has aching feet.

Evened Record

Veteran right-hander Hank Fischer and rookie Arnie Umback, whose three options have run out, combined to stop the Dodgers as the Braves evened their Grapefruit League record 5-5.

Fischer was in trouble in each of his five innings, allowing eight hits and walking two, but escaped damage until the fifth, when the Dodgers put together a pair of singles around a walk for their one run. He was aided by second baseman Frank Bolling, who turned two defensive gems into double plays.

The Braves nicked Koufax for a run in the second on walks to Carty and Denny Menke and Bolling's single. Milwaukee nailed down the decision by scoring three runs on a walk and singles by Bolling, Mike de la Hoz, Eddie Mathews, Carty and Gene Oliver. Mathews and Bolling each had a pair of hits off Koufax, who surrendered seven safeties and three walks.

Baseball Pension Fund Has Paid Out $4.5 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — The Major League Players Pension Fund has paid out almost $4.5 million in pensions, life insurance and health care to baseball players, former players and their families since 1947.

Commissioner Ford Frick said Monday $32 million had been contributed to the fund with less than 10 per cent — about $2.9 million — coming from the players. Television revenue from World Series and All-Star games have made up the bulk of contributions.

Frick said 785 players and former players are eligible for benefits by virtue of having played in the majors for five years or more. Of the total membership, 239 are still active in the big leagues.

Currently, 156 former players have reached age 50 and 33 surviving beneficiaries are receiving monthly pensions. Amounts of pension payments depend on length of service.

Aaron Lists Only 'Outside Chance' For Opening Day

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Hammerin' Hank Aaron, the Milwaukee Braves' slugging outfielder, doubts he'll be ready for the National League opener at Cincinnati April 12.

Aaron said there was only "an outside chance" he'll be fit as he checked out of Milwaukee Hospital Monday, six days after undergoing surgery for removal of a bone spur from his left ankle.

"I saw X-rays on the ankle today and the results are very good," Aaron said. "If the cast is removed in two weeks, I could make it for opening day. But, frankly, I doubt it."

Kundla Guest Speaker

Flynn Named Warriors' Most Valuable at Fete

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Junior forward Tom Flynn was named the Marquette basketball team's most valuable player in the just completed season Monday night, becoming only the second Warrior to win the award twice.

The presentation was made at the annual basketball dinner, attended by about 200 persons.

Flynn, who ranks 13th on the Warriors' all-time scoring list with 880 points, joined Mike Moran as the only double winner of the MVP award. It was given to Moran in 1957 and 1959.

Senior guard Rocke Calvelli received the Tip-off Club free throw award. He hit on 44 of 61 chances for 72 per cent.

Coach Al McGuire, in looking back on his first Marquette season, in which the Warriors won only eight games, said, "I've had 24-2, 23-4 and 25-1 seasons in the past but I've never had as much pleasure as I did in coaching this team. If we have a little patience and get some help from the freshmen, I think next year we're going to get 'em."

Minnesota Coach John Kundla was the dinner speaker and said athletic scholarships were ruining "a lot of boys."

"In the old days," Kundla said, "an athlete had to work for everything he got. Now, some boys think they've got it made once they get a scholarship. That scares me more than anything else."

Asked later for more details, he said he wasn't advocating the junking of athletic scholarships.

"The ideal thing," he said, would be to have a boy come to school on his own and once he's proven himself athletically and scholastically after the first year, then be awarded a scholarship."

Kundla said he didn't see much future for the suggestion because not all schools would agree with it.

Gopher '9' Rated First in Poll

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Minnesota Gophers, defending NCAA champions, were ranked No. 1 in the first poll of 1965 announced Monday by the newspaper, Collegiate Baseball.

The Gophers, who had not played a game when the balloting was going on, were a strong choice for the top position, getting 17 first place votes. Second was perennial powerhouse, University of Southern California, followed by Santa Clara and UCLA.

Rounding out the top 10 were Mississippi, Michigan State, Arizona State University, Maine, Baylor and Florida.

Darden Selected as Wolverine Captain

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Oliver Darden, a star of Michigan's Big Ten basketball champions, was elected captain of the 1965-66 Wolverines Monday.

Darden, a 6-foot-7 forward and weighing 235 pounds, will be a senior next season.

He succeeds Larry Tregoning as Michigan captain.

Xavier High School's Track Team Features 11 Lettermen

Campaign Tentatively Scheduled To be Launched April 24

BY TERRY GALVIN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Tom Peotter, Jim Gmeiner and Mike and Pat Toppins head the list of 11 returning lettermen on the 1965 Xavier High School track squad.

Some 142 boys turned out for the opening indoor drills three weeks ago but the field has dwindled to 89. Only six seniors dot the roster. The remaining 83 are divided quite equally between freshmen, sophomore and junior class members.

Mullen, an experienced pole vaulter and Peotter, low hurdles and dash man, share the captaincy of the 1965 edition.

Peotter, Gmeiner and the Toppins brothers are the top returning point-winners from the '64 team that swept to five straight dual meet victories, one triangular win and the Fox Valley Catholic Conference championship. The latter three are juniors.

Gmeiner specializes in the high and broad jump. Mike and Pat Toppins are specialists in the 880 and mile run, respectively.

Feavel earned his 'X' as a vaulter, while Milhaupt and Tennessen compete in the 440. Weiss will probably see action in the 880, with Van Dyke slated for duty in the dashes and discus.

Coach Bob Pliska's charges are tentatively slated to open the season April 24 at Marinette Central Catholic, but Pliska is seeking a dual meet at an earlier date, if possible.

Strong Points

The Xavier thinclad mentor listed the middle distances, mile, low hurdles and pole vault as the team's strong points. Each of the aforementioned events will have at least one letterman representative in competition.

The weaker points of the team, according to the coach, appear to be the dashes, weights, high hurdles and a general lack of depth.

Seniors expected to help, in addition to the letter-winners, are Jim Sprister, Mike Gerrity and Jim Heinritz.

Major graduation losses include Bob (Rocky) Bleier, experienced in five events; Bill Timmers, high jump; hurdlers Jerry Seljan and Mike Becker, Ron Bixby, 440 and weight-man Ken Zagzebski.

Bleier, though not outstanding in any particular event, added considerable depth to the '64 team because of his versatility.

The schedule: April 24—At Marinette. April 30—At Fond du Lac Springs. May 5—At Premontre. May 11—Triangular at Premontre (Lourdes). May 13—At Menasha St. Mary. May 15—At Oshkosh Lourdes.

Unscheduled meets include Little Chute St. John, De Pere Pennings and FVCC meet.

Ex-British Star Frowns on Payola in Amateur Tennis

LEEDS, England (AP) — Bunny Austin, former British Davis Cup star, said Monday that the world's best tennis players are refraining from turning professional because they make more money as amateurs.

The 58-year-old ex-player, who was twice a losing finalist at Wimbledon, said "shamateurism" has become a way of life in tennis.

"In my days you could not earn a living playing amateur tennis," Austin said.

"You could earn a little by writing, you could get a lot of your expenses paid, but there was no future in it. So the boys became professionals and did well.

"But the professional game depends on the constant addition of new blood. And what is happening today is that the amateurs are not turning professional because, I am told, they make more money as amateurs."

Austin backed the All-England Club, promoter of the Wimbledon tournament, for its efforts to get Wimbledon thrown open to professionals as well as amateurs.

Fractured Finger Shelves McCarver

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Catcher Tim McCarver of the St. Louis Cardinals will be sidelined about one week with a fractured right index finger.

McCarver was injured almost a week ago trying to break up a double play, but the extent of the injury was not disclosed until Monday.

Title-Winning Curlers Will Meet LBJ

NEW YORK (AP) — Superior's world championship curling team returned from Scotland Monday en route to a meeting with President Johnson in Washington.

The four-man team led by Raymond H. Somerville won the U.S. championship and then became the first American quartet to win the world title as it defeated Canada at Perth, Scotland, last Thursday.

"This is the happiest thing that ever happened to us," Somerville said. "We still can't quite realize we won. It's quite an honor for us, our town, our state and the country."

Somerville said he and his teammates expect to meet President Johnson today or Wednesday, depending upon arrangements made by Rep. Alvin O'Konski, R-Wis.

62nd ABC Pin Tourney Will Open Thursday

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Forty newly-laid lanes are ready for the 62nd annual American Bowling Congress Tournament opening Thursday for an estimated 27,350 bowlers, who will roll for prize money totaling almost one-half million dollars.

Bowling's biggest classic, before it's over 10 weeks from now, will find five-man teams, doubles and singles competitors from 45 states, the District of Columbia and four other countries.

Canada will send 23 teams. One team of Americans working in Saudi Arabia oil fields is among entries.

All of the 1964 title winners at Oakland, Calif., except the winning California booster team, are entered. They include Bill Hardwick, San Mateo, Calif., 1964 singles and all-events winner; Hal Jolley and Bob Strampe, Detroit, doubles champions, and the Falstaff team of St. Louis, captained by Billy Welu.

The ABC convention will be held April 4-10 when delegates will decide whether to hold the 1968 tournament in Cincinnati or Madison, Wis. The 1966 tournament will be held in Rochester, N.Y., and 1967 in Miami.

Auerbach Now Stockholder With Celtics

Predicts Bright Future for League, Cites Fan Interest

BOSTON (AP) — Red Auerbach — pro basketball's highest paid coach at an estimated $50,000. — has bought a piece of successville, otherwise known as the Boston Celtics.

Lou Pieri publicly welcomed Auerbach Monday as a fellow stockholder with himself and Mrs. Walter Brown, widow of the Celtics' late owner-president.

Auerbach has spent 15 of his 19 coaching years in the National Basketball Association building a Boston dynasty which now boasts nine consecutive Eastern Division titles. The team is seeking its eighth league crown, seventh in a row in the coming playoffs.

Added Job

Red took on the added job of general manager shortly after Brown's death last summer.

"I see a bright future for the league and the game in Boston," Auerbach said, adding interest higher than ever here.

Pieri would not give out details of the deal but said Auerbach did not get a full one-third share of the club but he was "permitted to purchase stock and on terms very favorable to him."

Red would not comment on the $50,000 salary estimate other than to say "I don't come cheap." However, Pieri revealed the figure was "very close."

Agreed to Sell

Amid persistent rumors the Celtics will be sold, Auerbach revealed he has put on paper he will act as general manager-coach for one more year regardless of the ownership Pieri said that if he and Mrs Brown should put the club up for sale Auerbach has agreed to sell his holdings too.

Auerbach says he never would want to be sole owner of this or any other team.

Pieri put to rest speculation about possible future sale at least until after the playoffs. "All we want to do now is concentrate on the championship," he said.

Three Promising Rookies Lost Via Draft by Giants

PHOENIX, Ariz (AP) — Three promising San Francisco rookies, two pitchers and an infielder, have been lost to the club via the first year draft rule.

Right-handed pitcher Tom Jones and infielder Johnny Richards, each 18, were picked up for the $8,000 waiver price by Houston's Astros Pittsburgh grabbed 6-foot 6-inch righ

Twins' Power Leaves Mele With Optimistic Air, Despite Defense

BY JACK HAND

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Minnesota muscle men scare everybody in the American League, including their own pitching staff. Balls rocket into orbit off the bats of Harmon Killebrew, Tony Oliva, Jimmie Hall and Bob Allison. But too many enemy ground balls and bloopers reach fair territory untouched by human hand.

Manager Sam Mele sadly tells tales of unearned runs and shocking boots in the late innings that turned two-run leads into disasters.

"There has to be something wrong when we hit more home runs and score more runs than anybody in the league and finish tied for sixth," said Mele. "When Camilo Pascual and Jim Grant are pitching, the team seems to make more boots than any other time. Sure, pitching is very important, but defense makes good pitching."

Finished Second

"Still you have to be optimistic when you think of all those home runs and also remember we finished second in 1962 with the same infield."

Mele has made one change that he believes will tighten the defense. He has moved Killebrew, a slow but willing outfielder, to first base and restored Allison to his old post in left field.

"Harm can play the infield all right," said Mele "I am not worried about that. Last year they were going from first to third on short fly balls to left They won't do that with Allison. Tony Oliva is becoming a good outfielder in right. He is the closest thing to Al Kaline you ever saw at this stage of his career. He runs better than Al and has as good an arm as Kaline and is stronger"

With Allison in left, Oliva, the batting champ, in right and Hall in center, the outfield should produce at least 90 home runs. Killebrew could add another 50 at first and the others should hit enough to equal last year's total of 221.

The problem is stopping the other fellows. Richie Rollins at third and Zoilo Versalles, an erratic but sometimes brilliant shortstop, should do half the job. But second is a gaping hole because of Bernie Allen's slow recovery from knee surgery. Cesar Tovar, former Cincinnati farmhand, is getting every change to win the job. Perhaps Mele will have to fall back on Jerry Kindall, despite his .183 average.

Earl Battey is the No. 1 catcher, with help from Jerry Zimmerman. Sandy Valdespino, who hit .337 at Atlanta, probably will stick as an outfield spare.

The pitching could be heavy with left-handers, especially if Jim Merritt, strikeout king of the International League, makes it. Mele already has two starting southpaws, Jim Kaat and Dick Stigman, plus right-handers Pascual and Grant. He hopes to put together a sound bullpen staff from Johnny Klippstein, Al Worthington, Jim Perry, Bill Pleis and Garry Roggenburk.

Once again the big guns will sound off for the Twins but they still haven't found a way to stop the other team.

Want Bradley To Play in All-Star Game

Ask Ivy League To Waive Rule for East-West Tilt

LEXINGTON, Ky (AP) — The Ivy League has been asked to let Bill Bradley play in the East-West College All-Star basketball game and thus complete one of the most powerful college cage rosters in history.

The Ivy League has a rule against play in post-season all-star games. There was no indication when a decision would be made on whether to waive it for Bradley.

Bradley, the 6-foot-5 Princeton star, would be the fourth members of this year's Associated Press All-America team to agree to play in the classic Saturday at 2 p.m., EST, at the University of Kentucky.

The fifth All-America, Cazzie Russell of Michigan, is ineligible because he is a junior.

Included On Roster

In addition, the East-West rosters include Dave Stallworth of Wichita and Bill Buntin of Michigan, second team All-Americas, and North Carolina's Bill Cunningham, Tennessee's A. W. Davis and UCLA's Keith Erickson from the third team.

Joe Lapchick, who coached St. John's to a record fourth National Invitation Tournament championship last weekend, will coach the East. Doggie Julian of Darmouth is coach for the West.

"This is a showcase of basketball," Lapchick said. "All of the pro teams will have scouts here."

Both coaches were hesitant to name a starting team, since by the rules each side must give every player 10 minutes of action in the first half.

Julian, however, is likely to start Ollie Johnson of San Francisco at the pivot. Stallworth and Erickson at forwards and Jim Jarvis of Oregon State and Gail Goodrich of UCLA at guards.

Depends on Bradley!

Lapchick's starting team depends on whether Bradley is available. If he is, he'll start.

Others likely are Cunningham, Fred Hetzel of Davidson, Tom Van Arsdale of Indiana and Rick Barry of Miami, the nation's highest scorer the past season

Hetzel and Barry, like Bradley and Goodrich, are All Americas.

Elaine Krueger Slams 571 Set, Leads Loop

Ann Hocevar Hits 570 Series in 5-Minus-2 League

Vivian Hilger powered a 220 game and Elaine Krueger rocked a 571 series to divide honors in the Five-Minus-Two League at Sabre Lanes Monday night.

Vivian finished with a 527 series and Elaine had games of 201 and 190 with her high set.

Sabre Lanes (56-19) won the league championship as final games were rolled in the circuit last night. Hahn's finished second, 2½ games behind.

Ann Hocevar came within one pin of high series in the Five-Minus-Two loop with a booming 570 set that included a 213 game.

Rosie Schuettpelz cracked a 226 game and Phyllis Ludwig had a 518 series to lead the South Side Ladies League at the 41 Bowl Monday. Phyllis also had a 201 game and Rosie finished with a 517 series for runnerup honors in that department.

Lois Kuse had a 510 series to lead the Lucky League at Sabre Lanes last night. The only other honor score in the loop was a 507 by Margaret Zehren.

Second Base Remains Big Problem for Cubs

BY MIKE RATHET

MESA, Ariz (AP) — Ron Santo, the Chicago Cubs' standout third baseman, was talking about Ken Hubbs, the slick-fielding second baseman who was killed last year in an airplane crash.

"You have no idea how his loss affected us last year," Santo said "He was a wonderful guy, pleasant and nice to be with and his loss hurt us mentally. In a baseball sense, I couldn't even measure how much his loss cost us — maybe 10 victories or more."

Now, a year later, the same problem of finding a replacement for Hubbs presents itself at the Cub's camp

Jimmy Stewart, who stepped in at second base last year but hit only .253, is switching to shortstop this season because Andre Rodgers has been traded.

The new second base candidate is Glenn Beckert, a 23-year-old standout snatched from the Boston Red Sox in the 1962 first-year draft. Beckert hit .277 at Salt Lake City last season.

The quality of the double play combination remains the big problem, but if Beckert can't make it there's Joey Amalfitano to fill in. Also a candidate is Ron Campbell, up from Salt Lake after a .273 season.

The rest of the infield forms two-thirds of possibly the hardest hitting trio in the National League Santo, .313, 30 homers, 114 runs batted in, is at third with Ernie Banks, .264, 23 homers, 95 RBI at first. Billy Williams, .312, 33 homers and 98 RBI, completes the slugging trio.

Since George Altman was reacquired from the New York Mets Williams is switching from left to center field. Altman will be in left while right field is up for grabs. Len Gabrielson and Doug Clemens are battling for the berth.

There is one major problem in that alignment All are left-handed hitters and there's a definite need for a righty. If any fail to reach expectations, first baseman Mack Kuykendall or John Boccabella could make the switch

Catching is in the capable hands of Dick Bertell. 3

Return to Form

Dick Ellsworth, 14-18 last season, is looking for a return to his 20-victory season of 1963 Veterans Bob Buhl, 15-14, and Lew Burdette, 9-9, showed they still can throw, and there are two youngsters who might just be ready after some major league seasoning — Cal Koonce and Sterling Slaughter.

Then add Ernie Broglio, acquired last season in the trade that sent outfielder Lou Brock to the St Louis Cardinals. Broglio, who won 21 games in 1960 and 18 in 1962, had bone chips removed from his arm this winter and is hopeful of cracking the starting rotation.

The bullpen is a bit thin with Lindy McDaniel the only big stopper

Still, with all that hitting from the Santo-Banks-Williams combine and a possibly strong pitching staff, the key to the Cubs chances of moving up from eighth place rest with the double play combination.

Chamberlain Annexes Fifth Scoring Crown

Robertson Tops Playmaking Mark With 11.5 Assists

NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain scored 2,534 points during the National Basketball Association's 19th season and set an all-time league record — for good behavior

Chamberlain, who captured his fifth successive scoring title while dividing the season between San Francisco and Philadelphia, has played in 464 NBA games since breaking in with the Warriors five years ago and has never been disqualified on fouls.

His string was one of four records established or extended during 1964-65 regular-season play, final league figures reveal.

Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson topped his own playmaking mark with an average of 11.5 assists per-game; Johnny Kerr of Philadelphia stretched his iron-man skein through 834 straight games and Bailey Howell of Baltimore was charged with a record 345 personal fouls.

Lost Most Games

The Boston Celtics set a record of 62 season victories, erasing their old mark by two, and San Francisco accounted for three other team records — all negative The Warriors lost the most games ever in a single season, 63, and set records with a 17-game losing streak and 25 home defeats

Chamberlain averaged 34.7 points per-game in 73 starts to defend his point crown Runner-up Jerry West of Los Angeles had a 31-point average and third-place Robertson finished at 30.4 per-game.

Chamberlain finished on top in field goal percentage, with a .510 accuracy mark, but had the worst free throw percentage, .464, among NBA regulars. He was the only player to finish with 8 better mark from the field than from the foul line

Larry Costello, Wilt's Philadelphia teammate, paced the free-throwers with an .877 mark Costello missed only 34 of 277 attempts from the line

Bartlesville '5' Upset in AAU; Akron Rolls On

San Francisco Posts 80-67 Win; Stallworth Nets 33

DENVER (AP) — Akron's heavily - favored defending champions play Denver and San Francisco meets the Armed Forces All-stars in the semifinals tonight of the National AAU Basketball Tournament.

San Francisco overturned second-seeded Barlesville, Okla., the 1964 runner-up, in the bit surprise of Monday night's quarter-finals 80-67.

Akron, poised and talented, choked off Long Beach, Calif., 77-67. Denver outhustled Arkansas City, Kan., for a 95-88 victory. The Armed Forces All-Stars used a fast break to steam by Brownstowgn, Ind., 84-70.

Ollie Johnson and Jim Brovelli, 1963 teammates at San Francisco University, provided a 1-2 punch that sent Bartlesville reeling. Brovelli, a dribble artist, keut the Oklahoma defenders off blance most of the night and slipped through for 18 points, high for the game. Johnson added 17..

Trailed All Way

Bartlesville trailed all the way and was down 22-12 before Ray Carey touched off a rally that narrowed the gap to 33-30 just before halftime.

Denver cut loose with 16 points in a 4½ minute span while Arkansas City was scoreless to turn the tide in their game. Denver was trailing 55-44 and after the spree was in front 60-55. Alomar's First Hit

Milwaukee added two runs off Ron Perranoski in the eighth, combining a walk, an error, and outfield fly and rookie infielder Sandy Alomar's first hit of the training season, a single inside the third base bag.

Umbach, a right-hander, made an impressive bid to stick with the Braves. He allowed only two harmless singles and struck out three in the final four innings.

Felipe Alou, a natural outfielder, started at first base and went hitless. Veteran Lee Maye was rested and Ty Cline went the route in centerfield, falling to get a hit in five trips to the plate. Despite his dismal afternoon, Cline boasts a .333 average on six hits in 18 times at bat.

The Braves traveled to Ft. Myers today to meet the Pittsburgh Pirates. Frank Lary and Dick Kelley were named to pitch for Milwaukee.

Jerry's Lanes '5' Wins Crown in Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA — Jerry's Lanes, Kimberly, fought off a last quarter raly by Borgwardt's Poultry, Milwaukee, to take a 95-93 win and the championship of the Kaukauna High School Athletic Association Class A tournament Sunday.

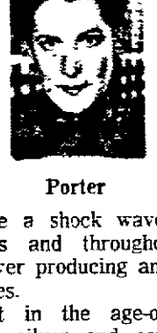
No Alternative Seen to Eliminating Silver Coin

BY SYLVIA PORTER

In mid-April the U.S. Treasury will send a report to Congress asking for the most fundamental change in our silver-coinage system in 173 years, for there is no alternative now to the elimination of silver from our dimes, quarters and 50-cent pieces.

The Treasury's agonizing decision, reached after a full year of intensive study of our entire coinage system, will undoubtedly cause a shock wave — in Congress and throughout the U.S. silver producing and using industries.



Porter

A cut in the age-old link between silver and coins will also, without doubt, be a tremendous psychological wrench for all the millions of owners and users of our nation's 48 billion coins.

Be Prepared

It's vitally important that you be prepared for the headlines to come, that you understand the facts and major issues behind a decision which is inevitable. Not only will the report be controversial and confusing but it already has set off a crescendo of scare talk about "destroying our coinage system," "trying to run a bank without money," "replacing today's coins with worthless slugs."

The plain fact at the heart of the Treasury's forthcoming verdict is that the U.S. is rapidly running out of silver.

Coin production has soared to meet the demands of our growing population. Vending machines gobble coins. Industry is using record amounts of silver in products ranging from photographic equipment to computers and missiles. A national craze of coin collecting and hoarding has swept trainloads of silver coins into hiding.

Produced Less

In 1964 alone, the Treasury used 203 million ounces of silver to make coins, while industry used another 120 million ounces. Yet, the U.S. produced only 37 million ounces of silver.

Just 1965's coin minting is expected to absorb the equivalent of the silver production of the entire free world. Our silver supply is now down to 1.1 billion ounces, of which about 500 million ounces must be set aside as a defense reserve. At today's projected coin production rate, containing today's silver content and with today's other uses for silver — the Treasury's supply could be wiped out in less than two years.

What, then, are the alternatives?

(1) The silver mining interests propose a drastic reduction in the silver content of coins — from today's 90 per cent to 30 per cent.

This would stretch out the Treasury's supply — and keep the producers' biggest customer. The new coins would fit easily into our 4.5 million vending machines: we pour 30 billion coins into these machines each year to buy $3.5 billion of goods and services.

Holding Action

But experts believe this would be only a holding action and shortages surely would reoccur. Simple arithmetic indicates that even if we reduced the proportion to 15 per cent, we would still run out of silver.

Moreover, reduction of silver in new coins might lead to wholesale hoarding of old coins and even mass melting of today's coins by speculators in silver.

(2) Other silver producers urge a doubling of the value of all silver coins — making a dime woth 20 cents, a quarter worth 50 cents — and a doubling of the price of silver as well.

While this would be a bonanza for the producers, it would result in chaotic public confusion and place a huge financial burden on silver-using industries. As for the impact on silver mining of a higher price, authorities believe that there simply aren't enough new sources of the metal to fill even a fraction of the skyrocketing demand.

(3) Another proposal of the silver miners is reduction of the size of our coins. But this would create a nightmare for telephone and vending machines, and again would only postpone the crisis.

"The only solution," says the Silver Users Association, "is new legislation directing that new coinage be minted without silver." All today's facts flash the signal that, sonner or later, the U.S. Government will have to get out of the silver business.

Tomorrow: How coins will change.

UCLA Given Chance For Third NCAA Crown

Bruins Lose Only Two Players From Championship Squad

BY TED MEIER

NEW YORK (AP) — The UCLA Bruins have a good chance of becoming the first team to win the national collegiate basketball championship three consecutive years.

All-America Gail Goodrich and Keith Erickson won't be back with the Bruins next year, but Coach Johnny Wooden again will have available the rest of the team that overwhelmed Michigan 91-80 for the 1965 title at Portland, Ore., Saturday night.

Kenny Washington, Edgar Lacey and Freddie Goss, each a vital cog in the drive that led UCLA to a 28-2 season record, will return, along with several other lettermen.

Wooden's Wonders will be favored to win their fourth straight Pacific Athletic Conference title, qualifying automatically for the 1966 NCAA championship tourney.

Only two teams in the 26-year history of the NCAA tournament have come close to winning three national championships in a row.

Lost in Semifinals

The San Francisco Dons won the NCAA title in 1955 and 1956, then lost to Kansas 80-56 in the semifinals of the 1957 tournament. The Cincinnati Bearcats won in 1961 and 1962, then lost to Chicago Loyola 60-58 in an overtime game for the 1963 title.

UCLA lost to Arizona State in the second round of the 1963 tournament before winning the championship in 1964 with a 98-83 romp against Duke.

The other Portland semifinalists appear to have a rocky road ahead. All-America Cazzie Russell will be back at Michigan, but the Wolverines lose Bill Buntin and figure to get stiff opposition for the Big Ten title from Minnesota and Iowa.

All-America Bill Bradley of Princeton, named the Most Valuable Player of the tournament, will graduate in June. Hence the Ivy League Tigers don't figure next season. Louisville, St. Louis and Bradley will offer strong opposition to Wichita in the Missouri Valley Conference.

Vanderbilt, with big 6-foot-9 Clyde Lee back, promises to be one of the better teams in 1965, along with North Carolina State, Maryland, Brigham Young, Providence, Boston College, Duke and St. Joseph's of Philadelphia.

Race for Trustee Lone Contest Set In Village Election

KIMBERLY—Major interest in the April 6 village election will be for the position of trustee as five candidates are seeking the three positions to be filled. Alvin Fulcer is unopposed for re-election as village president and county supervisor.

Running for trustees are Bernard Vanden Boogaard, Albert Vander Wielen and Paul Van Dyke, incumbents; James Berreron, former trustee, and James Williams who has run unsuccessfully on one other occasion.

Black Hawks' Cup Games to be on Closed Circuit TV

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Black Hawks, assured of third place in the National Hockey League standings, announced Monday that road games in the Stanley Cup semifinals will be on closed circuit television at the Chicago Stadium.

The first two road games will be April 1 and April 4, if Detroit finishes in first place. If Montreal ends up the season on top, the Hawks first two road games will be April 1 and April 3. The first home games will be April 6 and April 8.

The Red Wings are in first place, two points ahead of Montreal. Each has three regular season games. The Hawks have two games ending their home stand Tuesday night against New York and winding up their 70-game schedule next Sunday in Boston.

The Hawks announced that prices for the home games in the playoff series will be $9 for boxes and promenade, $7 arena, $6 mezzanine, $4.50 first balcony and $3.50 second balcony.

Closed circuit television prices will be $4 for boxes, promenade and arena, $3, mezzanine and $2, first and second balconies. All seats are reserved.

County Might Act as Broker For Club, Says Grobschmidt

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee County Board Chairman Eugene H. Grobschmidt suggested Monday that the county might act as a broker in getting a major league baseball franchise after the Braves move to Atlanta next year.

Grobschmidt told the county board's legislative committee he did not favor county operation of a baseball team, but he urged the group to support a bill before the Wisconsin Senate to permit the county to own and operate a club as a non-profit organization.

Grobschmidt said that passage of the measure might permit the county to purchase a team and then sell it to private interests.

"The bill would give notice to the world that we have the power to buy," Grobschmidt said. "Anybody who has a franchise to sell would know who to contact."

The committee disregarded with objections by County Executive John Doyne and voted 5-1 to support the bill. Doyne argued that "the county is now in more businesses than we can stand."

"We just had an hour and 20 minutes of discussion about civil defense," Doyne said. "Can you imagine what it would have been with the manager of a baseball team?"

Grobschmidt announced that he and other county supervisors plan to meet in Washington Monday with Wisconsin Sens. Gaylord Nelson and William Proxmire and U.S. Reps. Clement Zablocki and Henry Reuss, both of Milwaukee, and Emmanuel Cellar, D-N.Y., who is seeking to include baseball under provisions of antitrust laws.

Name Golfer Likely to Win Masters, Says Bob Jones

ATLANTA (AP) — Can only a master of the game win the Masters Golf Tournament?

Bob Jones, rated one of the greatest golfers in the history of the game, says he doesn't see anyone but a big name golfer winning the tournament, which begins April 8.

"I read all the time now where some golfer whose name I've never heard has won a tournament," Jones said. "But I doubt seriously if any rank outsider could win the Masters.

"The premium is too high there on experience and self discipline," he said.

Jones also said that he doesn't believe that Ben Hogan's Masters' record of 274 is in danger, although Arnold Palmer came close with a 276 last year.

"It would take quite a feat to do it," he said. "For one thing the course is a little tougher now than it was in 1953 when Hogan shot that score.

"We had perfect weather for that tournament, and we did last year, too, when Palmer came close with a 276," Jones said. "Anything's possible in golf, but I repeat, it would take quite a feat."

Funeral Rites Are Held for Amos A. Stagg

Former Players, Coaches at Services For 'Grand Old Man'

BY JACK STEVENSON

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — "Winning is never worthwhile unless something nobler and finer is behind it. When I reach the soul of one of my boys with an idea or an ideal or a vision, then I think I have done my job as a coach."

Amos Alonzo Stagg spoke those words in years long past, and they became part of the eulogy Sunday at funeral services for the grand old man of football who died last week at 102 years of age.

His boys were there, some of them grandfathers several times over. Nelson Norgren, captain of the University of Chicago team in 1913, reminisced over the Big Ten championship won by the Maroons that year.

Kyle Anderson, who played for Stagg in 1925-27, recalled the first man-in-motion plays, and Fritz Crisler, athletic director at Michigan, remembered his years as an assistant to Stagg.

Stagg's son, Amos Alonzo Jr., and Paul also played for their father at Chicago.

The Rev. Myron Herrell officiated at the services in the new Central Methodist Church where only one week before the church Bible had been dedicated in the names of Mr. and Mrs. Stagg.

"Life of Sports"

"Competition is the life of sports," said the Rev. Mr. Herrell, "and Mr. Stagg was highly competitive. Competition, however, in his view, was not for the purpose of beating someone down; rather it was a way of bringing the best out of every player. He fought to win but this was always secondary to the creation of excellence.

"The playing field was the training ground for the kind of life which would accept only its best, and which would demand the full excellence of which man is capable."

Services were relatively brief on a warm, sunny day as 400 gathered to pay final homage to the man that lived a full life under spartan rules — he never smoked, drank or swore.

As the closed casket was carried from the church, bells tolled at University of the Pacific just across the street. For when he reached the mandatory retirement age of 70 at Chicago in 1932, Stagg came to the then College of the Pacific and served as head coach for another 15 seasons.

In attendance were Dr. Kingman Brewster of Yale, where Stagg starred in baseball and on the first All-America football team in 1889, Walter Hass, director of athletics at Chicago, and Dr. Robert E. Burns, president of UOP.

Pallbearers included former players, coaching associates and neighbors.

Interment of the grand old man, the only one honored both as player and coach in Football's Hall of Fame, will be in Stockton near his wife, Stella.

Supervisors to Go to Meeting On CTH OO

LITTLE CHUTE—Paul Kostka, village president, and George Kroes, chairman of the Town of Vandenbroek, together with other interested county supervisors, will attend a public hearing at Madison Wednesday on transfer of controled-access status of County Trunk O.

State Sen. Gerald Lorge (Bear Creek) has introduced a bill asking that supervision of that part of the controled access of County Trunk OO that is in Outagamie County be transferred from the state highway commission to Outagamie.

Lorge introduced the bill after the County Board requested such action in June of 1964. The county and municipalities and townships bordering on OO seek county control as many report ideal building lots are landlocked by the controlled-access status.

Control was needed by the state when the road served as State 41, but with the moving of the state highway, it is felt the county could better maintain access rights on the county trunk and help area municipalities in development of additional land area for their communities.

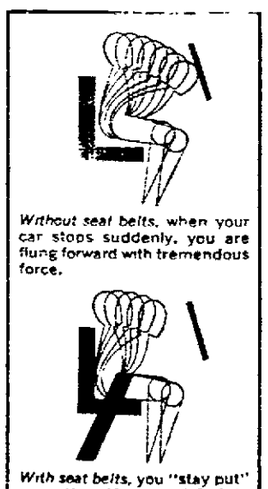
His seat belt saved his life because it was "buckled up" when his car was struck by a train at a Melrose, Minn. grade crossing

As Mutual Service says: "Buckle Up And Live"



Without seat belts, when your car stops suddenly, you are flung forward with tremendous force.

With seat belts, you "stay put" . . . with a Margin of Safety between you and serious injury

Mutual Service policyowner Chrys Athmann of Melrose, Minnesota, was making a short trip across town on the morning of December 17th. A locomotive struck his car just back of center, completely demolishing it. His seat belt held him within the padded protection of the front seat. He suffered no broken bones and only minor injuries. He had purchased his seat belt before the state law requiring them on new cars went into effect. He's mighty thankful he had his seat belt buckled up!

How about YOU and your passengers? Chrys Athmann had no idea he would be involved in an accident. And neither will you — until it happens!

If all motorists had used seat belts in 1964, as did Chrys Athmann, an estimated 5,000 lives would have been saved and 600,000 persons injured less seriously, or not at all, according to the National Safety Council.

It's plain to see that it really pays to "Buckle Up And Live" — wherever and whenever you drive!

Arsonist Seen As Fire Strikes In Green Bay

Fourth Downtown Blaze in Month; Damage $15,000

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY—For the fourth time in slightly less than a month, fire has caused heavy damage to a downtown Green Bay building.

The latest blaze caused an estimated $15,000 damage to the Findeisen-Greiser Furniture Co. at 222 Main St. The fire was reported at 1:05 a.m. by persons who saw flames shoot from a pair of windows at the rear of the store.

Fire officials investigating the blaze say they now are convinced an arsonist is at work in Green Bay. Adding to the fact that this morning's fire was the fourth in as many weeks was the statement of a parking lot attendant who claimed he saw a man on a fire escape outside the building some 10 minutes before the fire was discovered.

Firemen who battled the blaze in chilly 16-degree temperatures were credited with doing "an exceptional job" in holding the fire to a second-floor corner area.

"Another two or three minutes and the whole building would have gone," said Fire Chief David Zuidmulder.

Heard Glass

An attendant in a parking lot at the rear of the store, Fred Hagerty, 24, of 1634 Harold St., told fire officials he heard glass breaking about 1 a.m. and went to the rear of the parking lot to check.

He said he saw a man's figure crouched on the fire escape "as if he had slipped." He was unable to describe the man,

Spaceship Changes Its Orbit Path

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's space twins, astronaults Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young, today became the world's first spacemen to shift the orbital path of a spaceship as they whipped high above the earth in their steerable Molly Brown spacecraft.

Performing like test pilots taking up a highpowered aircraft for a trial run, Grissom and Young gave the systems of their space chariot a thorough test in a rehearsal for the demanding long-duration and rendezvous missions planned in the next few months.

A total of 10 two-man Gemini flights is to train pilots for later trips to the moon.

Grissom, the first man to rocket twice into space, was the command pilot for this nation's first two-man space flight. He maneuvered the Molly Brown through a series of tricky exercises and reported that it handled well.

Pet Name

Molly Brown is the astronauts' pet name for the spacecraft, officially the Gemini III. The name, from the musical, "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," alludes to the sinking of Grissom's capsule at the end of his first space flight.

The planned three-orbit flight which began when a Titan II rocket thundered away from Cape Kennedy at 9:24 a.m. was to end four hours, 52 minutes later — about 2:15 p.m. with a

Rain Falls on Civil Righters In Pilgrimage

King Has Left Lineup to Confer On Cleveland Trip

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Rain dampened 300 marchers as they started the third day of their 50-mile civil rights pilgrimage today through swampy, rural Lowndes County minus Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

King left the pasture campsite Monday night and returned to Selma for a staff conference before departing for Cleveland, Ohio, and a program honoring him. He planned to return Wednesday or Thursday.

A light rain fell as the marchers broke camp at 8 a.m. Ahead was about 25 miles of highway in the right-to-vote march begun Sunday at Selma.

The plan calls for thousands to join the final leg into Montgomery Thursday.

Woman Faints

As the column wound from the pasture where tents were pitched Monday night, a Negro, Betty Jean Sullivan, 17, of Marion, Ala., fainted. She was taken away in an ambulance.

The Rev. Andrew Young, an aide to King, told the marchers: "This is the time to drop out if you have blisters and feel you can't make it."

Taking King's place at the head of the line were John Lewis, cochairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee; Albert Turner, a Negro leader from Marion; attorney Charles Rangle of New York; George Fowler of the New York Commission on Human Rights; and Norman Houston, of the Los Angeles National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

In the column was a white woman, Nell Washburn, 65, of Atlanta, Ga. She said she might march all the way.

The marchers had camped for the night at the edge of the dense swamp.

Flight Marks Beginning Of Manned Phase of U. S. Training for Moon Jaunt

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young soared into orbit today in the world's first steerable spacecraft. During their intended three times around the world flight, the astronauts were to maneuver their 'Molly Brown' all over the skies to qualify it for later long-duration and rendezvous missions. The flight, first in which more than one American rode in the same craft, started the manned phase of Project Gemini which is to train crews for a journey to the moon.

Grissom, 38, an Air Force major, and Young, 34, a Navy lieutenant commander, started their breath-taking journey at 9:24 a.m. EST when a powerful Titan 2 rocket flashed to life on a Cape Kennedy launching pad and thundered into the sky.

The launching was delayed 23 minutes because of a leak in a fuel oxidizer line.

Six minutes after launch, the mission control center reported that Molly Brown was in a successful orbit.

If there are no hitches, the pair were to complete their three orbits in four hours, 52 minutes and parachute to a landing in the Atlantic near Grand Turk Island about 2:15 p.m. Recovery ships and planes, headed by the aircraft carrier Intrepid, were stationed in the intended impact area.

Final Maneuver

Grissom, the command pilot, fired small jets to provide the final maneuver that steered the Molly Brown into the desired orbit.

He has the distinction of becoming the first man to rocket twice into space.

On July 21, 1961, he sailed briefly across the threshold of space on a 16-minute project Mercury suborbital flight and, in a hair-raising finish, swam for his life when his Liberty Bell 7 filled with water and sank.

Grissom and Young are the 18th and 19th persons and the seventh and eighth Americans to fly into space. The Soviet Union has orbited 10 men and one woman.

Three Soviet cosmonauts were aloft in the Voskhod 1 last Oct. 16 in the first multiman flight. Five days ago, two more Russians shot into orbit and one of them stepped outside the capsule in an historic space feat.

Lighter Craft

Although the Gemini spacecraft is about 4,000 pounds lighter than the Voskhod, it has a key capability which the Soviet vehicle did not. It can be maneuvered so that astronaut teams can practice techniques that must be perfected for Project Apollo manned lunar landings planned late in this decade.

Both the ability to maneuver and to operate outside an orbiting spacecraft are techniques which must be developed before either Russians or Americans go to the moon.

On the next Gemini flight, scheduled in June, astronaut James A. McDivitt is scheduled to emerge partly at least from his spacecraft.

Twenty minutes after liftoff, while Grissom and Young soared high over Africa, they made checks of their life support system. Grissom reported to a tracking station in the Can-

Cosmonauts In Moscow For Welcome

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet spacemen Pavel Belyayev and Alexei Leonov arrived in Moscow today for the traditional welcome given to successful cosmonauts.

Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev was the first to hug the pair who orbited the earth last week. Then Belyayev and Leonov were hugged by other top Soviet leaders, including Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, President Anastas I. Mikoyan, and party leaders Nikolai Podgorny and Mikhail Suslov.

Belyayev, commander of the spaceship Voskhod 2, and Leonov, the first man to walk in outer space, were flown by special airliner from the space center at Baikonur in Soviet central Asia, where they took off last Thursday on their historic flight.

Proposals Being Revised

Speedup Attempted for Indian Relief Program

MADISON (AP) — A spokesman says an attempt has been under way for two weeks to speed up the implementation of a number of programs for Menominee County under the anti-poverty program.

Robert Smith, community action coordinator for the State department has been working to "pull together" a number of projects for the county, the former Menominee Indian Reservation.

The county has been beset by poverty, health problems and lack of economic opportunity since the tribe was terminated from federal control in 1961.

Local Level

Smith said the effort to speed the programs was started after a March 5 meeting of about 60 representatives of state and local level agencies to consider ways of helping the tribe. Some of the programs were included in or are revisions of proposals contained in a $2 million Menominee project advanced by former Gov. John W. Reynolds.

In Washington, a spokesman for the Office of Economic Opportunity, which supervises anti-poverty projects, said the office hopes to begin studies of the proposals within two or three weeks.

Richard Hausler, director of the office's "rural area task force," said the community action section has already received these proposals:

An appropriation of $18,250 to support a six month study of the county and its activities with the Domestic Peace Corps helping in the project.

Youth Corps

A request for establishment of a neighborhood youth corps to help individuals, especially school dropouts in the 16 to 21 age bracket.

An application for $104,800 to enable School District No. 8 to hire a number of new people, including a nurse and social worker for a program aimed entirely at Menominee County.

Hausler also said the Small Business Administration has sent in men for conferences aimed at promoting new business for the county. Loans up to $25,000 are available for new business ventures.

Hausler also said that Small Business Administration representatives and those of the United States Forest Service had checked the county with a view of organizing new industry related to the county's vast forest holdings.

Roll-Turn Achieved

Rocket Ignites, Prods Ranger Toward Target

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A small steering rocket ignited briefly aboard Ranger 9 this morning, prodding the camera-carrying spacecraft to a course that hopefully will send it hurtling to its death into a moon crater.

A spokesman for Jet Propulsion Laboratory said the spacecraft acknowledged the signal and "apparently executed the command." But scientists said they would not know for certain if the maneuver was successful for at least 10 hours.

The rocket, carried in the case of the 800-pound craft, was ignited for 30 seconds after the spacecraft was ordered to begin a roll-turn at 4:03 a.m. when Ranger 9 was some 175,416 miles from earth and 78,000 miles from the moon moving at 2,934 miles an hour.

Last Mission

Ranger 9, last of the planned moon photographic missions, was directed to change its course by some 400 miles, aiming it directly down the funnel of the crater Alphonsus.

Because of unprecedented accuracy in the launching from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Sunday, only a 400-mile course correction was needed.

Plans called for scientists to start sending a series of commands to the spacecraft 70 minutes before firing of the steering rocket.

These commands, stored in an electronic memory unit until time for execution, ordered the winged vehicle to twist slightly and aim its nose closer to the target.

If all goes well, Ranger 9 will hit the moon early Wednesday, taking thousands of pictures of a possible landing site for future astronauts.

The 60-mile-diameter crater Alphonsus, named after a 13th century Spanish king, lies in a rugged area between the broad plains photographed by Rangers 7 and 8.

Scientists hope its 10,000-foothigh walls may have created a shelter in their lee against the rain of meteorites which have pocked the moon's plains like a shell-scarred battlefield. Some believe smoother landing sites may be found at the base of the crater's walls.

The crater also could be a danger zone. Astronomers have observed red flashes in the area which would be hot gases escaping from volcanic cracks in the lunar crust.

Craft's Impact

A spokesman for Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which built and is guiding Ranger 9, said he knew of no effort by observatories to pinpoint the spacecraft's impact. Previous attempts have been futile.

"Even if Ranger 9 were to hit an active volcanic area," he said, "there would be little likelihood of it causing any reaction visible from earth."

Best chance of finding volcanic activity will lie in study of photographs taken by the spacecraft's six cameras.

Johnson Serious Watching Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, looking serious and rarely changing expression, sat before a television set in his office today and watched the lift-off of the two-man Gemini spaceship.

Johnson, whose viewing of the critical initial minutes of the flight also was recorded by a television camera, did not say a word to the newsmen and photographers who joined him for the occasion.

At one point, just as the capsule rose from the launching pad, Johnson showed a trace of a smile. Otherwise he frowned intently at the screen most of the time.

CAP Self-Help Medical Study Course Offered

Weekly Classes Will Use Facilities of Civil Defense Unit

A medical self-help study course is being offered Fox Cities residents by the Civil Air Patrol through facilities made available by Outagamie County Civil Defense.

Classes will be conducted each Tuesday evening at Wilson Junior High School during the regular meeting of the Fox Cities squadron of CAP. There is no charge for books or materials.

Civil Air Patrol seniors and cadets train regularly to provide emergency specialists for search and rescue, support for law enforcement, officials and general community service.

Currently, the squadron has a program built around the CD medical self-help training program which will include radio communications procedures, emergency services procedures, and air search techniques. The entire course will take approximately 18 weeks. Air Force training films will be used to supplement the instruction. All instructors will come from the Fox Cities squadron staff.

Members of the Fox Cities squadron deviated from their usual practice to open this course to the general public. Adults interested in taking all or part of the course can attend the first meeting Tuesday at Wilson School. Further information is available at the Appleton Civil Air Patrol office.

Legislature to Face Another County Revamping Proposal

Measure Would Clear Way for Other Types of Local Government

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Almost obscured by the issue of county board reapportionment legislation, the legislature will soon come to grips with another major proposal for the reorganization of county government.

With the backing of the so-called "Committee of 25", created by the legislature two years ago to examine potential improvements of Wisconsin governmental administration, the legislature has received a proposal to eliminate the county uniformity clause of the state constitution.

Instead of being limited to a single kind of county government, such as the identical county boards which now exist in Wisconsin counties, the legislature under the proposed constitutional amendment could prescribe up to four different systems of county government, at the option of the counties.

Would Permit Change

The suggested amendment does not describe the alternative forms, which would mean that the legislature could have a free choice — if the amendment is enacted — and could change the approved systems from time to time according to need and circumstances.

Among them, most likely would be the county commission and the county manager form of government, as well as the traditional elected, part-time board of supervisors.

The pending county board redistricting bill would legislate a slight modification of the uniformity system, to the extent that it proposes to classify counties according to their populations and to establish boards of maximum size for each classification. Although earlier some doubts were shown about the validty of such classifications under the uniformity rule of the present constitution, legal consultants advised a legislative interim committee that such classification for purposes of equality of representation would be sustained by the courts.

Released on $2,000 Bond

New London Man Faces Six Charges After Shot-Punctuated Chase

WAUPACA — A rural New London man, arrested after a gunshot punctuated chase through northern Waupaca County, faced six charges Monday when arraigned in Municipal Justice Court.

Ronald G. Snyder, 24, route 3, New London, formerly of Waupaca, was bound over to Waupaca County Court for trial and released on $2,000 bond. He was charged with resisting arrest, petty theft, hit and run, speeding, failure to stop for a stop sign and failure to stop for an emergency vehicle.

Events leading to Snyder's arrest started at 8:30 p.m. Sunday when Waupaca police received a complaint from the Circus Inn that Snyder was suspected of having taken a woman's purse.

Soon after, a second complaint was received that an auto answering the description of Snyder's car, struck a parked car on Mill Street and had left the scene. Damage to the auto owned by Robert L. Carper Jr., was estimated at $150.

Pushed Police Aside

Snyder was stopped north of the city on State 49 by City Patrolman Wayne Schroeder. Schroeder was pushed aside and Snyder jumped back into his car and sped north, police said.

Schroeder sent out an alert to all county patrolmen and started to pursue Snyder. A roadblock was manned by Undersheriff William Mork and Deputy Sheriff Joe Hogan at Scandinavia.

Through Roadblock

Snyder failed to heed the signals to stop and sped through the roadblock. Mork fired a shotgun blast into the air and then fired at the rear tire of the speeding auto.

Snyder continued north on State 49 with Schroeder still in pursuit. Mork and Hogan took up the chase.

Nearing Iola, Mork got in front of Snyder who was forced to stop at the intersection of State 49 and 161 and was taken into custody. He was held in the county jail until his Monday court appearance.

Since When?

In Springtime, Young Man's Fancy Always Turns to—Shoveling Snow!

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY

What's the world and the weather coming to anyway?

It's getting so in springtime a young man's fancy turns to the same thing that's been plaguing him all winter . . . shoveling snow!

The weatherman — his Nielsen rating by now should be quivering near the zero mark — gave the Fox Cities another "snow job" today

"Ahhh spring, beautiful spring," a frustrated snow shoveler was overheard to say, postscripting his prose with unprintable adjectives.

Dances in Mid-Air

This he did as a fresh blanket of white stuff greeted early morning risers. . .and flurries whipped by winds . . . danced and glistened in mid-air.

It was an old familiar sight but a new season. Spring supposedly arrived Saturday but Ol' Man Winter's weekend fling left residents apprehensive as to the authenticity of the calendar on the wall.

While housewives have visions of working in flower gardens, and the man of the house entertains thoughts of the coming golfing season, let's talk about the peril at hand . . S-N-O-W.

You know, some of you folks are lucky to be alive and reading this little dissertation — especially those fat and over 40. Health experts (and aren't we all) say snow is far from being man's best friend It's hard on the ticker.

Aggravates Heart Defects

Snow shoveling itself may not be a cause of heart attacks, but it can aggravate existing heart and bloodway defects Bet you didn't know that a shovelful of fluffy snow weights about four pounds.

Shoveling 10 such loads a minute puts the same load on your heart as walking up three flights of stairs in the same length of time

And, someone has figured out (probably a statistical-minded payroll clerk) that the snow shoveler uses up from 8 to 12 calories of energy a minute, which is three to five times the energy used in, pardon the expression, sedentary work.

So, the guy who works at a desk and has done little exercising all year around — even if he has shown no evidence of heart disease — endangers himself by sudden bursts of energy such as come with snow shoveling.

Snow shoveling should be done slowly, advise the medics, with rests (not beers) between the shovelfuls. They say the safest way to clear the walk and driveway is to:

—Remove the snow when it is still fresh and fluffy because wet snow can weigh as much as 10 pounds per shovelful

—Don't be a racehorse. . .take it easy when you shovel. Rest frequently and do some positive thinking — like you just can't wait to mow your big, beautiful lawn come summer.

—Move the snow only as far as necessary — don't carry shovelful by shovelful to that vacant lot at the end of the block.

—Replace a heavy shovel with a light one. After all, shovels weigh from three and a half pounds (aluminum) to eight pounds (steel)

Solution To Problem

Look at it this way, friend By using an eight pound shovel to move snow weighing six pounds a shovelful, you will lift a total of 4,200 pounds in 300 shovelfuls to clear the driveway. With that three and a half pound aluminum shovel you reduce that weight load by 1,356 pounds, a little more than 30 per cent.

With this in mind the writer favors a family recruitment program.

You guessed it — give the wife and kids the soft-sell on that "slim-trim figure" stuff. . .and let them do the shoveling.

3 Fremont Officers Have Opposition

FREMONT — Three incumbent town of Fremont officers will have opposition at the spring election as a result of nominations made at a caucus Saturday.

William Kramer, incumbent town chairman, will be opposed by Arlin Pitt; Leo Lind, incumbent west side supervisor, will be opposed by Reinhold Koehler; and east side supervisor John Kohl Jr., incumbent east side supervisor, will be opposed by Charles Condon.

Mrs Norma Hepburne was nominated for clerk, with Otto Reichenbach, incumbent clerk, declining nomination William Warnke will be unopposed for assessor as Herbert Meydam, present assessor, also declined nomination.

Also unopposed will be Norman Hoeft, incumbent treasurer; Robert Lovejoy, incumbent constable, and Theodore Lantvit, justice of peace

From State Tourney Team

One Letterman Returns To New London High '9'

NEW LONDON—With only one letter winner and two other members of a WIAA State tournament baseball team returning, the outlook for the upcoming season is bleak for Coach Bil Beyer.

The 1964 version of the Bulldogs posted a 13-4 record on the way to their top season, taking crowns at district, regional and sectional levels before being dumped by Kenosha in the semi-finals of the state meet at Oshkosh.

Third baseman Jeff Rugolska, a senior, the lone returning letterman, and shortstop Ted Huber and second baseman Jim Bossewitz, both sophomores, will carry the load for Beyer's team and give him a fairly experienced infield

Junion Stan Teschke, number two man behind the plate last year, will be working with an untried pitching squad

Mound corps possibilities listed by Beyer include senior John Hedike and sophomores Chuck Learman, Rich Gorges and Bassewitz. Beyer said Hedike had never pitched in high school ball, but had seen action for the American Legion team last year. Bassewitz was also listed as another top candidate.

30 Report

The initial practice of the baseball season was called Monday with a skull session and registration. Registrations were received from 30 prospects.

Nearly all positions are open, Beyer said. The outlook at this time is for a strong fielding club and a big question mark on its offensive punch, according to Beyer.

The schedule:

April 27—Clintonville, here; May 1—at Shawano; May 4—Menasha, here; May 8—at Kimberly; May 11—Two Rivers, here; May 14—Neenah, here; May 18—at Kaukauna and May 22, district tournament at a site to be chosen.

All home games are played on the Hatten Memorial Park facilities.

American Scene Sidelights Range From Short Beer-Private Coal Mine

(Editor' Note — A short beer in Arizona.

Her own private coal mine — in the basement

Boats in the bank.

Water by a 1902 yardstick.

A cabbie retires, plans a motor trip.

All are a part of the American scene.

Short Beer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — It'll be easier now for Arizonans to have a short beer at home.

Gov. Sam Goddard has signed into law a bill to permit the sale of beer in cans smaller than eight ounces. Previously it was illegal for package liquor stores to sell smaller cans, although the short can of beer could be purchased in some bars.

The bill was the first to get through the Arizona Legislature in the first seven weeks of its regularly scheduled nine-week session.

Private Mine

SHAWNEE, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. William Leaver, 71, has her own private coal mine in her basement.

At the rate Mrs. Leaver uses her coal, it will last 1,000 years. Current estimates are she has 10,000 tons still to be mined in her basement.

The mine was discovered by Mrs. Leaver's husband in 1917 and has been going strong since.

It is one of the few in this Appalachian county of Ohio which is still producing coal.

Most coal mines around here played out decades ago.

Shawnee, population 948, and Perry County are among the federal government's Appalachia targets.

Three or four times a year, a son, Delbert, 46, of Columbus, comes to this hilly town "to dig enough to fill the coal bin" for his mother.

Mrs. Leaver's mine goes 150 feet from the basement under a steep hill. The shaft is 10 feet wide and 14 feet high.

Boat Bank

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — It took Harold Stiers 40 years to acquire his $2 million collection of model boats. Now he's had to put them in a bank vault where he can't enjoy them.

The boats, made of jade, ivory and silver, were the objects of one of the most quixotic burglaries in the memory of St. Louis police.

Eighty-two of the 200 models were stolen from Stiers' mansion last October. After a comedy of errors by the burglars, the models were found in the trunk of the St. Louis district attorney's car.

One man, Wyvonne Hornburg, St. Louis, has been charged with the theft and detective Sgt. Ernest Alexander says more may be arrested.

Alexander said a New York man hired a ring of 12 St. Louis thieves to grab the boats. The crooks got them to Chicago, then the New Yorker decided he didn't want them, the officer said.

The burglars, left holding the bag, negotiated with police and the district attorney, then the district attorney found the boats in his car.

Old Yardstick

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP) — Into Imperial County — a desert with a heart of green — the federal government is advancing with a 63-year-old yardstick.

To the small farmer goes the water.

The government says it is finally getting around to enforcing the 1902 federal reclamation law in the 500,000-acre Imperial Valley.

The law forbids the sale of federal water to a private landowner with more than 160 acres, or to a man and wife with more than 320 acres.

It is federal water — delivered 50 miles across a Sahara-like desert in the concrete-lined All-American Canal — which since 1942 has turned the valley into the rich farmland it is today.

Owners of big spreads, backed by a 1933 secretary of the interior ruling that Imperial Valley was exempt from the Reclamation Act, have built the area into a "big farm" — oriented farmland by ignoring the 160-acre water supply limit. Many farms are 1,200 acres or more.

There are only a dozen of the 100-to-160-acre family farms envisioned by creators of the 1902 act.

But last Dec. 30, Department of the Interior solicitor Frank J. Barry denied the 1933 exemption, said the acreage limitation applies to the valley, and Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall ordered it enforced.

The Bureau of Reclamation still is studying the ruling — and the ranches to which it applies — and hasn't yet launched excess-land procedures under which big farms may be forced to sell acreage.

Cabbie Retires

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Richard Elton Herzman has petitioned the City Council for authority to sell his one-cab Safeway Cab Co.

"The insurance company frowns on me," he said.

Not because of accidents. It's his age — 75 in July.

"I learned in the days when you had to hustle for business," said Herzman, talking of his 57 years with horse-drawn and motor taxicabs in Seattle.

"You used to get fares because you had hold of the handles of their suitcases when the other drivers were grabbing at the straps."

He is proud that everything left in his cab was returned, including $25,000 in jewels, and that only one official complaint ever was filed.

"That was from a woman," said Donald Turnbull, license director. "I called her and Herzman into my office. It turned out her complaint was that Herzman wouldn't marry her."

That woman lost but another didn't and the Herzmans are going motoring in retirement.

Grand Chute Residents May Get Refuse, Garbage Pickups

Town of Grand Chute residents may be relieved of garbage and refuse disposal problems in the near future.

As a result of numerous demands from town residents that the town provide municipal refuse pickup, Town Chairman, Arthur Lecker, had an Appleton firm prepare a proposed collection service plan.

Lecker will present the plan prepared by Refuse Service, Inc., 2309 S. Carlton Ave. at the annual town meeting April 6.

Under the plan, the company would provide refuse collection service for all town residents at a cost of $14.096 per year. The annual cost would be based on the number of commercial and family units in the town. The base cost would be 85 cents per month per unit or family, or $1,174.70 per month for the town, based on present census figures. The service will be paid for from town revenues.

The company recommends a five-year contract.

At present, approximately 500 residents pay $2 per month to a private collector to have their trash removed, while the remaining residents haul trash to the own dump.

The town dump is open Thursdays until noon and Saturdays fro m8 a.m. to 5 p.m. A town employe is responsible for maintaining the dump and burning the refuse.

Lecker said the town could save approximately $1,000 per year if it adopts the collection service plan. He added that $250 to $300 per year could be saved on fire calls alone, pointing out that grass fires each summer are caused by sparks from trash being burned in backyards.

Lecker said the present system results in poluted air throughout the town, angry housewives whose laundry is soiled by neighbors burning trash, and inefficient disposal of refuse.

Two Men Needed

The company estimates it would take two men, hired from the local labor market, approximately 3½ days per week to collect all the town's refuse.

The company would provide the necessary equipment, personnel, pay all the insurance, and maintain the equipment.

Lecker said there may be some opposition from several town farmers, but he was not sure.

He noted that as the town grows, residents "demand better municipal services, and rightly so. He also said the town is studying ways to provide better police protection.

Lecker is being opposed in this year's election by Thomas Thorson, 2915 N. Morrison St.

Ad Club to Hear Talk By Wax Firm Exhibitor

Competing against multi-million dollar extravaganzas, Johnson's Wax brought a product story to the Fair which was successful beyond all expectations.

Bronson will outline the steps taken by Johnson's Wax for the fair. He will also be prepared to answer any questions members might have concerning transportation, accommodations and things to see at this year's World's Fair.

Penalties From $100 to $200; Shawano Man Gets Jail Term for Second Offense

Four motorists Monday were fined for driving while under the influence of intoxicants when they appeared in courts at Waupaca and Clintonville.

Mrs. Darrell Polzin, 23, of Embarrass, was fined $150 and court costs and had her drivers license suspended for one year after a County Court jury at Waupaca found her guilty of the charge.

Mrs. Polzin was arrested after an accident in the City of Marion Oct. 31, 1963. Witnesses testified that Mrs. Polzin had had eight drinks prior to the accident.

Fined $200

Alvin W. Krewald, 37, of Kewaskum, was fined $200 and costs Monday when he appeared in Waupaca Municipal Justice Court and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was arrested Sunday in the Town of Lebanon on U.S. 45. The arresting patrolman testified that the truck Krewald was driving was weaving down the highway and holding up traffic.

Harris Twelen, 55, of route 2, Iola, was fined $100 and costs in Waupaca Municipal Justice Court after he pleaded guilty to the charge. He was arrested March 17 in the Town of Scandanavia and pleaded innocent when he first appeared in court.

Second Offense

Earl F. Hamilton, 57, route 1, Shawano, was fined $150 and sentenced to five days in jail by Clintonville Municipal Justice Nathan Wiese after he was found guilty of the charge. Hamilton was arrested Sunday evening in Clintonville and spent the night in the city jail.

It was his second conviction on the charge within five years and the jail sentence was mandatory.

St. Mary Sisters to Mark Diamond Jubilee

Home-School Members Set June 2 Dinner; Seek Memorabilia to Assist in Celebration

The 75th teaching anniversary of the Sisters of St. Dominic of Sinsinawa at St. Mary Catholic Church will be observed at a diamond jubilee dinner June 2 sponsored by the St. Mary's Home-School Association.

Sisters Faelon and Maura are researching the Dominican Order archives for data to be used in preparing a commemorative brochure. However, they are interested in hearing from the older parishioners, or former members of the parish who might have any memorabilia of the past, including pictures, mementos and personal recollections. The sisters can be contacted at St. Mary's convent.

Oldest Parish

St. Mary's is the oldest Catholic parish in Appleton. The first mass was said in 1848 while the first pastor was assigned in 1860 when the parish was officially created.

The first school was constructed in 1864 but was discontinued shortly thereafter. It was reopened in 1870. A new school was built in 1888 and opened in 1899, according to early records. The Dominican Sisters began their uninterrupted teaching assignment at the school in 1890. The 1888 school was razed in 1952 when the present structure was built.

Officials Question Intensions Of Airline After Port Closing

Chamber, Outagamie Officials Want Answers on Service Plans

Outagamie County and Appleton Chamber of Commerce authorities are trying to determine if North Central Airlines officials intend to suspend service to Outagamie County when the old airport is closed in April.

Letters, requesting an answer, have been written to North Central President Hal N. Carr by County Corporation Counsel A. W. Ponath, Chamber Air Service Committee Chairman Karl P. Baldwin and Chamber Acting Executive Secretary Louis Micheln.

County authorities have notified the airline that they plan to open the new Outagamie airport in the Town of Greenville on Saturday, April 24 and to close the old airport on the same date, or on the date the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) approves the shift of operations from the old airport to the new, whichever date comes later.

"Status Quo"

The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) has ruled the "status quo" must stay in effect until after the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago rules on appeals to CAB recommendations on area airport consolidation.

Under its "status quo" ruling, the CAB supported a North Central request that service to the Fox Cities be continued at the old Outagamie airport until after the court decision, not expected until late this year.

North Central has announced that if Outagamie County closes its old airport before the federal court disposes of the appeal on the order to combine Fox Cities service with Oshkosh service at the Winnebago County Airport, it would suspend air service to Fox Cities.

In their letters to Carr, Baldwin and Micheln asked:

"1. Will North Central Airlines move its operations from the old to the new Outagamie County Airport on April 24, 1965, the date of its official opening, or within a reasonable time before or after that date, and continue to serve this area from the new airport at least during the duration of the so-called status quo stay order?

"2. Assuming that Outagamie County should either withdraw or lose its appeal to the federal courts, is there any reasonable opportunity that North Central Airlines might change its policy and seek CAB approval to continuing air service at the new Outagamie County Airport?"

The letter said, "We believe that this Chamber of Commerce is entitled to this information, as many of its members are vitally interested in the continuation of air service to this community and depending upon the above answers, we stand willing and able to support either the new urban carrier, 'Air Wisconsin,' or North Central."

Baldwin is president of Air Wisconsin, the new urban airline which announced its formation on Friday, March 12, the same day county officials announced they would close the old airport.

The new urban (or third level) airline has plans to connect the Fox Cities with Chicago, with intermediate stops in Fond du Lac, Milwaukee and possibly Sheboygan, when North Central service to the Fox Cities end.

Ponath's letter, dated March 15, was official notification to the airline of Outagamie County's plans concerning the two airports.

He advised North Central officials that the county has received notice from the FAA that transfer of operations from the old to the new airport is expected shortly.

"As requested on several prior occastions," Ponath stated in the letter, "we hereby again request your company to transfer its flight operations from the old airport in the Town of Grand Chute to the new airport in the Town of Greenville at or before the time for closing the old airport, at which time the new airport will automatically become and be known as the Outagamie County Airport . . ."

The new airport, with a 5,200-foot runway, was completed in January. It is equipped with the latest safety and navagational aid, plus hangars and a terminal building.

The county is expected to build a second (cross-wind) runway this year, which may be 6,400-feet long.

State Reports Tax Refunds of $4.7 Million

MADISON (AP) — The State Department of Taxation has made 183,000 income tax refunds totaling $4.7 million, department director James R. Morgan said Monday.

Morgan also said he expects the refunds on taxes collected by the state in 1964 to total $20.6 million this year, or about $5.5 million more than last year. He said the larger figure results from the collection of taxes through all of 1964 while collections in 1963 covered only part of the year.

The report also said that 1,971 refunds totaling $126,700 had been made so far to persons over 65 eligible for property tax or rent payment relief.

Quality and Quantity in Education

Several years ago, when the Fox Valley University Center was under consideration, the then president of Wisconsin State College at Oshkosh appeared in opposition. His fear was that the proposed center would seriously affect the enrollment at Oshkosh. As everyone knows, this has not been the result. What is now Wisconsin State University at Oshkosh continues as the largest institution in the system while the university center is also bursting at the seams.

The current president of Oshkosh University organized a meeting at Fond du Lac last week to oppose the proposal for a new four-year state university in Northeastern Wisconsin. Ostensibly the meeting was called by an organization called the Study Committee for Quality Education. But the issue is not quality versus quantity in public education in Wisconsin. No one doubts that there are plenty of students to go around to every higher educational facility in the state, and no one will argue with the proposition that we should do everything to maintain and improve our educational quality.

The issue today is money, where to get the revenues to meet the terrific enrollment demands of the next 10 years, and where to spend whatever funds can be raised.

We agree with Mrs. McIntyre that there must be expansion of technical and vocational opportunities. But this is not an alternative to increased facilities for liberal arts, pre-professional and teacher training opportunities. We need all sorts of growth in several directions.

But the university presidents' stress upon quality was somewhat misleading. Their real concern, and an understandable one, is that their own extensive building plans may be threatened by any new institutions. They are not proposing to cut or limit their own enrollments for this quality they advocate. The numbers game, as someone has called the desire for bigger and bigger universities, has given the heads of many institutions something of an empire building complex.

Projections of the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education forecast that Oshkosh State University will grow from 5,326 students as of 1964 to an enrollment of 14,715 by 1975 providing two new four-year institutions are built. Without those two new schools OSU will have to accommodate over 20,000 students by 1975. How large an institution at Oshkosh would President Guiles advocate, keeping the quality of its instruction in mind?

It is our staunch belief that a four-year institution in this area is a desperate need. Its costs will be high. But, in looking to the future, will its costs be as high as the continued growth of present institutions, including more and more dormitories to give living space to the more and more non-commuting students?

The very real fact that faces all of us is that the young people needing higher educational opportunities are a reality. We must find the funds to build the buildings and pay the professors and we must explore a variety of new methods to make the money go as far as possible in both quantity and quality. Continuing to build in crowded areas, particularly in Oshkosh, however much President Guiles shrugs away the costs of buying such property and razing existing buildings, is not the best way to use whatever funds can be raised.

Educators in Wisconsin have often pointed to the shortsightedness of the legislature in not studying projected figures and preparing the way for the mass of high school graduates in the state. The Study Committee for Quality Education has been shortsighted this time and for what in general appears to be vested interests.

More Daylight Saving

Gov Knowles probably had very little choice when the bill to extend daylight saving time another month into the autumn season came to him. The majorities favoring the measure in both houses of the legislature were so great that any other course would have led to the enactment of the bill over his objections

The governor's statement accompanying his signature on the bill to extend daylight saving through October, for an extra month, showed some concern about the confusion that will be increased in western Wisconsin, which is his own home territory, because the state of Minnesota does not seem inclined to follow the Wisconsin example. Doubtless there will be difficulties and inconveniences in the western part of the state, which is tuned to Minnesota economically and otherwise. But as Mr. Knowles acknowledged, such problems must be measured against the gains in convenience and economic advantage for the rest of the state in its relations with the states southward and eastward and notably Michigan and Illinois.

There will be general support also, we believe, of the governor's view that the extension of daylight saving time through October has no necessary relation to the extension of tavern closing law rules that have been associated with the earlier time law

When the original Wisconsin daylight saving law was enacted several years ago to extend through September, tavern interests persuaded the legislature to adopt an amendment to the local option tavern regulating statutes to allow local governing bodies in tourist areas to permit taverns to remain open until 2 a.m. during the daylight saving time season. The reasoning of the tavern men at the time was specious They held that with more daylight time, they would lose some of their patronage because tourists would not be likely to enter their establishments until nightfall

But whatever the merits of that argument to the legislature a decade ago, it has no logical connection with the extension of daylight saving now. The tourist season in most parts of the state has ended long before October 1. If the tavern statutes require amending to that extent, we hope that the legislature will see to it, with the governor's explicit backing. Customers who must be permitted to linger until 2 a.m., whatever the time zone in which they happen to be, are best discouraged. If the legislature shows any serious interest in the matter, moreover, it might also review the altogether indefensible law that gives Milwaukee County taverns a preferential right over all others in Wisconsin in tavern operating hours. That law was dubious enough when it was adopted during World War II. We can imagine no serious reason for such discriminatory policy today.

New Gambit in an Old Con Game

The instinct for larceny that is said to exist in almost every human has become almost a stock-in-trade for the confidence man This government's concern over the outflow of gold has created a golden opportunity to those who prey upon the gullible. It has all the ingredients necessary for a successful swindle.

The con man likes to picture his scheme to the dupe as just a little on the wrong side of the law — not enough to incur the risk of great penalties, but enough to appeal to a sporting instinct for adventure and of course with the prospect of great gains When the victim has been fleeced he will be reluctant to run to the authorities because he knew his "venture" was illegal in the first place He will be even more reluctant to file charges because he knows his gullibility has made him look ridiculous

The setting is comparatively simple Uncle Sam has suffered big losses of gold in recent months because balance-of-payments reports are against him He needs all the gold he can get The Treasury wants it but official hands are tied by a 1934 law which limits gold ownership by private citizens Just the same with the proper approach and a little influence in Washington, the law can be sidetracked. The delivery of gold, legal or not, has become a patriotic duty.

A vast hoard of gold is available for transfer to the Treasury. The con man says he owns it, he represents someone who owns it, or that he is acting for the heirs of the original owner who has died recently. The trouble is everybody is a little hard up for ready money, and there are considerable expenses ahead. The law must be circumvented, armored trucks must be hired, guards must be paid. So the con man appeals to his "mark." Mr O. U. Sucker, as a man of substance, influence, discretion and integrity. The patriotic duty is obvious, the risk almost nil, the reward very great, for Mr. Sucker is assured of a very generous share of the huge fortune.

The dupe makes the money available and maybe has gone to Washington to use his influence on the Treasury officials when the bunko artist disappears with the cash

Treasury officials are perfectly willing to prosecute the con man, but they get few chances to do this The dupe wants to forget about his part and refuses to bring charges Without his cooperation they are helpless, for talk about hoarded gold doesn't violate the law and the rumored hoards do not exist.

Medicare-Supporter Finds Faults With Byrnes', 'Eldercare' Bills

Editor, Post-Crescent:

You have been critical of the Medicare proposal on the grounds of its limited benefits and because older people who have not contributed and others not covered by Social Security would receive benefits. You have referred to this bill as grossly unfair and hastily put together. This letter, then, is in response to your analysis.

First, in my opinion, the responsibility for the medical and other care of old people falls on the following persons and groups, in the order stated: 1. themselves, 2. their sons and daughters, 3. other relatives, 4. as a last resort, society.

The Medicare proposal provides a method of prepaid insurance by which persons can contribute during their working years to a fund: which fund can later assist them, if need be, in their non-working later years. Why is this compulsory? One reason may be that if the system were voluntary, some who did not provide for themselves would in the final result need to be provided for by society. The word "compulsory" is an unattractive and unpopular one: be that as it may, Medicare is a compulsory system through which citizens would provide to a limited extent for their future medical expenses

What about those who have not contributed? Should they be included in the benefits? Whether they should be or not is a matter of judgment and generosity, my preference would be that they should be included. It is worth remembering that the persons who would not contribute because they are already retired are the fathers and mothers and grandparents of us who are working, and that we have a responsibility to them in any event. I do not consider this aspect of the bill to be unfair.

In a pamphlet prepared by the AMA to promote "eldercare," it is said that the Medicare bill has been in the Congress for six years. It would seem that a bill which has been debated and discussed this long must be the end product of considerable modification and evolution, and I do not think that it is accurate to refer to it as hastily put together.

There is an important reason for limiting the benefits of a bill of this type, and this reason is the need for adequate and acceptable means of preventing abuses. For example, the Byrnes proposal provides for much larger nursing home benefits than does Medicare. However, one of the major problems of aging is a condition of general helplessness, requiring essentially custodial care. But should a government attempt to provide this care, or is this more properly a responsibility of the sons and daughters of the afflicted? The Medicare program requires, prior to limited nursing home care, that the patient has first been admitted to a hospital (for proper diagnosis) and that the nursing home must meet certain standards, such as a registered nurse on duty at all times.

Another problem is that of limiting hospital admissions to necessary ones, and preventing unnecessary hospital admissions. According to a report in the Wall Street Journal, a safeguard that is being considered is the establishment of a review committee of physicians in each hospital, which would have the responsibility of examining admissions under Medicare, and raising questions about admissions of doubtful necessity. Hopefully, this would provide a moral force to limit abuses.

The Byrnes bill would provide for phusicians services. But the problem arises as to providing safeguards against abuses, and yet allow physicians freedom of action, freedom from red tape, and from being excessively spied upon This problem could not be solved by ignoring it.

A feature of the Byrnes bill which is questionable is the one of allowing payment for the services of Christian Science practitioners. These services, I believe, are essentially religious rather than medical, even though the objective is to heal. I do not feel that these should be included in a medical aid bill.

Those readers who are interested in the "eldercare" bill might find it useful to refer to an article by Kenneth Crawford in March 15 "Newsweek" magazine, in which this program is examined.

Visitor Objects to City 'Speed Trap' on Hwy. 96

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Please print this copy of a letter I have addressed to the Appleton Police Department:

In line with my conversation with your desk man at your station on March 10, I am inclosing my check for $29 to cover fine assessed on me for traffic violation

I must express my feeling in this matter as I am of the opinion that amount levied is unjust. My driving record for almost 45 years has been excellent. I was a business visitor coming into your city on highway 96 when I left the 45 mile posted area just entering the city limits into your 25 mile zone and into your "speed trap" area. Am sure than your arresting officer can attest to the fact that I had my car under complete control after passing the cable. He asked me to check with the machine which I refused to do, as felt this was useless gesture.

I was a business visitor in your city and believe that common courtesy should have been extended. I sincerely feel that reprimand may have been in order but not the severe penalty meted out to me. I went back later in the day to check the area out and am convinced that you can set up there any day with machine and have a very "busy day." If you intend to adhere to the 25 mile limit in this area, I believe better and larger warning signs should be put up at the city limits for any business visitors entering on highway 96.

Surprise! Government Finds Poverty Pocket In Menominee County

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — A revelatory footnote on the leisurely ways of officialdom was the disclosure that the U. S. Bureau of Indian Affairs after nearly a year has completed a report which concludes that the Menominee Indian community in north central Wisconsin is a "pocket of poverty" that ought to have the attention of the National government.

Wyngaard

The bureau was directed to examine the Menominee situation many months ago in an explicit provision written into an appropriation bill by Rp. Melvin R. Laird of Marshfield, who is perhaps the most knowledgeable Wisconsin politician on Indian problems as the long-time representative of the district that embraces new Menominee County. Before that time Commissioner Phileo Nash and his generously staffed establishment insisted that they had no business prying into the Menominees' problems because the Congress in 1961 had made effective the act terminating the status of the Menominees as members of a U. S. government Indian reservation.

The casual passerby, making a windshield survey, could conclude in a half hour that the Menominees' distress is deep and flagrant in these prosperous times for a majority of Americans. But a government agency requires months of deliberation to write a report with that conclusion. It then handles it in such a hush-hush fashion that a Washington correspondent who stumbled across it considered it as a "scoop."

STALEMATE

One is simetimes inclined to guess that if the Menominees were relieved of their real or fancied obligation to travel to Madison for the countless and thus far fruitless official meetings held to deliberate their plight, it might be a small but tangible contribution toward the improvement of their economic status.

The solemn truth is that there is a stalemate in the state government on the Menominee problem, not because the state officials are not men of good will, but because there appeas to be so little that they can do that touches upon the fundamental fact that the economy of the little forest community is obviously incapable of sustaining the Indian inhabitants there.

Virtually everybody in Wisconsin official circles is now convinced that the termination of U. S. government warship for the Indians was a mistake. Many of them have a hindsight view, of course. At the time many responsible men believed that the act giving the Indians full status as independent citizens was wise and defensible. They were wrong. The Menominees cannot support themselves, at least not in the segregated culture and on their own lands as they apparently desire. In one way or another, they will again become wards of society. The question is whether they will be state dependents or will be supported by the national government which cut them adrift.

STATE PROPOSAL

The most honest and farsighted plan thus far advanced, in the view of this reporter who has observed the tragic story, is the Conservation Department proposal for state purchase of the Menominee forest lands for timber production and as a recreational area.

Individual Indian stockholders of Menominee Enterprises, Inc., could receive substantial cash allotments that would permit many of them to leave the depressed community, thus perhaps permitting the Indian lumber mill and associated enterprises a reasonable chance for sustaining those who may desire to remain. The integrity of the forest preserve would be protected by the solemn compact of statute and a recreational business base might be developed of long-range value.

There has yet been no legislative reaction to the idea, but its doom can already be forecast by the anxious condemnation, approaching panic, of Menominee spokesmen. Their resistance will almost surely arouse such a clamor from the sentimentalists that the legislature will sidetrack the purchase idea — aside from the considerable financial commitment for the state treasury that would be involved. And thus a "pocket of poverty" will remain, in incongruous juxtaposition with a huge timber preserve that is one of the unique and valuable forest resources of the continent.

Cop on the Beat Not Crime Answer Today

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A nostalgia I shared with many members of the public until I began studying the subject seriously was the desire for "the policeman on the beat." I felt that the old-fashioned foot patrolman making his rounds would considerably decrease the rate of crime in many neighborhoods.

Harris

To buttress my case, in preparation for a column on the matter, I started reading a number of studies and surveys, not only of American police, but of police forces in other countries.

One of the most illuminating was a recent work of "occupational sociology" by Michael Banton, called "The Policeman in the Community," which compared law-enforcement methods in England, Scotland, and the United States. Banton's reluctant conclusion is that the days are gone "when the man on the beat could keep order by personal influence."

The most important element of police work in the future, he advises, is "public co-operation." In the increasingly dense urbanized areas "the police will soon be almost completely dependent upon telephone calls and messages from the public if they are to know about most of the offenses that are committed.

But these offenses are today most often concealed, because people do not like to call in the police or to become involved in any way.

Contrary to the general public's feelings, Banton's study indicates that in the future society there will be "less reliance upon external controls such as punishment," and a greater reliance upon the "inner controls deriving from early socialization and schooling." What this means, in effect, is that parents and neighborhoods will have to become more responsible for crime prevention.

The modern urban area is predominantly anonymous. Communities change fast, there is little sense of social solidarity, and the prevailing attitude toward the police is one of suspicion. In America, especially, the political connections and the intricacies of court procedures further alienate the average citizen from aiding in law enforcement.

The old "cop on the beat" was useful in the stable community of the past, and is still useful in static or rural areas. But as the character of living changes, the patterns of crime change with them, and the police can no longer cope alone with the density and mobility of the modern neighborhood.

The incidence of crime is increasing everywhere in the so-called civilized world. Perhaps the chief reason is the very affluence that permits people to move upward and outward, the loosening ties of loyalty to any one group or neighborhood, and the indifference to communal welfare.

Brown County Police Praise Basketball Fans

Editor, Post-Crescent:

We would appreciate it very much if you would publish the following letter in your paper, in appreciation for a well behaved group of young men and women from your locality on the nights of March 12 & 13 at the sectional basketball games held in Green Bay.

On March 12 & 13, we had the privilege of policing the Sectional Basketball Tournament, which was held at the Brown County Veterans Memorial Arena. With a capacity crowd on both evenings totaling over 12,000 paid admissions we did not encounter one mishap. The players, coaches, school teachers, supervisors and spectators from your locality are to be congratulated. Win or lose the teams played their hearts out and the spectators were with them. Hats off to a well behaved and orderly group of young men and women. We are mighty proud to be neighbors to such a fine community and welcome you back at any time.

Mt. Kennedy Climbing Party At First Step

Senator, Other Expedition Members Enjoy Good Weather

WHITEHORSE, Yukon Territory (AP) — Cheered by forecasts of continued good weather, the Mt. Kennedy climbing party faced today the first step in the ascent of the 13,900-foot mountain, highest unclimbed peak in North America.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and the other expedition members spent the night at a base camp on Hyannis Port Glacier, which they named after Kennedy's arrival Monday afternoon. The Kennedy family has a home at Hyannis Port, Mass.

The climbers plan to reach a second base camp and spend the night after their first day up the mountain, named by the Canadian government for the senator's slain brother, President John F. Kennedy.

Bright Sun

The sun was shining brightly as the party flew to the camp from Whitehorse in a Royal Canadian Air Force rescue helicopter. The forecaster at the Canadian Department of Transport's weather office summed up the weather thus: "They hit it pretty lucky."

The weather office said the wind is not expected to exceed 20-30 miles an hour, and the temperature should not be below zero.

James W. Whittaker of Seattle, Wash., leader of the expedition, and the first American to scale Mt. Everest, had predicted they might encounter fierce wind and temperature of around 40 below zero.

The weather office said an arctic front retreating northward might produce low clouds and snow flurries but no serious storms were in prospect.

Whittaker has said the party could be back in two or three days if the weather is good.

Museum Director

Kennedy, Whittaker and Dr. Bradford Washburn, scientific leader of the expedition and director of the Boston Museum, flew from Seattle to Juneau, Alaska, by airliner and from there to Whitehorse by chartered plane.

At Whitehorse, they were told the weather outlook was discouraging. An RCAF pilot, flying to the Mt. Kennedy area on a government picture-taking mission, had been forced back by low clouds.

Pilot Ron Connelly of Yukon Flying Service said Monday night:

"Kennedy wanted to go, but nobody wanted to take him if the weather was going to be bad. The only way to tell is to fly out and look, so I circled around and took a look, and it was fine."

A big two-rotor helicopter had been diverted from another mission after a telephone call to Ottawa by Gordon Cameron, commissioner of Yukon Territory, who met the Kennedy party at the airport.

Climbing Gear

Kennedy and Whittaker changed into climbing gear — heavy pants, boots and red-hooded parkas — and they and Washburn took off.

At the 8,500-foot base camp, Kennedy turned to with the others to shovel snow and haul on a rope to free a ski-equipped airplane, chartered by newsmen, which got stuck.

Washburn, who headed the 1935 expedition which first explored the area, returned to Whitehorse in the helicopter after telling Kennedy and Whittaker: "Boy, do I envy you."

The expedition is sponsored by the National Geographic Society and the Boston Museum. The principal object is to map the mountain and the surrounding peaks and glaciers more thoroughly.

Big Problems Are Still Ahead Of President

Honeymoon With History Is Over, Woes Worry Him

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's honeymoon with history is over but, while he can't be blamed for the woes piling up on him, they are his now to do with as he can.

What he can do about some of them must trouble him sorely, for he has to mix hope with action in trying to put a man on the moon ahead of the Soviet Union, solving the civil rights uproar and achieving some kind of peace in Viet Nam.

He was happily free of crises anywhere from the time he took office 16 months ago until early this year, although they were bound to come. It was as if men and events had agreed to let him get used to his job.

Slow Melting

The slow melting of Viet Nam under Communist fire began in the Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy administrations, not in Johnson's. It just got worse in his until this country had to decide to put up or shut up.

Johnson's decision to step up the war, with direct and open American participation and air attacks on North Viet Nam, was intended to make the North Vietnamese sue for a truce.

Then and now Johnson couldn't know whether his decision would bring Red China and the Soviet Union to North Viet Nam's aid, thus turning a little war into a big one, although he soon had one thing in his favor.

Russian-Red Chinese relations got worse and the American action in Viet Nam seemed to intensify it.

Negro Demands

The Negro demands for full civil rights had their beginnings in the Eisenhower administration, grew stronger in President Kennedy's time, and then boiled up and spilled over on Johnson.

In an effort to calm the waters before there is more and even worse violence, Johnson asked Congress to pass a strong bill to protect Negroes' voting rights. This, too, is based on hope.

But here again Johnson had something working for him.

While many white Southerners may be angry at his strong stand in behalf of Negroes, he didn't offer his bill until he knew he had strong Northern support, which will be a big help in getting the bill through.

In the midst of all this came the unpleasant reminder that the Russians are ahead in space and that therefore the country will be expecting Johnson to do something about it, although probably not one in a million could say what.

Moon Shot

Last week, just as the United States was getting ready to turn loose a non-manned moon shot and then send a two-man team into orbit in a Gemini spacecraft, the Russians put on a show far outshining what Americans could do.

They not only sent a two-man space team aloft but one of the men got out and floated and somersaulted in space, with the whole spectacle seen on television screens in the Soviet Union and Europe through a television camera on the spacecraft.

The Russian timing, just before the American space shots, was hardly an accident and therefore, in demonstrating Russian superiority, must have been doubly galling to Johnson.

Russians Ahead

Yet the Russians have been ahead for years, in President Eisenhower's time and in Kennedy's, too, even though the United States has been trying to catch up and close the gap that goes back to the 1950s.

Perhaps there is less gap. Civilian space chief James E. Webb said Monday this country plans to have an American astronaut "walk" in space within a year.

But the big test is still in getting a man to the moon first. Webb said he thought this country might be able to do it within this decade but he didn't say the Russians wouldn't do it sooner.

It would be a great climax to Johnson's first four-year term if this country could do it first by 1968 which is also a presidential election year.

Lawrence Says

Far-Reaching Effect Seen in Rights Measure

Voting Bill Sets Precedents to be Felt in Future

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The American people may discover someday that, if the voting-rights bill becomes law and is upheld by the courts, it can create a precedent for the most far-reaching changes which could affect not merely voting rights but the rights of citizens in almost every other field of law For, indeed, the voting-rights bill constitutes a revolution in American law

What it means can best be understood by applying the new formula to any other legislation Thus, by using the schemes of the proposed voting legislation Congress could suddenly decide that any state may be punished if it had had segregated schools going back for a period of 10 years

States, moreover, which in the same period didn't have laws denying the right of a citizen to discriminate in the sale or rental of his property could for a considerable period of time be deprived of all rights to legislate anew on the subject of housing

On Probation

In short all states which have had practices that now are disapproved could be put on probation for 10 years in the same way that several states would be placed under such a ban by the new voting-rights legislation

Careful examination of the proposed voting-rights bill shows that certain states are to be arbitrarily adjuged guilty of discrimination in the field of voting Any of these states which cannot prove to the courts that there has been no discriminatory practice in registration or voting withing its territory during the previous 10 years would not be able to enact through its legislature any new law on this subject and then enforce it without first going to a federal court and getting permission to do so This means that no matter how just or fair the new state law happens to be a federal court may bar a state from enforcing the legislation just because someone in a local office somewhere in the state, engaged during the 10 preceding years in discriminatory acts or practices

Once a court judgement has been entered that such a state has discriminated in voting rights this same state, for 10 years thereafter has no redress in the court on the matter of voting qualifications For the proposed bill says flatly that no court can enter a declaratory judgment with respect to any state if there has been a judgment in a federal court which determined thtat denials or abridgement of the right to vote by reason of race or color have occurred anywhere in the territory of the state during the preceding 10 years

The new bill also declares that whenever a state or a political subdivision which under its provisions has been guilty of any discriminatory practices "shall enact any law or ordinance imposing qualifications or procedures for voting different than those in force and effect on November 1, 1964, such law or ordinance shall not be enforced unless and until it shall have been finally adjudicated by an action for declaratory judgment brought against the United States in the District Court for the District of Columbia that such qualifications or procedures will not have the effect of denying or abridging rights guaranteed by the Fifteenth Amendment

So, even when a state feels that it has by law removed discriminatory practices, it cannot put into effect any such law without going to a federal court and getting permission to do so

The new device means that congress has taken unto itself the right to say that any law in the voting-rights field shall not be passed by certain states until the federal courts have given their approval If the same formula were generally applied, it would mean that many another statute of doubtful constitutionality — including the voting-rights bill proposed by the president — might well be suspended in its operation and enforcement until the District Federal Court and finally the Supreme Court had passed upon its constitutionality or validity

Co-Pilot John W. Young leads the way as he and command pilot Virgil I. Grissom approach the elevator which carried them to their spacecraft, the Molly Brown, at Cape Kennedy, Fla., today. They carry portable air conditioning units. (AP Wirephoto) satellite was used to relay information from the Molly Brown to the ground tracking network while the spacecraft flew above the Indian Ocean on the second orbit. Syncom 2, which had been used as a backup relay during the early portions of the flight, became a main relay point when a tracking station in Australia was cut off briefly from communications.

World's 1st Steerable Spacecraft in Orbit

Only three minor problems developed in this first flight by a steerable spacecraft. Two involved a secondary electronic system associated with a thruster jet and a slight pressure drop in a fuel system. Both problems corrected themselves in a short time.

The other involved the blood pressure cuff on Grissom's arm which he said he was unable to operate.

Grissom and Young, a 34-year-old Navy lieutenant commander, had to remain in the capsule only 23 minutes longer than originally planned as the launch crew went through a near-perfect countdown.

The launching was delayed 23 minutes because of a leak in a fuel oxidizer line.

Six minutes after launch, the mission control center reported that Molly Brown was in a successful orbit.

If there are no hitches, the pair were to complete their three orbits in four hours, 52 minutes and parachute to a landing in the Atlantic near Grand Turk Island about 2:15 p.m. Recovery ships and planes, headed by the aircraft carrier Intrepid, were stationed in the intended impact area.

Final Maneuver

Grissom, the command pilot, fired small jets to provide the final maneuver that steered the Molly Brown into the desired orbit.

He has the distinction of becoming the first man to rocket twice into space.

On July 21, 1961, he sailed briefly across the threshold of space on a 16-minute project Mercury suborbital flight and, in a hair-raising finish, swam for his life when his Liberty Bell 7 filled with water and sank.

Grissom and Young are the 18th and 19th persons and the seventh and eighth Americans to fly into space. The Soviet Union has orbited 10 men and one woman.

Three Soviet cosmonauts were aloft in the Voskhod 1 last Oct. 16 in the first multiman flight. Five days ago, two more Russians shot into orbit and one of them stepped outside the capsule in an historic space feat.

Lighter Craft

Although the Gemini spacecraft is about 4,000 pounds lighter than the Voskhod, it has a key capability which the Soviet vehicle did not. It can be maneuvered so that astronaut teams can practice techniques that must be perfected for Project Apollo manned lunar landings planned late in this decade.

Both the ability to maneuver and to operate outside an orbiting spacecraft are techniques which must be developed before either Russians or Americans go to the moon.

On the next Gemini flight, scheduled in June, astronaut James A. McDivitt is scheduled to emerge partly at least from his spacecraft.

Twenty minutes after liftoff, while Grissom and Young soared high over Africa, they made checks of their life support system. Grissom reported to a tracking station in the Canary Islands that all systems were working well.

As they wheeled around the globe, the astronauts were to fly their 7,000-pound vehicle backward, forward and sideways, pitch it nose down and stand it on its tail. During most of the mission, they were to face the direction they were flying instead of backward as the Mercury pilots did.

Grissom was to be in control most of the time and twice during the flight he was to lower the orbital path by about 50 miles in the first attempt to change an orbit on a manned space trip. The Russians are not known to have accomplished this feat.

Young' primary job was to evaluate spacecraft systems. He was to take control of the craft for 20 minutes during the third orbit.

Brief Flight

The maneuvers on the relatively brief flight were to determine how well the sophisticated Gemini spacecraft can be manipulated in preparation for demanding flights planned in the future — especially linking up with other orbiting satellites.

The 90-foot tall Titan 2 sent a flash of thunder rolling across the Cape as it blasted into the sky after the relatively brief technical delay. As the rocket penetrated the cold air of the upper atmosphere, a wide vapor trail blossomed out behind it.

As the rocket sped above 35,000 feet, a pair of F4C Phantom 2 jet planes whipped in behind it, adding their vapor trails to the ones already in the sky.

The planes carried cameras to record the rising rocket's flight as it passed through an area of aerodynamic thrust. Sonic booms created by the fast moving planes resounded like exploding artillery shells over the Cape.

The mission control center reported that Molly Brown had settled into an orbit ranging from 100 to 142 miles high. The low point was exactly as intended. The high point was lower than the planned 149 miles. This would have no effect on the mission.

After 30 minutes of flight, the control center had not reported any direct remarks from the astronauts to news media following the progress of the shot at a press site on the Cape.

This contrasts with earlier flights, when a steady flow of chatter came down from the Mercury astronauts.

As the spacecraft swooped over east Africa during the first orbit, Grissom activated one of three scientific experiments planned on the flight.

He rotated the handle of a 25-ounce container mounted inside the spacecraft. The container carried sea urchin eggs which Grissom was to fertilize at various times. Experts later will try to determine the effect of weightless flight on the growth of these eggs.

Manual Control

About the same time, Grissom exercised several methods of manually controlling his craft. He manipulated the control sticks which are located in the center of the vehicle between him and Young. He reported to the tracking station in Kano, Nigeria, that the controls functioned smoothly

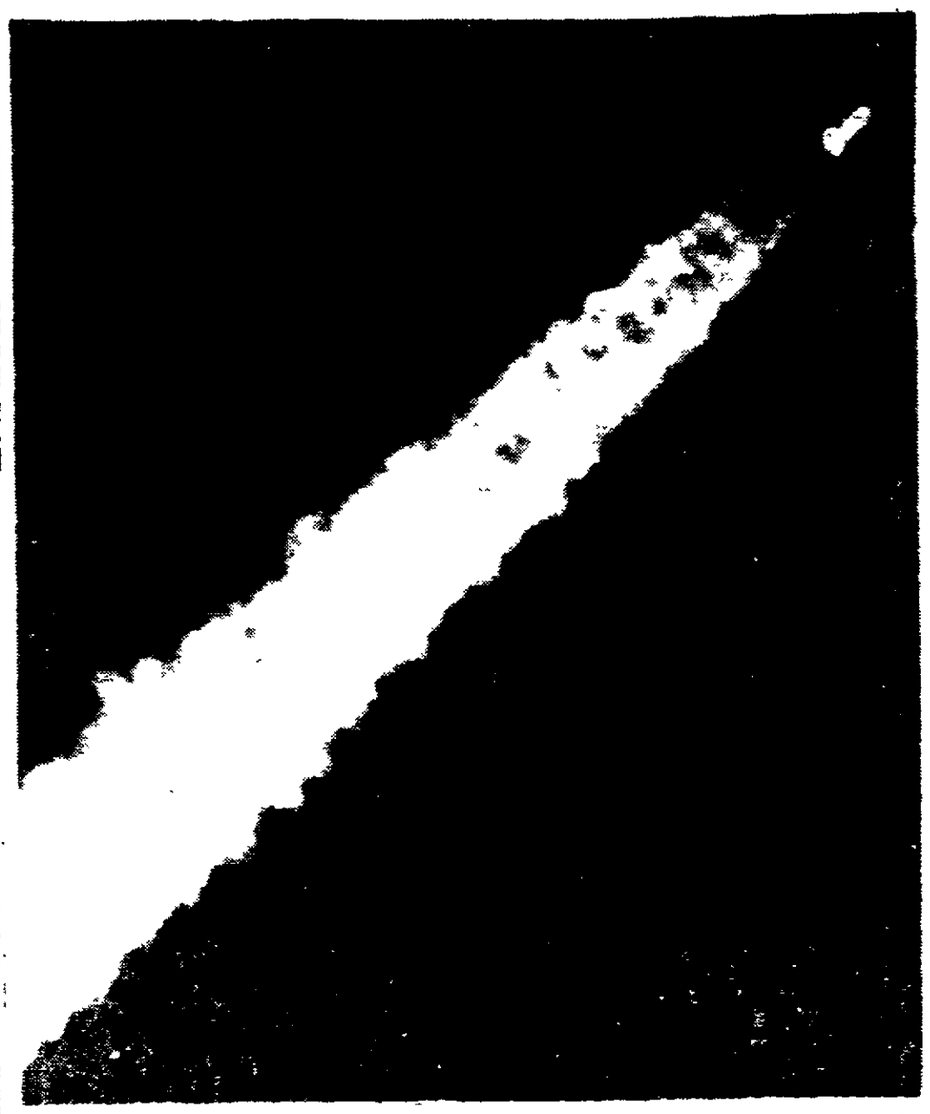
Although the flight scored a first in maneuverability, the U.S. is behind the Soviet manned space program and expects to stay there until development of the more powerful Saturn booster.

Some three hours before Grissom and Young vaulted in space, Soviet cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Pavel Belyayev returned to Moscow to a hero's welcome for their flight last week, when Leonov stepped out of his craft into space. Americans do not plan to match this feat for several months.

Grissom straightened out one minor problem that developed over Africa and a short time later the mission control center at Cape Kennedy gave him the green light for a second orbit He replied that the crew was in "go condition."

Some difficulty had developed in a secondary electronic system associated with a jet thruster that helps maneuver the craft, but Grissom reported over Australia that the problem had been solved.

It was astronaut Charles Conrad Jr., a Navy lieutenant commander, who is to make a seven-day Gemini flight later this year, who passed on the word from mission control to go for the second orbit.



Vapor Trails a Titan 2 rocket as it hits the upper atmosphere after launch at Cape Kennedy, Fla., today carrying a spacecraft and two astronauts on its trip. It was in orbit 10 minutes after blastoff. (AP Wirephoto)

Pro-Westerners Leading In Elections for Ceylon

COLOMBO (AP) — Pro-Western conservatives held a comfortable lead today in their election fight to oust Ceylon's leftist prime minister, Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike.

Final results from 79 of the nation's 151 electoral districts gave the world's only woman prime minister and her leftist allies 26 parliamentary seats. Opposition parties had 49 Independents had 4.

An opposition spokesman said he was confident of ending Mrs. Bandaranaike's five years of rule during which Ceylon stumbled toward political instability and near bankruptcy

Foreign Capitalists

Opposition leader Dudley Senanayake promised that if he won he would give local and foreign capitalists more elbow room than they had under Mrs. Bandaranaike's program of socialism and nationalization of industry

Top-ranking members of Senanayake's United Nationalist party hinted that if he formed a government, he would attempt to improve relations with the United States by paying compensation for American oil properties expropriated in 1952.

The United States suspended economic aid to Ceylon in retaliation for the seizures.

Mrs. Bandaranaike's trade minister and the architect of the expropriations, T. B. Ilangaratne, was among top Communists in her political machine who were defeated in the voting Monday.

Colvin de Silva, pro-Soviet secretary of the Communist party, was also tossed out.

Both Mrs. Bandaranaike, 49, and Senanayake, 53 a former prime minister won seats in Parliament.

Reach Understanding

Mrs. Bandaranaike allied her Freedom party with a Marxist offshoot of the Communist party and had a no-contest understanding with the Communists. Criticism of the West and its culture played a big part in her campaign.

Senanayake told the Buddhists that Mrs. Bandaranaike and her leftist supporters threatened Buddhism the faith of 6 million of Ceylon's 11 million people He also emphasized moves by the prime minister to strengthen ties with Communist China

The winner faces a tough job trying to pull Ceylon out of its economic slump.

Mrs Bandaranaike is the widow of Prime Minister Solomon Banadranaike, who was assassinated in 1959 by a Buddhist monk other than the fact he was wearing a dark trench coat.

Hagerty said he paid no attention to the man on the fire escape "because people are always fooling around back there." Ten minutes later he said he heard more glass break and say flames shoot from the rear windows.

At the same time Hagerty called the fire department, another call was placed from the Lyric Lounge, adjacent to the furniture store, while a third alarm came in from an emergency call box at the corner.

Woman Hurt

No one was injured fighting the fire, but an unidentified woman suffered a cut wrist when she broke through a glass door at the rear of the Lyric Lounge.

Firemen entered the burning building by kicking in the main door and by climbing on the fire escape Using two hose lines, they managed to knock down the flames moments before they would have burst through the ceiling out of control.

"It was touch and go there for a while," commented Asst. Fire Chief Abe Martell who directed the efforts

Although the actual fire was held to the corner area, intense heat from the blaze peeled paint off the walls, scorched furniture on display, causing ceiling plaster to fall and melted a telephone on the opposite end of the building.

Water Damage

Some water damage also was reported in the first floor carpet department, directly beneath the area of the fire

Again, as in the case of the three previous blazes, fire officials found nothing inside the building to indicate what may have been used to start the blaze

But Asst State Fire Marshall Earl Schwabe, who is investigating the blaze along with fire officials and city police this morning said "I have no doubts anymore" when asked if the latest blaze proved an arsonist was at work

In previous fires, two buildings, the Broadway Bowl in the 300 block N Broadway and the former Leader Furniture Co. building in the 500 block Main Street were destroyed while the Odd Fellows Temple in the 200 block, N. Adams Street was heavily damaged.

Seek Lead to Bombs Found In Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Authorities hoped today that special laboratory reports from Washington would provide a lead in an intensive probe of the potent dynamite bombs that did not go off.

Officials in this Southern steel city which has a long history of bombings put every available officer on the all-out probe of the six deadly homemade bombs found in predominantly Negro neighborhoods since Sunday morning.

Several of the bombs were sent to Washington for examination at FBI laboratories. Capt. Frank House, in charge of the officers assigned fulltime to the investigation, said preliminary reports were expected from Washington sometime today.

House said several officers were conducting door-to-door interviews with residents within two blocks in each direction from the locations where bombs were found.

Space Chief Predicts Astronaut Will Float In Space Within Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian space chief James E. Webb says that within a year a U.S astronaut will float in space and that a rendezvous of space ships also will be accomplished.

Only last week, a Russian cosmonaut left his space craft to "walk" briefly in space.

Appearing before the Senate Space Committee Monday, Webb said the United States is ahead of the Soviet Union in the development of technology for the mastery of space.

However, he said this country would continue to lag behind the Soviet manned space program until the powerful Saturn boosters are in operation.

Webb told questioners he doubts that the Russians can develop a surprise military space capability which would upset the balance of power.

He said he believed the Soviets are not committed to any definite military role in space and, like the United States, seek first to find out what the possibilities are.
